ANOTHER PARTY LEADER OUSTED BY ROOSEVELT

Mullen Quits Post on Committee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Arthur F. Mullen, the last of the Democratic national committeemen who have built up fat legal practices for themselves here since their party returned to power, capitulated tonight to President Roosevelt's campaign for "demonetizing politics."

While Mr. Mullen himself sped homeward to Nebraska, J. J. Thomas, a member of the federal reserve board and Democratic state chairman for Nebraska, made public an interchange of letters between President Roosevelt and Mr. Mullen in which Mr Mullen announced his intention of resigning as national committeeman.

Mr. Thomas asserted that Mr. Mullen's resignation was to become effective as soon as a successor could be chosen to take over his party duties.

Advocate of Ickes.

This date, he indicated, would probably be on or about March 17, when Mr. Thomas plans to call a special meeting of the Nebraska Democratic central committee to fill the national committee vacancy.

The new national committeeman is to serve until the regular state-wide election of a national committeeman at the next primary in June, 1936.

In his letter to the President Mr Mullen, who was the Roosevelt floor manager at the Democratic national convention in Chicago and who helped Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes get into the cabinet, said that he did not want his law practice and position on the party's national committee to embarrass the administration.

Roosevelt Appreciates Motives.

Mr. Mullen pointed out that legislation is pending before congress to make legal practice by national committeemen before government departments illegal. President Roosevelt has endorsed these measures. In view of these facts, Mr. Mullen wrote, he deemed it wise that he resign from the national committee. He scoffed at press reports that his activities have been embarrassing the administration.

In his reply, President Roosevelt declared that he appreciated Mr. Mullen's motives in resigning and was sure of the latter's continued loyalty.

The President acknowledged having talked over with Mullen the question of his legal practice in the capital last October, a fact mentioned by Mullen in his letter.

Mullen is the last of the national committee who are now practicing law here to quit the party's high command.

Early Active for Roosevelt.

His lingering despite White House hints has caused much comment and he recently has been under fire from Gov. Charles Bryan of Nebraska for allegedly getting large fees from two power projects in Nebraska for which the public works administration put up 15 million dollars.

Potent in Democratic circles and a pre-convention Roosecrat, Mullen is the only one of the resigning committeemen to draw a personal acknowledgment from the President.

Secretary Ickes admits being indebted to Mr. Mullen for his position in the cabinet and most federal appointees in Nebraska are similarly indebted.

Reports are that Mullen, who was ambitious to become attorney general and who was offered a federal judgeship by the President, may run for the senate, opposing Gov. Bryan.

Denies Any Impropriety.

When Gov. Bryan assailed Mr. Mullen last month over his fees in the Nebraska easy money projects, Secretary Ickes found himself in the position of having to defend the actions of a "political lawyer," one of the class against whose activities he has been more than stern.

The governor implied pretty broadly that Mr. Mullen might be getting more than routine legal fees for his endeavors on behalf of the PWA power and irrigation enterprises, but Secretary Ickes insisted that the national committeeman had made a clean breast of his legal connections and that they impressed the interior chief as quite proper.

In declining the federal bench Mr. Mullen wrote:

"My view is that in these stern and tragic times and until your program has been made effective I can render greater service to you and to your administration as a private citizen than I can in any office."

HOUSE VOTES TO GIVE LIQUOR TAX TO THE SCHOOLS

Gov. Horner Flouted Offers Substitute.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—Gov. Horner announced tonight that he favored and would aid in the passage of legislation to increase the state common school fund by 10 million dollars through a diversion of city and county gasoline taxes.

The announcement followed an open rebellion in the lower house against the governor earlier and the passage of the Schnackenberg bill providing for diversion of state liquor taxes to the school fund. In a special message Gov. Horner had opposed this legislation, but Democrats and Republicans piled up an overwhelming vote of 110 to 2 in favor of the bill.

Summons Democratic Leaders.

Democratic leaders were summoned to the governor's office for a lengthy conference following the house action.

"We have decided to take a portion of the gas taxes for school relief throughout the state," asserted Gov. Horner when he emerged from the conference."

As outlined by the governor approximately half a cent would be taken from each cent that now goes to the cities and counties of the state as their share of the gas tax revenue. The cent which goes to the state from this tax would not be touched.

The common school fund of the state under the present law is $10,500,000. Chicago's share of this amount is $3,200,000. Adding $10,000,000 to the fund would increase the Chicago allotment by $3,000,000. Grants to other school districts of the state would increase proportionately.

Rush Drafting of New Bill.

The task of drafting the bill for introduction in the house tomorrow went on late tonight. Gov. Horner said he hoped that it would go to second reading in the house tomorrow, to third reading Thursday, and passage Friday. The bill will then start in the senate next week, according to the plan.

The governor was obviously nettled by the action of the lower house.

"That bill is a delusion and a snare," he said, referring to the Schnackenberg measure. "I won't mention any names, but the proponents were those who voted against the liquor bill which provided the revenues.

"I will give further assurance that every cent of the $10,500,000 original school fund appropriation will be paid, and as taxes come in the school districts will receive nearly twelve million dollars, which is due from the fund for previous years."

Expects Reconsideration Today.

Of the Schnackenberg bill Gov. Horner said he hoped the house would reconsider the vote tomorrow.

Before recessing today Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski [Dem., Chicago] made a formal announcement that an attempt would be made to reconsider at tomorrow's session. Seventy-seven votes will be needed for this action.

The bill proposing diversion of the state's liquor revenues to the school fund was sponsored by Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago], minority leader.

Horner Asks Speedy Action.

In his special message to the lower house Gov. Horner had urged the representatives to provide new revenues for the schools of the state with all possible speed. Then he stated:

"The state must rely on the retailers' occupation tax and also the liquor tax to carry it through the year, and the diversion of these funds is not feasible. . . . For the first time in years the state is operating on a balanced budget, but if its present revenues are diverted to other purposes than those now assigned, that balance will be destroyed."

The message also stated that the governor had heard that some of the members were desirous of recessing until after April 10 when the primaries are held.

This brought Schnackenberg to his feet.

"The charge has been made that we want to get home for the campaign," asserted Schnackenberg, "but

Two attachés at the Crown Point jail were locked up late yesterday on charges of aiding and abetting in the escape last Saturday morning of John Dillinger, machine gun murderer.

The Indiana authorities thus gave their sanction to the widespread belief that the getaway of Dillinger was an "inside job" and would not have been possible without assistance from some of the jail employés.

Deputy and Turnkey Jailed.

Deputy Sheriff Ernest Blunk, in charge of finger printing prisoners at the jail, and Turnkey Sam Cahoon, 64 years old, who sometimes doubled in the jail as both prisoner and employé, were accused of helping Dillinger to escape in formal affidavits filed before Judge William J. Murray of the Lake county Criminal court.

Both were placed in cells at the jail, but Blunk was later released by Judge Murray on his own recognizance.

At South Bend, James R. Fleming, federal district attorney for northern Indiana, asked that the department of justice assign men to investigate the transport of a stolen car by Dillinger across a state line. He also announced that no federal prisoners would be sent to the Crown Point jail "while Lillian Holley is sheriff." United States Marshal A. W. Hosinski described the jail as inefficiently guarded.

Special Guards at Banks.

Dillinger enjoyed his fourth day of freedom yesterday while Chicago and the middle west waited apprehensively. At any moment the desperado, believed by this time to have joined some of his gang, was expected to stage one of his reckless bank raids in search of funds with which to facilitate his movements about the country.

The ninety-six Chicago and Cook county banks were under special guard, especially after a report was received at the detective bureau that Dillinger planned to hold up the National Builders bank at Wacker drive and North La Salle street. Plain clothes men, heavily armed and with instructions to shoot down Dillinger upon sight, waited in and about the bank throughout the day without result.

Many False Reports.

Squads of police rushed about the city, answering more than 100 reports, all of which proved to be false, that Dillinger and a woman companion had been seen in various places. The official sheriff's car in which Dillinger left Crown Point was found abandoned in front of 1057 Ardmore avenue on Monday. A Chicago policeman had also seen Dillinger on two occasions Saturday afternon and given chase, only to lose him both times.

Last night twenty-five armed policemen visited the Rokeby hotel at 3831 Rokeby street to investigate a rumor that Dillinger had been seen there. No trace of the fugitive was found.

There was also the usual flood of rumors that the Indiana assassin had been seen in other states. He was reported seen Monday evening in Mason City, Ia., and in Youngstown, O.

RHETA'S SLAYER CALM AS SHE HEARS VERDICT

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop was found guilty last night of the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta Wynekoop. The jury fixed her sentence at 25 years in prison.

The jury required only ten minutes' deliberation to determine her guilt. The vote stood eleven to one on the first ballot and became unanimous on the second.

Two jurors stood out for the death penalty until almost the end of the hour spent in fixing her penalty. At one time the voting ran eight to four for life imprisonment until, a majority being hungry for supper, they compromised on 25 years with the reflection that the 63 year-old physician could not live to regain her freedom under that penalty.

Doctor Receives Verdict Calmly.

The invalid Dr. Wynekoop, her once notable reputation at last destroyed, received her sentence with the same stoic calm with which she confronted suspicious police the night of last Nov. 21 when they took her into custody after finding Rheta's chloroformed, bullet-pierced body in a blanket on the doctor's operating table at the forbidding Wynekoop home at 3406 West Monroe street.

In fear lest the shock might cause her death in court, Judge Harry B. Miller had ordered the jail physician to stand by with a strong heart stimulant as the clerk read the verdict. Dr. Alice didn't need it.

A moment after the verdict was read before a crowd jamming the courtroom to suffocation she was wheeled away to an anteroom to be consoled by her daughter, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, and her son, Walker.

They chafed her marble white hands and whispered endearing words to the passive, inert woman. They were the words of endearing children to a mother, but the children forbore to speak of the question of guilt just legally decided.

Renews Denial of Guilt.

It was the mother who took the consolation rôle, reassuring her son and daughter with renewed protests of her innocence. She disengaged their ministering hands to pat their heads.

"Go home, now children, and sleep," she whispered. "Your mother is not guilty. No, not guilty."

"It's a stench of a verdict," Walker gritted in response to a reporter's question. "I'm getting a $5,000 loan on some property tomorrow. We'll appeal."

"O! What can I say. Don't be silly," was Dr. Catherine's comment. "Let's duck out the back way, Walker, and get away from this mob."

Court Packed All Day.

The "mob" had packed Judge Miller's court all day and overflowed in the corridors, while Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty and Defense Attorneys W. W. and Milton Smith delivered five hours of final argument.

It was the plea of the Smiths that Dr. Alice was just a misunderstood mother-in-law, who could not have slain Rheta, the girl she loved, but whom the state, in a terrible blunder, had wrongly accused in place of some other killer—perhaps Rheta's philandering husband, Earle Wynekoop, perhaps a prowler. They also advanced a strong suggestion that the unhappy Rheta might have committed suicide.

So far as the jury was concerned their insinuations were fruitless, as an account of the deliberations from one of the jurymen revealed.

Defense Lawyers Stunned.

Defense counsel were caught unprepared and admittedly were stunned by the quickness of the verdict. Prosecutor Dougherty jubilantly pronounced the twelve jurors "a sensible, hard boiled jury, of whom we ought to have more."

Ten of the jurors were young men, two middle aged. The oldest of the twelve, Fred L. Oviatt, 10207 South Peoria street, a factory foreman, who happens to be the same age as Dr. Alice, was chosen foreman.

"We took the first ballot a minute after the bailiff locked us up," the juror said. "The foreman called for a vote on the question of guilt or innocence. Eleven hands were raised for guilty.

ROBBER SHOOTS CAR CONDUCTOR; RIDERS PERILED

Charles Gordon, 59 years old, 4709½ Maypole avenue, conductor on a Lake street car, was shot and possibly fatally wounded early today by a robber who boarded his car at St. Louis avenue. A dozen passengers looked on, spellbound, as the bandit fired five times at the conductor.

When the man stepped onto the rear platform and demanded money Gordon, instead of obeying him, ran into the car. The bandit pursued, shooting, several of his shots passing over the heads of the passengers. Gordon fell near the front end of the car. He was taken to the Robert Burns hospital, where it was said a bullet had passed through his abdomen. The gunman left the car after the shooting and was driven away by a confederate in an automobile.

MELZAR DELANO GETS A SHOCK WITH TAX BILL

When Melzar Delano, 832 East 51st street, yesterday received his 1932 real estate tax bill for the house and lot he owns at 9376 Kreiter avenue, he recalled that his tenant, John Ogren, had failed to pay rent for several months.

Leisurely he drove over, intending to ask for a partial payment at least to help him with the tax bill. Arrived in front of the Kreiter avenue address, he gaped in astonishment for he saw a vacant lot.

Neighbors informed him that the Ogrens had moved out last February and other residents of the neighborhood, needing firewood in the cold weather, had carried away the small frame house bit by bit.

Brazil May Force Women to Sign for Army Service

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 6.—(AP)—A provision in the proposed Brazilian constitution making military registration a prerequisite to voting, without regard to sex, drew the ire today of the Society for Feminine Progress. The organization urged the adoption of an article guaranteeing women's suffrage without military registration. Women obtained the vote in 1932, but a subsequent constitutional proposal would make women subject to war service as nurses and clerks.

Teachers' College Student Slain Through Mistake

Charleston, Ill., March 6.—(AP)—Hershel Petty, 20, a student at the Illinois State Teachers' college here, was shot and killed tonight when mistaken by a sheriff's posse for a man who earlier in the evening had set fire to a barn.

Four Killed as Air Liner Falls in Storm

Petersburg, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—Hugh Sexton, aviation editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and three other men were killed this evening when the American Airways plane in which they were riding from St. Louis to Chicago crashed in a field four miles north of Petersburg. The accident occurred during a snowstorm.

The other victims were Walter Hallgren, 3300 West 66th place, Chicago, pilot; G. H. Waetjen, 18 East 41st street, New York, head of an advertising agency, and W. N. Bell of Columbus, O.

The plane was a 10 passenger Pilgrim, powered by a Pratt & Whitney 575 horsepower hornet motor.

Runs Into Storm.

Taking off from St. Louis at 5:42 p. m., the plane ran into heavy weather fifty miles southwest of Petersburg, which is approximately 110 miles from St. Louis. Hallgren, who had more than 8,000 hours of flying to his credit, notified his office in Chicago by radio that visibility was only an eighth of a mile and that ice was forming on the tail and wings of his ship.

A message for him to go back to St. Louis was sent him, the airways officials said, but there was no acknowledgement from the pilot that he had received the message. Residents of Petersburg noted that the plane seemed to be in distress. It was flown over the town several times, in various directions, as if a place for a landing was being sought.

Witness Tells of Crash.

"I heard the plane overhead and went out to see what would happen," he said. "The plane was only a little way up, about 500 feet, and it looked like the pilot was trying to rise.

"It seemed to me that all at once the motor stopped. The plane came down lower. It barely missed a hedge. Then I heard it crash. I ran over with a flashlight and found the machine with its nose buried in the mud. All the men in it were dead, killed instantly."

Pilot Prevents Fire.

Airway officials said that Hallgren had apparently kept his head, shutting off his motor to prevent a fire if there was a smash as he landed. He had been flying the route since 1928, and carried mail until the recent government order to transfer this duty to the army. The route was the first in the country organized for mail carrying and was opened April 15, 1926, Charles A. Lindbergh being the pilot for the original sacks of letters. Until tonight there had been no serious accident on the run.

Mr. Sexton had been in St. Louis today visiting his mother, Mrs. Lottie F. Sexton, and his brother, Russell, 4961 McPherson avenue. He was to have resumed his duties with THE TRIBUNE tomorrow.

NATIVE OF SEYMOUR.

Born in Fairfield, Ill., Mr. Sexton was 29 years old. With his parents he resided abroad for six years in his youth, attending the Sorbonne in Paris. His first newspaper experience was in St. Louis, with the Globe-Democrat.

Col. Lindbergh's exploit in spanning the Atlantic fanned Sexton's enthusiasm for aviation and he took training in flying, becoming an able pilot himself. Since joining THE TRIBUNE he followed closely the development of safety devices on planes, and was also greatly interested in the commercial aspects of flying. Mr. Sexton successfully managed the American air races in Chicago last July 1, 2, and 3. He was unmarried.

HUNGARIAN MIDGETS GET ORGANIZED; ADOPT RACIAL PURITY LAW

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, March 6.—Chancellor Hitler could not have foreseen when he started his German racial purity campaign how far it would spread, nor could the Hungarian revisionist propagandists when they started their "justice for Hungary" campaign have imagined who was going to adapt it—Hungary's midgets—for their own uses.

With "justice for dwarfs" inscribed on their banners, the smallest Hungarians, headed by a fuehrer (leader), two and a half feet high, have formed a national union of Hungarian midgets and drawn up a program.

The first article is "racial purity." Hitler objects to Nordics marrying Jews. The "submen"—dwarfs—demand a law forbidding contamination of their strain by marriage with those who look to them like supermen—persons of normal stature. The 250 midgets of Hungary have all joined the league. Fifty of them can trace their dwarfdom back to a maternal grandmother. The others are midgets by reason of accident or ill health.

The National Union of Hungarian Dwarfs has convened an international congress to meet in Budapest, 1935.

quittal said he couldn't believe she killed Rheta for $3,500. The rest of us showed him in three minutes that it wasn't for $3,500, the amount of the mortgage on the Wynekoop home, but for $12,000, the amount of insurance she carried on Rheta.

"We took another ballot. Twelve hands went up for guilty. That was that. We passed on to the question of punishment.

Guilty on Second Ballot.

"The foreman called for another vote. Two hands went up for the death penalty. Five went up for life imprisonment, five for 14 years. One voting for life said he'd go for the electric chair, but that Dr. Wynekoop would probably welcome death and would be glad to have her troubles over in 30 or 60 days. He said he wanted her to sit in prison and take what was coming to her.

"Well, his point moved the two holdouts for the chair to switch to life imprisonment. On the next ballot we stood eight for life and four for 14 years. Some one mentioned her age and somebody else said we were being merciful to spare her life at all.

"Another juror said, 'This is murder; let's have an eye for an eye. It was a planned killing, not self-defense. Let's make it a verdict that will be a lesson to the community.' Well, everybody was getting hungry.

"We were 11 to 1 for life imprisonment now. One juror made mention of the possibility of a mistake—that Earle Wynekoop might have done it. He said it would be terrible if we sent her to the chair and Earle confessed afterward.

"Somebody suggested we take one more vote and eat. We took a vote on 25 years. Ten hands went up and, with a little urging, the other two went up. We had reached our verdict."

Taken from the Jail.

There was a pathetic fortitude in Dr. Alice's uplifted face as a bailif wheeled her from the jail to hear that verdict. No one studying her softened features and candid eyes could believe she had killed the girl, as the jury had found.

Judge Miller was in anxious conference with his bailif, Prosecutor Dougherty, Defense Attorney Frank J. Tyrrell, and Dr. Constantine Theodore, assistant medical officer of the jail. Dr. Theodore had taken her pulse after she refused a salad at supper and found it 110.

"That's pretty fast, and her heart is pretty shaky," the physician said. "I'm afraid of what may happen if the verdict goes against her."

Judge Miller summoned the press photographers' corps. He warned them against taking any pictures of Dr. Alice, but at their pleading, consented to one flash, to be taken after the verdict was read.

Judge Warns Court Crowd.

"We've got to be careful and have no unnecessary disturbance," he told the photographers, a warning he later repeated to the courtroom throng from the bench.

Dr. Alice was wheeled into an anteroom. The jury was waiting to be brought in, but Defense Attorney W. W. Smith was dining at a distant restaurant. Twenty minutes of delay ensued before he could be notified and summoned back to court.

James G. Gabriel, chief bailif of the Criminal court, had the milling crowd in charge. Dr. Alice's sister, Mrs. Mabel Fairclo of Sycamore, took a seat before the railing to be near her sister at her expected collapse.

Gabriel ordered her out and back of the rail, and occupied the seat himself. A few minutes later, however, he permitted Dr. Catherine and Walker Wynekoop to occupy seats near his to assist the defendant if she suffered a dangerous heart attack.

Hear Rumors of Verdict.

Dr. Theodore was stationed nearby, while bailifs stood ready to rush hot water and caffein for an injected stimulant if she fell. All the Wynekoop relatives had heard whispers of the likely verdict by now.

"Yes, I've heard rumors of 25 years," he mumbled to his sister. "Let's hope to God it isn't true."

Dr. Alice was still waiting in the anteroom scanning a newspaper. Dr. Theodore walked in to proffer a stimulant beforehand, but she declined.

"I feel pretty good now," she assured him with her sudden smile. "Let's wait until after. I may need it then."

Attorney W. W. Smith came in, panting from a dash up six flights of stairs. He went in to his client, patted her hand and asked her if she felt prepared for whatever might come. She nodded her head, then lifted sorrowful eyes and patted his shoulder.

Wheeled Into Courtroom.

The hour was 8:29. Dr. Alice was wheeled into the courtroom and permitted, for the first time since the trial began, to remain in her invalid's chair. The judge commanded silence and warned against a demonstration.

"I want nobody to move in this court until after the verdict has been read and the defendant and all interested parties have left the courtroom," he warned.

Not until this moment did Dr. Wynekoop get an inkling of the verdict, which whispers had carried all over the courtroom. Her daughter moved to relieve her aching anxiety.

Dr. Catherine raised both hands and flashed all fingers before her mother's eyes—ten years; another flash of fingers—twenty years, and a third flash of one hand—twenty-five years. Dr. Alice blinked her eyes rapidly and sighed.

Police Captain Comments.

Thomas J. Duffy, police captain in charge at Fillmore station the night a squad found Rheta's body and brought Dr. Alice in for questioning, peered around her shoulder to study her pallid face.

"The same calm face it was the night I first questioned her," he remarked. "The same steady eyes. The same firm mouth."

The judge ordered the jury foreman to pass the folded verdict to a deputy sheriff and for him in turn to pass it to the clerk. The clerk stood up to read.

Reads Verdict of Guilty.

"We, the jury, find the defendant guilty, as charged in the indictment, and fix her penalty at 25 years," he intoned. "We further find the defendant, Alice L. Wynekoop, to be about the age of 63 years."

A dozen camera bulbs flashed in a blinding glare. One photographer clambered to a table for another shot, arousing the judge's ire. A bailif confiscated his plates and took him into custody.

Dr. Alice was wheeled to the anteroom for the reunion with her children. The other relatives, her sister, Mrs. Fairclo; her brother, Ira M. Lindsay of Onarga, Ill., and others from Joliet, jostled through the crowd and crept downstairs to weep with one another.

Dr. Alice Sheds No Tears.

Only Dr. Alice and her children among the Wynekoop clan could find no tears to shed over the verdict. Women spectators, strange to the Wynekoop family, wept hysterically and cried, "Terrible! terrible!"

Alone in the jail once more, except for the matron, Mary Kennedy, Dr. Alice went resolutely to make her preparations for bed and chatted with the matron.

"There may be a new trial," she observed. "If not, I guess I can stand prison. I've got on pretty well here. It's all right, except for my poor children."

Case Given to Jury at 6:15 p. m.

The case went to the jury at 6:15 p. m. By 7:30 they had agreed, but an hour's delay ensued before Dr Alice was wheeled back to court and the lawyers returned from restaurants

In discussion in chambers, Dougherty proferred a manslaughter form of verdict for the jury's consideration in addition to the murder verdict. Defense counsel objected, and the judge sustained the objections.

In his final argument, Dougherty pleaded once more that the jury send Dr. Alice to the electric chair for "the cold blooded murder for gold of the girl she claimed to love."

"In a few minutes now," he told the 12 solemn men, "the fate of this woman will be in your hands alone. When you return your verdict and the clerk of the court has inscribed it in imperishable records and the sheriff prepares to execute your judgment on this defendant, you and I can say—"

Dougherty paused to point dramatically at the gray faced, black clad physician, huddled in her chair.

"We can say, may God have mercy on you, Dr. Wynekoop," he concluded, bowed, and sat down.

Answers Defense Arguments.

Earlier Dougherty had to meet the contention of the defense that Dr. Alice was just a misunderstood mother-in-law, who lavished her fondest attention on Rheta, "whom she never could have slain."

He had to meet W. W. Smith's insinuation that some one else had killed Rheta, perhaps her philandering husband, Earle, perhaps a prowler, perhaps Rheta, herself. Dougherty argued that by these tactics Dr. Alice was only convicting herself.

"She professed to love Rheta," he declaimed. "Yet, she sits there and allows her counsel to insinuate that Rheta was a morbid, half crazy girl, who might have killed herself to spite her mother-in-law. She claims to love Earle. Yet she sat by placidly while her lawyers tried to tell you he might have done the killing, when we all know he was miles away.

"Earle Not a Defendant."

"I'm not arguing Earle's entire innocence. I am convinced he knew her intent. But he was not present at the killing—so he's not a defendant on trial.

"We'll agree that Dr. Wynekoop is a tragic figure here. But yours is not to pity but to judge. When Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop is summoned before the higher court, perhaps in the infinity of His mercy, her Maker may find in the defendant's past good cause for forgiveness of her crime. But such a judgment is not for you.

"She had character witnesses, yes. But history is replete with examples of persons esteemed before their one great mistake. On the night of the last supper not one of the twelve apostles would have hesitated to vouch for Judas, perhaps not even the Master, Himself."

Closing Defense Argument.

Closing the defense of Dr. Alice, W. W. Smith pounded the table a hundred times, snapped the fatal pistol at his own back, gulped ten tumblers of water, perspired and turned purple as he strove to drive home the points on theories on suicide, a prowler, or Earle Wynekoop.

He roared his condemnation of Dougherty as author of "a dastardly, double crossing outrage—the indictment of that dear old lady, who loved Rheta as a mother."

"The eyes of women from coast to coast are on you gentlemen," he cried in a vibrating voice. "Women who remember Dr. Wynekoop caring for their little children, aye, and saving their lives.

"And Dougherty," he almost screamed, "would brand her as a cold blooded fiend—she who took out that insurance on Rheta only to rid the poor child of an obsession that she had tuberculosis."

Snaps Pistol at Own Back.

"We're not trying to tell you Rheta Wynekoop killed herself," he said. "But Dougherty illustrated with this pistol—illustrated in a clumsy, grotesque, and damnably deceptive fashion the impossibility of suicide."

Smith switched the weapon to his left hand. He pressed it to his back again.

Police Baffled in Their Early Investigation.

At 10 p. m. on last Nov. 21, a squad of police entered an old stone dwelling at 3406 Monroe street, and encountered the most baffling mystery of many years. There, on an operating table in a basement room, they found the body of Mrs. Rheta Gardner Wynekoop, 22 years old, daughter-in-law of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, widely known physician.

The young woman lay on her left side, a blanket tucked to her chin. When this covering was removed it was discovered that she wore only a wisp of lingerie which had been pulled down from her shoulders and rolled about her waist. In her back at the level of her heart and a few inches to the left of her backbone was a bullet wound. Later the bullet was found to have passed through her lung and lodged just under her breast.

Gauze Covers Gun.

The gun from which the bullet had been fired lay propped against a pillow a few inches from her head. It was covered with a piece of gauze. At her face lay a chloroform mask which bore traces of having been used recently.

At the doorway the police were met by three women, Dr. Alice Wynekoop, owner of the home in which the tragedy occurred, her daughter, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, who is a physician, and Miss Enid Hennessey, a school teacher who had lived in the Wynekoop home for ten years. Also in the house was Thomas J. Ahern, an undertaker, who had called the police.

Dr. Alice Wynekoop said her son, Earle, husband of the dead girl, was on a motor trip to the west. She said that she had found the body of her daughter-in-law.

No Sign of Intruders.

Events then began to move quickly. A search of the premises disclosed that no doors or windows were open, nor was there anything else to indicate that the young woman had been slain by an intruder. An examination by a coroner's physician disclosed that the wound was in such a position that it would have been difficult for her to have shot herself.

Inquiry for Earle disclosed that he had left Chicago on Nov. 13 with a friend for Kansas City. Discovery of a telegram delivered the evening of the murder revealed that Earle was in Peoria that day. When questioned by police Dr. Wynekoop admitted that her son had gone to Kansas City but had returned to Chicago on Nov. 18. He had visited his mother at a secret rendezvous but had not informed his wife of his return. He hed departed again for the west on the morning of the day his wife was slain.

Dr. Wynekoop was questioned by various police officials in her home and twice when she voluntarily appeared at the Fillmore street police station on Nov. 22 and on Nov. 23. At noon on the 23d Earle appeared at his mother's home and was taken into custody by police. A few hours later Dr. Wynekoop was formally arrested.

The police discovered that Dr. Wynekoop had insured Rheta's life with two companies a short time before the girl was killed. Two double indemnity policies which would yield her $12,000 had been issued to the doctor.

With a possible motive established Dr. Alice Wynekoop and Earle were subjected to questioning which lasted many hours. Finally on the morning of Nov. 24 Dr. Wynekoop made a statement to police, relating that she had taken Rheta to the basement operating room the day of the slaying to give her a physical examination.

In the statement Dr. Wynekoop said that she had given the girl chloroform to dull the pain. Midway through the examination, the doctor said, she found that the girl had collapsed and her heart had stopped. In a moment of panic, the doctor said, she got the revolver which Earle had given her a week earlier, and fired a shot into the dead girl's back, "as the best way out."

Earle then made a "confession" of the murder but later he admitted that it was spurious and given only to save his mother.

Dr. Wynekoop was indicted for murder on Nov. 29 and sent to the county jail.

She first went to trial last January in the court of Judge Joseph B. David, but the case was halted when she collapsed. Before that she had repudiated her "confession" statement, declaring it had been forced from her. The trial which ended in last night's verdict began on Feb. 19.

REPORT KIDNAPING PLOT ON EDSEL FORD; GUN GUARDS HIRED

Miami Beach, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—A reported threat to kidnap Edsel Ford, Detroit automotive magnate, two weeks ago, resulted in a hastily organized fishing trip to the Florida Keys with guards, armed with machine guns, as members of the party, a reliable source said tonight.

The reported threat was delivered in Detroit shortly before he came to Miami Beach Feb. 18. Some indication that a member or members of the kidnaping gang followed him here led to a request to Sheriff Coleman for protection, the informant said.

After five days in the Keyes, the party returned to Miami Beach and the guards dispersed.

Sheriff Coleman is not in the city and deputies said they knew nothing of the reported threat. Ford or members of his party could not be reached.

STATE ARCHIVES BEFORE JURY IN RACKET TRIAL

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

The name of Murray Humphreys, fugitive gangster, was injected repeatedly yesterday into the picture of Chicago's violence ridden service industries which the prosecution in the racket conspiracy case is drawing for the jury before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court.

Over prolonged objections by defense counsel, the prosecution succeeded in introducing documents from the office of the secretary of state in Springfield, showing that on Oct. 13, 1932, Attorney Morris I. Kaplan, a defendant, obtained a charter there for the Chicago Association of Cleaners and Dyers.

Activities of Kaplan, the prosecution charged, formed one of the principal links of the alleged conspiracy affecting the cleaning and dying, laundry and linen supply, and carbonated beverage industries.

Kaplan was attorney for the Chicago Laundry Owners' association, through which institution of the "Industry stabilization plan" drawn by Attorney Aaron Sapiro resulted in the indictment of Sapiro, T. Henry Klein, president of the association, and officials of the Laundry and Dyehouse Drivers' union in the present case. Kaplan was also secretary of the Chicago Linen Supply association.

Evidence Still to Come.

Kaplan likewise was attorney for the Cleaners and Dyers' institute, ruled by Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, on which charges of racketeering in that industry center, and he was connected with a similar institute in the carbonated beverage business, about which the jury is yet to be told.

The significance of the charter obtained at Springfield, and its link with Humphreys, who was named a defendant in the case, goes back to the wire tapping testimony given several weeks ago by Clarence L. Converse, federal investigator.

Converse tapped Humphreys' telephone wire, and testified that on the day the charter was issued, Humphreys called Kaplan, asked if it had been issued, and was assured that it was on its way to Chicago.

The prosecution charged that the Chicago Association of Cleaners and Dyers was designed to replace the Cleaners and Dyers institute, with Attorney Sapiro replacing Dr. Squires as industry dictator.

Policeman on Stand.

Following the testimony of Oscar Trampe of Golconda, Ill., a former employé of the secretary of state, who identified the documents relating to the charter, Joseph Healy, a policeman assigned to the state's attorney's office, took the witness stand.

Questioned by Assistant Prosecutor William E. Crawford, Healy testified that he, too, had tapped Kaplan's telephone wire, or, rather, that he had used the same tap installed by Converse in 1932. He heard a conversation by Kaplan on March 23, 1932, he testified.

Attorney Benedict J. Short, counsel for Kaplan, interposed an objection, then, and a lengthy argument followed before Judge Finnegan permitted Healy to finish his story. The policeman testified that a man giving the name of Knott, who, the prosecution contends, was George L. Knott, vice president of the Drivers' union and a defendant, called Kaplan and instructed him to rent a room in the Bismarck hotel for a conference the following day. Another witness will testify today, prosecutors said, that on the following day Humphreys called Kaplan and arranged to attend the hotel room conference.

During the morning session of court Bernard T. Masterson, owner of a linen supply company and former treasurer of the Chicago Linen Supply association, finished his story of the purchase by the association in 1931 of the Boulevard Linen Supply company.

Masterson testified Monday that the Boulevard company, a cut price concern, had been purchased by the association after the Metropolitan Linen Supply company, a so-called "bumper" company financed by the association, had been unable to drive the Boulevard company out of business by cutting prices to Boulevard customers.

SENATE PASSES FULL STRENGTH NAVY MEASURE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—A full treaty navy was assured the United States when the senate today by a vote of 65 to 18 approved President Roosevelt's program of building the navy up to the full tonnage allowed under the London agreement of 1930.

Overriding the protests of "the little navy group," Democrats and Republicans banded together to pass the administration's naval replacement bill authorizing the construction of a 15,200 ton aircraft carrier, approximately 65 destroyers totaling 99,200 tons, some 29 submarines totaling 35,530 tons and the airplanes [from 650 to 1,250] required to complete the fleet's air equipment.

Covers 5 Year Period.

Planned to cover a five year period, the replacement program will cost approximately 475 million dollars in all for the projected vessels, and 95 millions more if the maximum number of planes are built.

A last moment motion to reconsider the bill held up its final passage but this is scheduled to be accomplished tomorrow. Approval of the measure by the President will see the United States launched on the largest naval construction program since the war, in an endeavor to make up for the policy of delay which went with the past decade's fruitless attempts to persuade foreign nations to agree to reduction of armaments.

There are now under construction the following vessels:

Under regular appropriations—One aircraft carrier, 13,800 tons; 6 eight inch gun cruisers, 60,000 tons; 1 six inch gun cruiser, 10,000 tons; 12 destroyers, 19,400 tons, and 2 submarines, 2,260 tons.

Twenty Destroyers Under Way.

With public works funds—Two aircraft carriers, 40,000 tons; 1 eight inch gun cruiser, 10,000 tons; 3 six inch gun cruisers, 30,000 tons; 20 destroyers, 31,400 tons, and 4 submarines, 5,200 tons.

The 1935 naval appropriation bill carries funds to start work on 1 eight inch gun cruiser, 10,000 tons, and 3 six inch gun cruisers, 30,000 tons.

With the vessels carried in the replacement bill approved today the United States will have under construction, appropriated for, or authorized, 151 fighting ships, aggregating 411,990 tons.

The departure on a new naval policy was hailed by such administration spokesmen as Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, Democratic whip, and Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, majority leader.

Senator Lewis pointed out that money spent on a sufficient navy was money economically spent, since it enabled the American army to be reduced to a minimum.

Britain May Demilitarize Islands Off American Coast

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 6.—Great Britain has no intention of trading any West Indian or Pacific islands to the United States in lieu of the war debt, but it is not so certain that Britain might not agree to demilitarization of its West Indian possessions.

This was brought out in the house of commons today when Prime Minister MacDonald was aked whether, in view of the apprehension in Bermuda, the Solomon Islands, and the British West Indies, he would give assurance that in no circumstances would the British government agree to a settlement of the war debt due the United States by ceding territory from any part of the British empire.

Plan Big Navy Program.

The prime minister replied that he thought it was self-evident that there could, in no circumstances, be any question of such an arrangement.

P. W. Donner, Conservative, persisted in the questioning and asked whether MacDonald had discussed with the American government the question of dismantling the British naval bases in the West Indies and Bermuda. MacDonald ignored this question.

Meantime, Britain is planning to spend $284,750,000, an increase of $15,000,000 over 1933, on its navy in the coming year. Naval estimates published today provide for extensive new building. The program includes four 9,000 ton cruisers, one 5,200 ton cruiser, one destroyer leader, eight destroyers, one aircraft carrier and three submarines, and an increase in personnel by 2,038 to a total of 92,338.

Eden Reports on European Trip.

The disarmament committee of the British cabinet met today and heard a partial report from Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, on his recent trip to European capitals in search of a disarmament formula. Absence of a French statement as to their attitude on Capt. Eden's proposals prevented a complete report.

Rumors are rife that the French have flatly rejected the British proposal for partial rearmament of Germany and that the Italian proposal for stabilization of armaments at the present level now holds first place.

There was some discussion about the date for the next meeting of the steering committee of the Geneva disarmament conference. The time most mentioned is about April 10, but no decision has been taken.

Deputies Pass French Program.

PARIS, March 6.—(AP)—The 1934 French naval program calling for expenditures of 913,000,000 francs (currently about $58,892,800) and the construction of four vessels was speedily approved today by the chamber of deputies naval committee.

The expenses will be spread over the budgets of the next five years. It was emphasized that the new craft will replace old ships past the age limit provided for in navy treaties.

The committee sanctioned the construction of a 26,000 ton man of war, which will be the sister ship to the cruiser Dunkerque, now under construction.

Also included in the naval program are two new submarines and a torpedo destroyer. The projects are an answer to the 10,000 ton "pocket" cruisers of Germany.

Plan Flying Battleship.

Preparations for a greatly augmented air force, meanwhile, are progressing. A three year construction program is planned.

A "flying battleship," armed with three machine guns, and a huge, speedy bombing plane are being added to the air force as new types to raise its power of pursuit and attack.

The seaplane, the biggest fighting craft of its kind in France, is capable of carrying 14 tons of useful loads. It also will serve as a model for planes to be used in the French air mail service to South America and passenger service across the Mediterranean.

Propelled by two motors of 2,400 horsepower in all, it demonstrated its ability, in recent tests at Le Havre, to speed fully loaded at 155 miles an hour for more than 1,100 miles. Quick on the getaway, it rises a mile in the air within seven minutes.

The monsterlike new bomber, powered with four engines, is designed, like the seaplane, for rapid climbing and flight over a long range with a heavy load of ammunition. Its details have not been announced, pending completion of trials.

Italy Hints at Naval Race.

ROME, March 6.—(AP)—A naval race between France and Italy was hinted at today in the newspaper Giornale d'Italia. It commented on an article by Hector Bywater, navy expert of a London paper, who said Italy would not lay down any new program this year as a friendly gesture to further arms talks.

"It is evident that Bywater's article was written before the French preparations for the construction of the second Dunkerque become known; this construction considerably augments the total tonnage of the French navy," said the Giornale d'Italia.

Under the new British disarmament plan, Italy would be allowed to build a 25,000 ton battleship to counterbalance the huge French Dunkerque. Italian navy men said, however, that Italy would take advantage of the plan only if France continued to build.

SHOW INDUSTRY OPPOSED TO NEW HOUR-PAY PLAN

Speakers Fear Decree Will Kill NRA.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Industry, as represented by some 4,000 members of NRA code authorities present in Washington, seems well nigh unanimous against the President's proposal for a general shortening of the work week and a general raising of minimum wages.

One after another the speakers at the public hearing devoted to consideration of wage and hour problems declared that to disturb the balance of industry further at this time would be a blow to continued recovery, and that it would be not even a temporary boon to relieve unemployment.

Early Reveals Support.

From some other quarters came evidences of support to President Roosevelt's stand. Stephen T. Early, the presidential press secretary, announced today that hundreds of telegrams received at the White House were generally laudatory in tone, and that he had not seen a single critical message.

The presence of representatives from the several hundred code authorities in Washington and their attendance at and participation in the meetings here have given critics of the NRA an unusual opportunity to observe the workings of the program.

The first reaction encountered is of the vastness of the burocracy set up under the recovery act, with thousands of citizens abruptly elevated into officials with authority over their colleagues in industry.

For the most parts the various assemblages of industrial delegates look like typical conventions of trade associations, except that the men seem more confused, more unaware of what it's all about, more sober.

Wide Difference of Opinion.

In mingling with the groups the observer finds the most bewildering differences of opinion. The 4,000 delegates represent approximately 300 separate codified industries in the country. Conversation with scattered clusters of the delegates shows they have multitudinous problems, all different.

One small manufacturer wants hours shortened because he figures with his particular plant and setup he can get an advantage over the big fellows in his line. A typical representative of big business wants a wage differential between north and south sections wiped out because his biggest rival in the industry, located in the south, has begun underselling him and taking his customers away.

The difficulties and problems are legion, and the feeling gets abroad that if the delegates were to stay in Washington forever there would not be time for ironing out present troubles, to say nothing of those which crop out from day to day.

Practically all of the speakers have an ax to grind and want the government, via the NRA controls, to grind it for them. Once in a while a voice is raised in a somewhat hopeless plea for the government "to let us alone."

One such was John W. O'Leary, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, now president of the machinery and allied products institute, and his plea drew a burst of applause.

The feeling among some of the delegates is that the NRA has gone sour; that it has lost its popular flavor and its punch, and that to make it still harsher in its demands upon industry will be the final straw.

Gen. Johnson has conceded 14 glaring needs for reform in his own administration and the delegates have voiced many others. It is generally believed that the whole plan must be revamped and the codes all done over, policies changed.

Basic Features Doubted.

The question is whether the NRA will weather the brunt of another venture into stormy seas, and, for that matter, some delegates raised doubts that the basic features of the NRA are wholly unworkable and that there is no possibility of enforcing government rule upon American business men who have gone for generations under a rule of the economy of natural laws and competition.

On the other hand, here and there are many delegates who are still imbued with the fervor of industry in partnership with business; of organized business driving out the unfair and dishonest fringe of crooks among them. These are striving to recruit the doubting ones behind the President and NRA.

These faithful ones take great comfort from yesterday's decision by the Supreme court upholding the emergency powers of the New Deal, and they charge the dissenters with warnings that since the power of the law is behind the President, they had best fall in line and help, rather than lag or hinder.

Fear NRA Collapse.

One of the opinions often voiced by the delegates is that if the administration puts through a Presidential order automatically boosting all minimum wages 10 per cent and shortening all work weeks 10 per cent, that the NRA will collapse entirely.

Their argument was that under present restrictions there is widespread cheating or "chiseling," as the President and Gen. Johnson have termed it, and that if the limitations on wages and hours become more stringent, to the extent of the 10 per cent proposed by Johnson, the violations of code provisions will become so general as to swamp the NRA.

Irwin S. Adams of the Jantzen Knitting mills, a member of the knitted outerwear code authority, said at the employment hearing today that proponents of a shorter work week assume stagnant business conditions.

If business recovers, he pointed out, the unemployment slack will gradually be taken up. Urging continuance of the present 40 hour week he said that to make it shorter would but increase the disparity between honest employers who comply with the codes and the chiselers who disregard them.

Some delegates said the Johnson proposal was like killing the goose that laid the golden eggs. Granting the NRA claim that the codes had given jobs to 3,000,000 in the past nine months, these delegates asserted the NRA administrator was wrong to assume more eggs or jobs could be squeezed out of industry without killing it.

Expert Shows Danger.

Fred H. Clausen, director of code activities of the farm equipment industry, said that reduction in basic weekly hours of any industry depending on agriculture for its market will result in less man hours and not more.

"The final decision as to the number of man hours of employment remains," he said, "not with the employer, but with the consumer. Shorter hours with higher pay means a higher price. When the only customer of an industry is the farmer and he cannot pay the higher price there is only one answer: less employment and not more."

Asserting there is a shortage of skilled workmen in many trades, R. R. Fauntleroy of St. Charles, Ill., testified that to reduce hours and raise wages would "defeat the back to work movement."

MRS. ESTHER BEERS.

Mrs. Esther Beers celebrated her 104th birthday on Monday evening at a dinner party attended by four generations of her family in the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. William B. White, 6514 Bosworth avenue. Mrs. Beers, who remains active and maintains an interest in Chicago criminal and political news and world events, related anecdotes of the Chicago she first saw 94 years ago when she came here with her parents. The city was then such a marshy and unpromising little settlement that her father soon drove on to Crystal Lake, where Mrs. Beers lived until nine years ago, when she came to reside with her granddaughter.

AL SMITH LEADS WAR ON NAZISM IN BOOK BY FOES OF HITLER

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—"For thousands of years the relations of the white races of the world have been governed by fundamental laws and customs which the Nazis denounce and sneer at," former Governor Alfred E. Smith writes in "Nazism: An Assault on Civilization," published by Smith & Haase.

The book is a symposium, including writings of William Green, Stephen S. Wise, Charles H. Tuttle, and John Haynes Holmes. It contains a preface by Senator Robert F. Wagner, and it was edited by Pierre Van Paassen and James Waterman Wise.

"A great many years of my life have been given over to fighting against the very things Hitler exalts," Mr. Smith writes in the book's final chapter, "The Challenge to America." "If his teachings prevail, then I and the millions who, like me, have fought for spiritual and political freedom have fought in vain.

TWO DYSENTERY VICTIMS SEEKING $600,000 IN SUIT

Dr. Clarence H. Boren and his wife, Gertrude, of Marinette, Wis., filed suit yesterday in the Superior court asking $300,000 damages from the Congress Hotel company and the same amount from Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health. The suit was based on the alleged fact that the couple contracted amebic dysentery in the hotel on Sept. 30, 1933.

Dr. Bundesen was made a defendant on the ground that he failed to give the proper warning that the food in the hotel might cause the dissemination of the disease.

When he was informed on the filing of the suit Dr. Bundesen stated that Dr. Roscoe R. Spencer of the United States public health service had investigated the amebic epidemic and had reported the department of health had done "everything humanly possible to control the outbreak," adding that Dr. Bundesen should be congratulated on his handling of the situation.

Dispatches from New Orleans last night stated that the Borens were being treated there. They could not be located.

WOMAN SAVED BY INHALATOR.

MOTOR CARS KILL THREE CHILDREN IN DAY; TOLL 219

Three children were killed by motor vehicles yesterday, one of them by the car of a hit and run driver. Kathlyn Thornley, 7 years old, 2022 North Le Claire avenue, died in St. Anne's hospital last evening an hour after she was struck in front of 2019 North Le Claire avenue. Police were given the license number of the car which sped away.

Roxy Bogoian, 7 years old, was instantly killed in front of her home at 171 North Elizabeth street. She had been playing near a large transport truck which was being loaded next door. The driver, Dale Burwell, 30 years old, of Columbus, O., was unaware of the accident until he was stopped by a pedestrian half a block from where the girl's body lay.

Walter Le Buy, 13 years old, 142d street and Winchester avenue, Harvey, was fatally injured when he stepped from behind a bus parked at 142d street and Lincoln avenue, Harvey, and was struck down by a passing car. He died several hours later at the Ingalls Memorial hospital. The driver of the car was Miss Katherine Mazias, 149th street and California avenue, Harvey. The three deaths increased the 1934 Cook county motor toll to 219.

BERWYN SLANDER SUIT IS REVERSED; ORDER NEW TRIAL

The Appellate court yesterday reversed a $5,000 judgment for slander obtained against Frank J. Broucek, commissioner of public works of Berwyn, by John H. Ehardt, police magistrate of the town, and remanded the case to the Circuit court for a new trial. The high court held that Judge Martin H. Finneran of Calumet City, who heard the case in the Circuit court, erred in not granting Broucek a new trial after the judgment had been entered against him by default.

Ehardt had accused Broucek of slandering him in radio speeches while both were campaigning for the police magistracy in 1930. Neither Broucek nor his attorney appeared on March 16, 1933, when the case was called before Judge Finneran and the judgment was entered on Ehardt's testimony. Broucek then filed an affidavit alleging he had not been served with notice of the hearing but Judge Finneran refused to set aside the judgment.

STEEL MAKERS, AUTO OFFICIALS TO FACE BOARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Because they are alleged to be breaking the spirit of the national industrial recovery act's labor provisions two of the country's largest industries, automobile manufacturers and steel makers, are to be summoned before the NRA compliance board.

This announcement was made today by William H. Davis, NRA compliance director, in a speech before the meeting of code authorities. The announcement was taken as a blow at company unions, although Davis did not mention them specifically.

Boost Company Unions.

The steel and automobile industries have been the two outstanding objectors to trade unionism in their plants under the NRA labor provisions. They are alleged to have encouraged formation of their own company unions to block unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Davis said that many of the labor representation plans drawn up by the steel and automobile industries were regarded as "continuing violations" of the labor sections of the NRA law. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA czar, had authorized him to say that the industries would be summoned to explain or change these plans, Mr. Davis declared.

The only objectionable labor provision which Mr. Davis named specifically was one requesting that no change be made in the self-organization of laborers without the consent of the employers.

Will Postpone Strikes.

Flint, Mich., March 6.—(AP)—James F. Dewey, conciliator for the national labor board, announced tonight that the threatened strike of employés of the Fisher Body company, had been postponed until after the national labor board conference with employers at Washington March 14.

Employés of the Buick Motor company took a similar action. Employés of the Hudson Motor Car company in Detroit, will consider the government's request for a postponement of the strike tomorrow night or Thursday.

The officers of the Fisher Body company employés adopted a resolution late this afternoon, according to Mr. Dewey, calling off the threatened walkout tomorrow morning. Buick employés were expected to join the Fisher walkout, but Mr. Dewey expects that their meeting will mean a postponement.

OPPOSE 6-HOUR DAY

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Representatives of the railroads charged before the senate interstate commerce committee today that the railroad brotherhood bill providing for a six hour day was a pay increase measure.

Sponsored by the railroad unions as a step toward increasing employment, the railroad companies' witnesses asserted there would be virtually no increase in train service employés, but some increase in other classes, if the bill became a law.

On the basis of 1930 conditions, according to J. Carter Fort, general solicitor of the Association of Railway Executives and the chief witness, the six hour day as called for by the bill would cost the railroads an additional 600 million dollars annually. On the basis of 1932 conditions, there would be an additional 365 million dollars annually, he said.

"This staggering burden would fall on the railroads at the most critical period in their history," Mr. Fort asserted. "To impose this enormous extra expense on the railroads when the money to meet it is not in hand or in sight would be, in our opinion, a reckless course to follow."

CHICAGO GIRL SIGNS CONTRACT FOR MOVIE PART

Miss Ethelreda Leopold, 19 years old, a platinum blonde Chicago girl, whose appearance in several fashion pictures which appeared in THE TRIBUNE first attracted attention to her, yesterday signed a contract to appear in motion pictures produced by Warner Brothers. Tonight she will leave for Hollywood, being the first Chicago girl in five years to have been given a contract by the movie concern on the basis of recommendation instead of the usual personal interview. She is expected to have a part in the cast of a new sound picture in which Ruby Keeler and Dick Powell are to be starred.

While working as a commercial model, Miss Leopold also attended the Chicago School of Expression. She was graduated from the Sullivan High school three years ago and subsequently took up the study of painting at the Art institute. She also is a singer and pianist. Her family resides at 1400 Lake Shore drive.

OFFERS AMENDMENTS TO EASE PASSAGE OF PATMAN BONUS BILL

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Representative John A. Martin [Dem., Colo.], a leader of the so-called "bonus bloc," introduced today amendments to the Putnam bill in the belief that they will make the immediate bonus payment measure even more attractive to the election minded members of the house than it is now. The vote is to be Monday. The chief amendment would provide that the bonus be paid at $50 a month.

Speaker Henry T. Rainey of Illinois and Majority Leader Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.] rely on President Roosevelt's emphatic veto threats to prevent passage of the bonus bill in the house, but neither is sanguine.

The house leadership is virtually reconciled to the upset of the administration plans. The senate, having defeated two bonus proposals this session, is relied upon to kill the legislation.

The vote in the house, however, will provide the first definite showdown on Mr. Roosevelt's power to control the congress. Previous White House defeats have been minor ones.

WOMAN NAMED AS U. S. JUDGE; FIRST IN HISTORY

Judge Allen Called a "Good Scout."

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Another precedent went by the boards today with President Roosevelt's appointment of Florence E. Allen of Cleveland as federal judge in the Circuit Court of Appeals. She is the first woman ever to be named to the federal bench.

JUDGE FLORENCE ALLEN.

Miss Allen's name has been sent to the senate. At present on the bench of the Ohio State Supreme court she was endorsed for the new federal position by Senator Robert Bulkley of Ohio. The Circuit Court of Appeals to which the President elevated her is second in ranking only to the Supreme court of the United States.

Smashes Precedents.

Since the beginning of her career, the 50 year old woman jurist has shattered precedents. She was the first woman assistant county prosecutor in Ohio, the first woman elected to the court of common pleas in that state, and the first woman to sit on the bench of a state Supreme court.

Miss Allen was admitted to the bar twenty years ago and attained considerable prominence almost immediately through her fight for the women of East Cleveland whose votes had been declared illegal. Later she was selected by tht Cleveland Street Railway Workers' union to arbitrate an industrial dispute.

In 1922 she was elected to the Ohio Supreme court after two years' service on the bench of the Cuyahoga county Common Pleas court.

Defeated for Senate.

Judge Allen's legal career, however, was not paralleled by her political efforts. In 1916 she was an unsuccessful candidate for the United States senate and in 1932 made vain attempt to get elected to the house of representatives.

A native of Salt Lake City, she is a former newspaper woman having served as foreign correspondent and on the editorial staff of a Cleveland paper.

In addition to Miss Allen, the President today appointed Mrs. Bernice Pyke of Cleveland as collector of customs there, and Frank P. Corrigan, likewise of Cleveland, to be minister to El Salvador. All must be confirmed by the senate.

'Good Scout,' Say Colleagues.

The woman who today was named to the federal Appellate bench at Cincinnati has long been known as an able jurist, a profound student and an ardent suffragist, but her colleagues on the Ohio Supreme court crown all these accomplishments with that human tribute "good scout."

SEIZED TRYING TO SELL STOLEN TAX WARRANTS

Police last night arrested Herial Woldenberg, 37 years old, 7136 Bennett avenue, a whisky salesman, after he offered to sell to a La Salle street brokerage house $1,800 worth of tax anticipation warrants which were reported stolen from the offices of the Book House for Children, 306 North Michigan avenue.

An employé of the broker's office noted the serial number of the stolen warrants and notified Carl Ohlin, secretary-treasurer of the book store, and the police.

Ohlin swore out a warrant charging Woldenberg with receiving stolen property and when the salesman returned later to complete the transaction he was taken into custody. He denied knowledge of the alleged theft of the warrants and said he had purchased them from men he knew as Leo Abrams and Jack Schwartz.

EX-SENATOR REED SEES FEDERAL BLOW TO PRESS

Fears Unified Control of News Channels.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., March 6.—[Special.]—Danger to the freedom of the American press if federal control of communication lines, as advocated by President Roosevelt, is enacted by congress was cited in an interview here today by former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri. Mr Reed is a Democrat leader.

The extent to which radio is controled and influenced by the government was pointed to by Reed as one of the hazards imminent to newspapers, if the government is permitted to take control or possession of telegraph and telephone lines. Such a plan, he said, would enable an administration in control of such lines of communication "largely to influence and circumscribe the dissemination of news."

Sees Lesson in Radio.

"A good illustration," he continued, "is the radio, which is employed many hours each week in disseminating arguments in favor of what the government is doing. I have no knowledge as to whether this propaganda is paid for or not, but if any one would want to present the other side of the question, and were to undertake to get as many hours for his side as is being used by government agencies, the bill would speedily run into millions of dollars."

"The result is," Reed asserted, "that the American people who might be called the great American jury—are in the position of a jury in court which hears only the attorney for the plaintiff who presents not only the arguments, but all the statements of fact. I do not say that any misuse has been made, but it is easy to see how it could occur.

For Open News Channels.

"There is nothing so important in a democracy as a free and fair dissemination of information. The telegraph, the telephone, and the radio have become almost as important as the press itself."

Reed, who was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in 1928, criticized the general principle of government in business.

"In any business that can be conducted by private companies, governmental management is almost invariably a mistake," he added. "Costs increase, and inefficiency in management inevitably results."

RUM VIOLATIONS MAY COST WOMAN $3,050 INSURANCE

Because Mrs. Florence S. McGinley, alias Florence Skeen, failed to tell an insurance company that she operated a speakeasy in prohibition times she may lose $3,050 in insurance on five pieces of jewelry taken by thieves. The Appellate court yesterday overruled an order by Judge David M. Brothers of the Circuit court that the Corporation of the Royal Exchange Assurance company should pay for the jewels, declaring that the concern should have been allowed to show Mrs. McGinley's business connections.

Mrs. McGinley, 32 years old, who lived at 19 Cedar street before going to Florida, her persent home, insured her gems with the Royal Exchange company after telling the agents she was a housewife and that her husband, James R. McGinley, was an executive of a steel company.

The insurance company said in its petition to the Appeals court that it had sought to show the Circuit court jury which heard the case that Mrs. McGinley was really Florence Skeen, that she had operated a speakeasy at 816 Cass street, and that on Nov. 24, 1928, she was arrested there and was subsequently sentenced to the Waukegan county jail for one year and fined $650 for selling liquor.

Strangles Self in Hospital with Cord of Heating Pad

Mrs. Victoria Anderson, 43 years old, 640 East 74th street, killed herself last evening in the German Deaconess hospital where she was under treatment for a leg infection. While her nurse was absent from her room Mrs. Anderson tied one end of a cord, taken from an electric heating pad, around her neck and attached the other end to the head of the bed. She then rolled from the bed and strangled herself. Her physician, Dr. George R. Nichols, 2419 West 61st street, said Mrs. Anderson had been despondent over her ailment, although it was of a minor nature.

France Agrees to Restore Quotas on Spanish Imports

PARIS, March 6.—(AP)—A treaty reinstating a considerable number of Spain's import quotas which France had reduced was signed today. A treaty renewing former conventions of commerce and navigation was also signed.

PITTMAN CLAIMS VOTES ENOUGH TO RATIFY ST. LAWRENCE CANAL

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt is assured of senate ratification of the St. Lawrence seaway treaty, according to Senator Pittman, who is in charge of the treaty. He said so after a careful canvass had been made of the senate in anticipation of the vote on March 14.

In the last few days, following the senate's agreement setting a date for a vote, the administration claims to have been assured of enough support from former wavering senators to effect ratification.

Those who have opposed the treaty on the ground that it will lessen the business of the railroads, and not only reduce revenues of the carriers but decrease employment of the railroad brotherhoods, have been shown by figures, it is said by Senator Pittman.

Opponents contended that Senator Pittman was "counting on eggs that had not been hatched."

COMMITTEEMEN UNANIMOUS FOR 30 HOUR WEEK

Report Connery Bill Despite Johnson.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—Over the objections of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief, the house labor committee today voted unanimously to bring before the congress this session legislation providing a thirty hour week for industry.

Without a dissenting voice, the committee approved the so-called Connery bill which would extend directly into the affairs of Gen. Johnson's recovery administration. As reported out, the measure would insure labor equal representation with industry on NRA code authorities.

Speaker of the House Henry T. Rainey late today indorse the bill as a "step in the right direction," and Chairman Connery [Dem., Mass.] of the labor committee prepared to ask a special rule giving the bill legislative right of way.

Declares Plan not Feasible.

Should the administration combat the thirty hour week measure, he declared, the house committee will fight for a vote in the house.

Gen. Johnson voiced during hearings on the Connery bill his objection to any legislative effort to fix an arbitrary industrial work week. At that time the NRA chieftain declared such a plan not feasible and requested that industrial work hours be left to regulation through the codes.

As reported by the committee, the Connery measure would set up an "emergency industrial extension board" to be composed of the secretary of labor, a representative of industry, and a representative of organized labor, which would have power to grant exemptions from the 30 hour week law.

90 Days to Get Ready.

Industries able to show a scarcity of labor in their fields or the existence of an emergency requiring a longer work week would be excused by the board from the arbitrary thirty hour work week, but the dispensation could not be of longer duration than three months and the maximum hours of work more than 40 a week.

Under the bill, industries would be given 90 days in which to regulate their operation to the thirty hour schedule.

200 ATTORNEYS WILL SPEED UP WORK OF HOLC

A new plan, under which more than 200 attorneys will assist in the closing of Home Owners' Loan corporation loans in Chicago, was announced yesterday by Henry G. Zander, state manager for the HOLC. The number of lawyers engaged on the work is being increased and eventually, it was said, 400 will be employed.

Formerly all final action in the closing was done in the Chicago office. Mr. Zander said tests had shown the work could be speeded by a decentralized system. Branch offices of the HOLC have been established in Waukegan and a number of downstate cities and others for Aurora and Joliet in the Chicago area have been approved.

STAVISKY WIDOW REVEALS HIS TIES WITH 'HIGHER UPS'

Tells of Friendship with Leaders of Nation.

PARIS, March 6.—(AP)—The beautiful Mme. Arlette Stavisky fenced skillfully today with a parliamentary committee seeking details of her late husband's $60,000,000 pawnshop bond swindle. The grilling produced a score of glittering political names.

Asked if she believed her husband committed suicide or was murdered, she said that at first she thought it a case of suicide because he was subject to periods of melancholy, but now was not sure what was the truth.

Stavisky, "friend of ministers," according to the popular view, was found dead in his remote Chamonix retreat as police closed in on him after a widespread hunt. His death was a spark that set off bloody street riots, resulting in the downfall of two cabinets.

44 Deputies Quiz Widow.

Forty-four deputies subjected the widow, pale in her modish black weeds, to close questioning regarding "handsome Alex" Stavisky's political relations in an effort to uncover those who protected him and made possible his machinations.

The questioning indicated that Jean Chiappe, former prefect of Paris police, knew Stavisky, but it failed to show any real connection between the two men. Mme. Stavisky, however, said her husband had told her the prefect was "a fine fellow." Stavisky informed her Chiappe received him cordially on a visit to the prefecture of police, she testified.

She said her husband told her he dined at the same table with former Minister of Finance Georges Bonnet during a conference at Stresa, but she added that Stavisky was not Bonnet's guest.

Mme. Stavisky said her husband had once dined privately with former Minister Durand, and confirmed that former Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour once was asked to serve as her lawyer when she was charged with swindling in 1926.

Former Deputy Jailed.

The dismissal of Chiappe by the Daladier government led to the first of the street riots resulting in that ministry's overthrow. Chiappe denied he was an intimate of Stavisky, although it was reported Stavisky was last seen publicly in Paris at a theater with Chiappe.

Meanwhile the twenty-first accusation in connection with the failure of the Bayonne pawnshop, founded by Stavisky, was made in the case of former Deputy Edmond Boyer, mayor of Angers.

He was charged with "receiving stolen goods." He was listed in Stavisky's old check book as the recipient of a check for 800,000 francs [about $50,000].

LOSS IN BANKS 'BAD DEBTS,' DEDUCTIBLE FROM INCOME TAXES

Washington, D. C., March 6.—(AP)—Persons who lost money in closed banks may gain some benefit on their March 15 income tax returns.

The treasury formally discussed today the question of "whether or not an account in a closed bank may be deducted from income." Guy T. Helvering, internal revenue commissioner, said:

"Such accounts are to be treated in the same manner as bad debts."

LIQUOR DEALERS ASK TAX CUT TO BLOCK BOOTLEG

A resolution urging that taxes on liquor be reduced to curb bootlegging was adopted yesterday by the convention of National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' association at the Hotel Sherman. A copy of the resolution will be forwarded to President Roosevelt and the governors of states where alcoholic beverages are sold.

The convention also recommended that the federal alcoholic control administration grant the liquor industry a hearing on wine and spirits advertising regulations before the final regulations are issued by the FACA.

BAIN CONVICTIONS IN $13,000,000 FAILURE UPHELD

Banker's Prison 1-5 Term and Fines Affirmed.

The Illinois Appellate court yesterday upheld the convictions of John Bain, 76 year old banker, his sons, Robert A., and John H., and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, on charges of conspiracy to defraud depositors in their twelve banks, which closed June 9, 1931. Depositors and other creditors are estimated to have lost $13,000,000 in the collapse of the banks.

The higher court affirmed the ruling of Judge John M. O'Connor, who heard the case without a jury in the Criminal court, and, on Aug. 24, 1932, found the defendants guilty. Bain was sentenced to one to five years in the penitentiary. His two sons and his son-in-law were each fined $1,000.

Appeal in Prospect.

The jail sentence and fines will not be effective immediately, according to Attorney Harry Olson, who represented the Bains and Fisher in their appeal. He said he has ten days in which to petition the Appellate court for a rehearing. If this is denied, he indicated that he may take the case to the Illinois Supreme court.

The elder Bain, who is in poor health, is now living in Tinley Park on a chicken farm owned by Sanitary District Trustee Howard W. Elmore, his former banking associate. He is at liberty on $7,500 bond. His sons and Fisher are free on $5,000 bonds each.

Two Judges Concur.

The Appellate court opinion was delivered by Judge Martin H. Gridley and was concurred in by Judges John J. Sullivan and Kickham Scanlan. Judge O'Connor, who was transferred to the Criminal court to preside at the trial at the request of prosecutors and attorneys for the defendants, is sitting in another branch of the Appellate court.

"After careful consideration of the evidence and the arguments," Judge Gridley's opinion read, "we are satisfied that the court's findings of guilty as to all four defendants of the charges made in all counts are clearly sustained by the evidence, and that the court did not err in entering the judgments of conviction. We are of the opinion that from the entire evidence there can be no reasonable doubt of the guilt of all of the defendants. The case was carefully tried by an able and experienced judge, sitting in place of a jury by agreement of the parties."

Attorney Olson, in his appeal brief, contended that the defendants were "the victims of the recent depression," and raised six major points on which he asked a reversal.

The Bains and Fisher are also under indictment in the federal courts on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Six Held in Bombing Quiz; Two Confess Setting Blasts

The mystery surrounding more than 40 bombings in recent months, including that of the home of Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan, were expected last night to be cleared up following the arrest of a woman and five men. Two of the men confessed four bombings and gave information that implicated the others.

Those held are Frank Currin, 31 years old, 1812 South Jefferson street, a former saloonkeeper; Harry Fitzel, 23 years old, 1913 South Halsted street, a pharmacist; George Patris, 27 years old, secretary of the Restaurateurs of Illinois, 6 North Clark street; John Eborich, 721 West 17th street; "Bunny" Walters, 942 North Lawndale avenue; and Mrs. Sophie Svirsky, 42 years old, owner of a saloon at 665 West 18th street.

Seized Pair Name Others.

Currin and Fitzel were seized in connection with the attempted bombing of the Legion café at 11103 South Michigan avenue early yesterday. Policeman John McGraw caught them with an unexploded bomb in the doorway of the restaurant.

They declared to the police that they had been employed by Patris to place the bomb in order to force the café's owners into the restaurant association. Their statements implicated Eborich, Walters, and Patris, all of whom were taken into custody.

Patris denied any connection with the bombing. His secretary, Miss Marian Scholk, 21 years old, 3817 Grenshaw street, was also questioned, but was later released.

Tell of Two Bombings.

Mrs. Svirsky was seized after Currin confessed that she hired him and Fitzel to bomb the saloon of her competitor, Charles Mikutchi, 671 West 18th street, whom she accused of taking her business from her. Currin said she promised to pay them $40 for a "good" job. They placed a bomb at Mikutchi's rear door early Saturday morning, but when it caused only slight damage and Mrs. Svirsky refused payment until further destruction was done, they placed a second bomb in the same place the next morning. This one was sufficiently effective to satisfy Mrs. Svirsky, so she paid them, Currin said. She denied their accusations.

The men confessed they received $75 for bombing the beauty shop of M. Mullerat, 2527 Devon avenue, two months ago. Currin said this bombing was carried out because the owner of the beauty establishment had incurred Patris' anger. They also admitted they bombed a saloon owned by John Vohaseth at 571 West 16th street on Feb. 6.

Tells How They Operated.

Currin said he obtained the bombing jobs and personally exploded the bombs which Fitzel, a chemist, manufactured, and that Eborich, an employé in a hardware store, supplied the pipe required in making the bombs. Walters, said Currin, was his companion in some of the bombings. Police said the men accepted commissions to manufacture and explode bombs at prices varying from $35 to $100 for each job.

The police pointed out that more than forty small cafés and restaurants have been bombed during the last year and that the bombers now under arrest may have been responsible for a large number of them. It was believed that most of these bombings were the result of attempts to force small business men to pay for "protection" from racketeers.

The bombing of Supt. Bogan's home at 741 Gordon terrace more than a year ago was believed to have resulted from the refusal of cafeterias operated by the public schools to engage union help or join any of the restaurant associations. The bomb, a small black powder affair, tore a hole in the ground beneath the front porch of the Bogan home and loosened board in the porch flooring.

Group Backs Patris.

In a statement issued last night, following a special meeting of the board of directors of the Restaurateurs of Illinois, it was declared that the association "firmly believes in the honesty, integrity, and law abidingness of its secretary, George Patris," and asserted it had no reason to believe he was even engaged in any racketeering activities or had connection with any bombings.

It was further asserted that the association and its directors "are amazed at the charges of police and individuals who are attempting to insinuate that the association is a racketeer organization" and believe that the charges are a "frameup on the part of certain individuals who believe Patris has hindered their activities."

LADY ASTOR HITS COLORED SHIRT MODE IN POLITICS

Warns College Students Not to Risk Freedom.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 6.—A warning against the current political colored shirt fashion was issued tonight by Lady Astor, Conservative member of parliament, in the course of a lively address to the students of Kings college, London. Describing parliament as one of the greatest bulwarks of liberty Lady Astor declared:

"This is all threatened if you young people go over to the black shirts, the red shirts or any other color of shirts. I do therefore implore you to beware of shirts.

"I don't think, however, there is any real danger in colored shirts for the people of this country do not like dressing up. If they did they would merely die laughing at each other."

Students Restive.

The students were inclined to be restive when Lady Astor began her address. Her opening remarks were greeted with mysterious poppings, cat calls and other noises. The outbreaks soon subsided, however, and Lady Astor was able to complete her speech in perfect silence.

"If I had to be ruled by an autocracy, I don't think there is much to choose between Fascism and communism," she said. "I think we shall watch the American and Russian experiments and that old England will trot down the middle, taking a few hints from one and a few from the other."

A further even more authoritative indication of the government's attitude toward shirt armies and dictatorships was given today by Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, in a broadcast to British schools.

Baldwin Attacks Dictators.

"If the people of this country become adherents of either communism or Fascism in great numbers, there can only be one end—civil war," Baldwin declared. "The whole tendency of dictatorship is to squeeze out competent independent men and create a hierarchy used to obey. When the original dictator goes, chaos often results."

He compared a dictatorship with a giant beech tree, "very magnificent to look at in the prime, but nothing grows under it."

Referring to the present day urge for speed Baldwin asserted:

"It is quite true the state coach of this country may be going through heavy ground and the wheels may be creaking but are you sure the wheels of the state coaches of Moscow, Berlin, Vienna and even of the United States, are not creaking also."

He urged support of the present system of government, declaring that "men and women in every country of Europe are looking to Britain today as the last stronghold of freedom."

Mrs. Roosevelt Flies 750 Mi. to Haiti; Sees Tropical Sunset

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, March 6.—(AP)—Arriving in this isle of sunsets after a pleasant 752 mile overwater flight, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt set out this evening to see all she could of Haiti before dashing off at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow morning for San Juan.

Seeking first hand knowledge of economic conditions in the West Indies, Mrs. Roosevelt and her party devoted the evening to sightseeing.

Tonight Mrs. Roosevelt drove up the mountain to a country club to see the tropical sunset. She was taken on a drive through the city's winding, crooked streets lined with brick walls and thatched cottages. She was told it was the coldest day of the year in Haiti with the thermometer at 85.

Stops in Cuba for Rest.

The weather during the long flight from Miami, Fla., was perfect. The party stopped at Neuvitas, Cuba, for a 35 minute rest. They reached Port-au-Prince at 5:30 p. m.

At 6:30 a. m. tomorrow the party will take off for the Porto Rican capital, San Juan, with a stop at San Pedro, in the Dominican Republic, to refuel. They are due at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, on the same day, leaving San Juan at noon and arriving at the latter place at 1:30 p. m. They may go on to St. Croix on a special flight later.

A picturesque welcome awaited the wife of the President of the United States on arrival here. Mlle. Resia Vincent, sister of President Stenio Vincent, headed a welcoming committee and took Mrs. Roosevelt for a drive in the president's limousine, manned by presidential aids in snappy white uniforms. A great sheaf of pink and red roses adorned the limousine, a gift of the president's sister.

Greeted By U. S. Minister.

American Minister Norman Armour and Mrs. Armour; Gen. Little, commander of the marines here, and Mrs. Little, and Gen. Clayton Vogel, commander of the Garde Haiti, all were at the dock to welcome Mrs. Roosevelt.

Her coming was unheralded, but extra motorcycle police were rallied into an impressive escort to her hotel.

Mayor Andres Rodrigues told Mrs. Roosevelt that railroads and buses were tied up by strikes and that they expected a general strike.

Included in Mrs. Roosevelt's party are Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, assistant secretary of agriculture, and several economic experts who are to make a survey of Porto Rico. Among them is Miss Lorena Hickok, investigator for the federal relief administration.

NEW AIR RECORD TO NEW YORK SET BY RICKENBACKER

A new speed record for commercial flying was established yesterday when Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, war ace, piloted a new Douglas twin motored transport plane with twelve persons aboard in a nonstop flight from Chicago to New York in three hours and ten minutes. The previous record was three hours and thirty-eight minutes, with a fifteen minute stopover at Cleveland.

Earlier in the day the plane, which bears the name the City of Los Angeles, flew here on an exhibition flight in six hours and thirty-nine minutes. During the westward trip its progress over the entire distance was retarded by strong head winds, whereas on the return journey its flying speed of 190 miles an hour was increased by a strong tail wind.

The plane is the first of its kind and was constructed for the Transcontinental and Western Air lines at a cost of $350,000. It is built of fortified aluminum and is motored with 700 horsepower Wright Cyclones. It is of cantilever wing construction, has a retractible landing gear, and is equipped with air brakes on the wings, a two way system of radio communication, a radio beam finder, and an automatic pilot.

Capt. Rickenbacker announced that the TWA lines have ordered 41 planes of similar construction which will cost $30,000 each.

ONE IDENTIFIED WITH BANDITS IN CITY HALL RAID

Clyde Gallagher, 28 years old, 5530 North Artesian avenue, was identified at a showup last night as one of four men who attempted a robbery of the Municipal Bond court in the city hall on Monday.

He was pointed out by Charles Stock, 5711 South Talman avenue, and his wife, Anna, who were in the court at the time of the robbery attempt.

With Gallagher the police arrested his brothers, Daniel, 32 years old, 5530 North Artesian avenue, and Bernard, 30 years old, 4254 North Whipple street. Neither was identified by the Stocks and both were released. Other witnesses had failed to identify any of the trio.

MISSIONARY BATTLES PYTHON IN BRUSH FIRE; BOTH DIE IN FLAMES

BOGOTA, Colombia, March 6.—(AP)—The death of a missionary in a battle with a python was told today in dispatches from the village of Sincelejo, department of Bolivar.

The missionary, a Seventh Day Adventist whose name was not contained in the first accounts, was just outside the village when the python caught him in its coils.

A brush fire was burning at the scene. The struggling man and his reptile captor rolled into the flames. Both were burned to death while they fought.

KILLED BY MOTOR GAS.

Ernest Ahlberg, 59 years old, 2136 Arthur avenue, a painter, was overcome by carbon monoxide gas while working on his car in a closed garage at 6433 Newgard avenue yesterday. He died soon afterward.

Army Airmail Flyer Is Forced Down in Iowa

Horner, Flouted, Offers Gas Tax Substitute.

we also owe a duty to our schools. There is a bill before the house which provides for the diversion of the liquor taxes into the state common school fund."

Test Vote Started.

He then moved that the appropriation bills immediately pending be sidetracked and his bill considered. A roll call, representing a test vote on the strength for the Schnackenberg bill, was started.

"This will be a deciding vote," said Representative R. J. Brandson [Rep., Centralia], turning to the Democrats across the aile. "It will show whether you are for the schools or not."

"That's a wrong interpretation," shouted Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski [Dem., Chicago]. "This bill is just a sugar coating. Nobody knows what the liquor tax will bring in. We are just kidding the teachers of the state. We should have a program of several bills and I am willing to stay next week or the week after to see that they go over."

"The schools are not asking for sympathy," said William G. Thon [Rep., Chicago]. "What they need is relief. We've helped the bankers, farmers, and everybody else but the teachers."

Estimate 6 Million from Tax.

The question was raised as to how much in liquor taxes would be poured into the state treasury.

"The minimum estimate is 6 million dollars," asserted Representative Roland V. Libonati [Rep., Chicago]. "And 10 million dollars will be collected if the shysters and chiselers in the liquor industry are caught."

Representative David I. Swanson [Rep., Chicago], then declared that he was "not trying to put any one on the spot," but the Schnackenberg bill was one remedy for the emergency.

"The governor's message did not tell us what to do," said Swanson, "I'm not criticizing him especially, but he's the chief administrative officer of the state. Here is a fund [liquor taxes] already established."

"The bill is a will o' the wisp," retorted Representative Sol Handy [Dem., Marshall].

Asks Suggestions for Substitute.

"Well, what would you suggest in its place?" asked Swanson.

"The bills that have been introduced all make my head whirl," said Handy.

At this point Representative Howard Doyle [Dem., Decatur] moved that the house recess. There were shouts of protest from Schnackenberg, Swanson, and others. After a vote had been taken, Speaker Arthur Roe [Dem., Vandalia] announced that the motion had lost.

Representative Thomas P. Sinnett [Dem., Rock Island] then asserted that the amount to be realized from liquor taxes "you could put in your eye."

"Do you think you're fooling the school teachers?" boomed Sinnett. "The tax will hardly pay for collecting it. You won't get 2 million dollars."

Brings Laughter from Minority.

"We should pass some legislation that will give us a substantial sum," concluded Sinnett.

"If it's only $2 from the liquor tax," said Representative Frank W. McClure [Dem., Abingdon], "that will be $2 more than the teachers have been getting."

RFC CHIEF WILL HELP PUSH PLAN TO AID TEACHERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—A promise that the Reconstruction Finance corporation will throw its weight behind new legislation enabling federal loans to the Chicago school board for the payment of teachers' salaries was given to Robert Keenan, teachers' representative, today by Jesse H. Jones, head of the RFC, Mr. Keenan reported.

Mr. Jones also promised, according to Mr. Keenan, to urge Chicago banks to make more loans to the school board so that there can be an immediate cash pay day for teachers.

While Mr. Keenan was soliciting the support of Mr. Jones for legislation enabling federal loans to school boards, the Illinois delegation in congress indulged in a sharp party debate over the failure of such legislation thus far this session.

May Turn Tide.

Mr. Jones' support of bills calling for federal loans to school districts may turn the tide in favor of such a law, according to Mr. Keenan, who said that 15 or 20 loan bills are pending, all of them awaiting an expression of the administration's opinion.

Because the RFC owns stock in most of the large Chicago banks, Mr. Jones refused to order the banks to make loans to the school board, Mr. Keenan said. Mr. Jones did agree, however, to put the matter up to the banks. According to Mr. Keenan, Mr. Jones said he was anxious to help Chicago and willing to see a law enacted giving the RFC power to make school loans on security as good as that Chicago has to offer.

Britten and Sabath Clash.

In an unexpected attack on the floor of the house Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Chicago] upbraided the national Democratic administration for aiding railroads, banks, insurance companies, and public works through the Reconstruction Finance corporation without extending a similar helping hand to education.

He was answered by Representative Adolph J. Sabath [Dem., Ill.], who attributed the serious Chicago school situation to the "grossly extravagant Republican administration" which preceded the city's present administration.

Both Britten and Sabath are the authors of bills under which the RFC would be authorized specifically to accept municipal tax anticipation warrants as collateral for school district loans.

TEACHERS CALL ON LEGISLATORS TO VOTE RELIEF

Approximately 1,500 teachers, at a massmeeting yesterday at 32 West Randolph street, voted to send telegrams warning the legislators that any attempt on their part to call a recess in the third special session before further school financial relief is provided will be considered as an "unfriendly act to public education and to the public school teachers." The meeting was held under the auspices of the Chicago division of the Illinois State Teachers' association to bring pressure behind measures to provide more revenue for the state school distributive fund.

Henry G. Geilen, vice president of the association and chairman of the meeting, told the teachers: "We are not threatening anybody, but we are announcing to the legislators a determination to do something if they fail to adopt what we consider a minimum program of financial relief." He declared it was up to the teachers to make known their objections in the coming primaries.

A resolution introduced by a teacher at the meeting asking the teachers to favor a strike should the legislators recess their session, was tabled after considerable comment.

Twenty leaders in various civic groups left for Springfield last night, under the auspices of the citizens' save our schools commitee, to urge Gov. Horner to change his attitude toward relief measures designed to provide more revenue for the state school distributive fund.

TWO MOVE TO CUT DOWN MASTER IN CHANCERY FEES

Springfield, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—Two measures were introduced in the Illinois house today aimed at reducing master in chancery fees throughout the state.

Representative Luther B. Bratton [Rep., Kankakee] presented a bill fixing maximum masters' fees at $2,000 in less populous centers, at $3,000 in the cities downstate, and at $4,000 in Chicago. Any funds received in excess of these amounts would be turned over to county treasurers and placed in the general revenue.

Representative Drennan J. Slater [Rep., Evanston] introduced a resolution asking that the house go on record as favoring a fourth special session of the assembly "for the purpose of considering the subject of compensation of masters in chancery and receivers for distressed properties." The resolution will be considered tomorrow.

SURVEY SCHOOL BOUNDARIES TO RELIEVE CROWDS

A survey of districts in which 39 new elementary schools are situated with a view of readjusting the school district boundaries was begun yesterday by Don C. Rogers, director of research and building survey for the school board. The study was ordered by James B. McCahey, president of the board, to relieve the overcrowded condition of certain schools and to do away with a number of the flimsy portable school buildings.

The new elementary schools were added last summer with the ultilization of the buildings formerly housing junior high schools which were abolished under the board of education's economy program. "The new boundaries will equalize the pupil load so that there won't be a congestion of students in one school and vacant rooms in another," Mr. Rogers explained. "At the same time, we hope to organize all of the elementary schools on a one to eight grade basis.

"Some of the schools such as the Herzl school have only the seventh and eighth grades."

FATHER, SON KILLED IN MINE.

Colfax, Ia., March 6.—(AP)—Charles Myer, about 60 years old, and his son Rex, 17 years old, of Newton, were killed today by slate in the Barron coal mine here.

CITY MAY GET PERMIT FOR PARK ON OLD P. O. SITE

Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt yesterday received a reply to his application to the federal treasury department for permission to develop as a park the old postoffice site bounded by Canal, Clinton, Polk and Harrison streets. It said in part:

"The department is without authority to devote the land in question to use for park purposes for any definite period. However, a license, revocable at the will of the secretary of the treasury, providing for vacation of the premises and removal of the improvements from the site upon sixty days' notice, can be given the consideration of this department."

Commissioner Hewitt immediately made application for a revocable permit on the condition that the city would not have to pay for removing any improvements, which would include trees, shrubs, sidewalks and a recreational building. He also notified officials of the civil works administration in Illinois, who would be asked to pay for the labor and materials used in the development of his action.

A TRUE STORY

By A MOTHER

whose children are benefiting by her experience of years ago

WHEN Mrs. Walter Ruehl was fourteen years old, she was a sick girl. "My mother," she writes, "had taken me out of school and was desperately turning from one type of treatment to another. Everything seemed to be wrong with me—extreme nervousness, severe headaches, a terribly tired worn-out feeling, and frequent dizzy spells which would bring on prolonged attacks of nausea. I know my family despaired of ever seeing me recover.

"Imagine our encouragement and joy, a short time after my doctor put me on the Nujol treatment, when my health began to improve. In a few short weeks I looked and felt like a new person.

"I returned to school and when I graduated, had the honor of being the 'best all-round athlete' in my class! This of course I could never have done without radiant health, and to Nujol I owe a never-to-be-forgotten debt for the happy, healthful days in the springtime of my life.

"Six years ago I was married, and in 1928 my first little girl came along. As soon as she began to eat solid food, trouble began. I took her to a baby specialist who immediately diagnosed her trouble as improper elimination. He told me that more babies and little children suffer with this trouble than with any other. He warned me it was a very serious matter that might lead to appendicitis.

"So I began giving Robin Nujol. She was then just a year old. I'm afraid it may seem incredible, but I am sincerely glad to say that from almost the day after we began the treatment, my little girl has been in perfect health. It seemed like a miracle—but apparently all her system needed was a gentle lubricant. When her little system became—as it did very quickly—perfectly regulated, she was like a different child. Every one of the alarming symptoms of stomach trouble disappeared and she immediately began to gain weight—sleep soundly all night and develop a splendid appetite. She never suffered from indigestion again! Now Robin is five years old, and is one of the huskiest, peppiest youngsters you could wish for.

"Little Donald, her three-year-old brother, has his regular spoonful of Nujol without fail every evening. To see his red cheeks and sparkling eyes and observe the boundless energy he has all the time—no one would doubt his health program is good.

"Robin and Donald both go to a little kindergarten where there are sixteen children, and the teacher said they were the best natured and happiest children in the school. She asked me what I did to make them always sweet tempered, and so seldom irritable or out of sorts.

"It seems so obvious to me that children — or adults, either — can only act as well as they feel, and that the most precious thing in the world is real glad-to-be-alive, bubbling-over-with-the-joy-of-living health. I found the magic 'sesame' to that door years ago in Nujol, and now my children are reaping the benefit of my experience."

Most sincerely,
MRS. WALTER RUEHL,
Nov. 28, 1933. Glenbrook, Conn.

Nothing we could add to Mrs. Ruehl's letter would make it any more convincing. Follow her example. See what Nujol will do for you—for your children. Get it at any drug store, now in two forms, plain Nujol and Cream of Nujol, the latter flavored and often preferred by children.

What is your Nujol story? If you have been using Nujol for ten years or more, if you are bringing up your children on it, tell us. Address Stanco, Inc., 2 Park Avenue, New York City.

BOOST IN COFFEE PRICES REVIVES SALVADOR TRADE

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN SALVADOR, Feb. 27.—[By Mail.]—El Salvador, from its Pacific ports, La Libertad or La Union, looks as green and peaceful as the New England hills, except for a row of volcanic peaks brooding in the distance. It has the somnolent aspect of an August day at home, when a hammoc and a glass of lemonade become the height of ambition.

La Union presents a familiar sight. It was here, in the winter of 1929, that Herbert Hoover, then President elect, landed from the battleship Utah and went ashore with his staf of experts and diplomats to interview the natives in grand style.

Nothing of any consequence has happened since, one learns at the Grand Imperial hotel, where the old Spanish proprietor dusts off a chair on the shady porch and points to the picture of Mr. Hoover, now somewhat yellow and fly-specked, but still adorned with gay colors and welcome signs. Over the bar, however, is a larger, newer picture of President Roosevelt, who, it seems, is in high favor with official San Salvador at least for his recent recognition of the new régime, which came into power by the old road of revolution.

Revolutions Safety Valves.

Revolutions seem to be a sort of social safety valve in this part of the world, just as the red glow which is emitted from the volcanoes at night is a vent for the troubled earth on which this little republic swings.

Neither Mr. Hoover nor Mr. Roosevelt nor the latest revolution have wrought any change in La Union, except to make it, perhaps, even more dusty and weary. There is not an automobile in town and one must walk the sweltering mile to the dock, take an ox cart, which lumbers over the cobblestones at the safe and sure pace of two miles an hour, or wait for the daily train.

At La Libertad, however, a paved road begins. It winds through brown hills, higher and higher, until the cathedral spires of San Salvador come into view, 25 miles from the sea. Here is the capital of the republic and chief commercial center, with a population of 95,000 living more than 2,000 feet above the sea.

A Land of Contrasts.

This makes a tremendous difference, for in this keen air, semi-tropical and healthful, the low state of vitality in the coast towns is overcome and something has been built here which might astonish a visitor carrying in his mind an O. Henry picture of Central America. One must go inland and high in these countries to find the true civilization of their people.

It is obviously a land of contrasts. With an area of 13,176 square miles and a population of 1,525,000, El Salvador is one of the most densely populated sections of the earth. Like Java, its hillsides are cultivated until some of the fields are almost vertical. Away from the lowlands the great crop is coffee. The fincas, or plantations, are valued in the neighborhood of $1,000 an acre, and in a good year produce a crop of $12,000,000.

The wayside homes are the Indian homes one sees everywhere in Central America. They are better than those in Mexico. The roofs are of tiles, the sides open, the cooking done out of doors amid a medley of children, chickens, and small animals.

One family keeps a tall white bird with aigret feathers and a playful anteater. The brown mother makes tortilla cakes by kneading and pounding the dough over stones. The children wear little or nothing. Labor at 25 cents a day, with no rent to pay and a patch of ground, with no clothes or heat problem, seems quite comfortable. Life might be idyllic, one thinks, in this land.

Easy Life for All.

Those who own the coffee lands and take a large part of the millions of annual income are of the same opinion. They have proceeded to make the dream of a rich and beautiful life approximately true, save for the tremors underneath the social crust which indicate the lack of a permanent base.

The approach to the capital is along parklike roads and homes of wealth. The homes would grace any capital. They are set in gardens of green with flaming colors on walls and in trees. Hibiscus, frangipani, and Buginvillaea mingle with the dark green of the coffee bushes. Crickets are chirping in the fields, where cows are feeding. A Spanish priest in long black skirt and wide rimmed black hat shepherds a flock of boys along the road. Several schoolhouses are passed and a country club, a white pillared building set on an open knoll.

Clean paved streets in this city, street cars and buses, traffic cops, theater signs, and a hotel with a big, cool lobby, where a marimba band is playing Spanish jazz music. Packard cars drawn up here and sophisticated young people of the upper crust dancing. These are people one might see in Paris or New York. A father welcomes his boy home from school in the United States. The young bride of a coffee planter is just home from a trip abroad. The waiters are kept busy bringing food to the tables. The conversation is gay, musical.

Town Under Martial Law.

Now comes a sinister note. The proprietor of the hotel, it seems, is in the high prison on the hill for being implicated in a plot against the new government of Gen. Maximiliano Martinez. The town is under martial law. That explains the numerous soldiers. Each carries a long rifle over his shoulder.

This little republic supports an army of 10,000 men and a civil guard of 6,000 more. On this square, where the Indian mothers are sitting watching their children play in the evening, hundreds were shot down by machine guns a year ago. Even these waiters were in it. There was a list, some say as high as 7,000, of a so-called communist party, which was to seize the government. Some men from over the seas had been up in the hills talking with the people. They had convinced them that they did all the work in the coffee fincas and should get the rewards. They were told if they would organize a revolt they would each get a piece of land.

To some the automobile of the master was allotted. To others the master's wife. The people rose. One night they stopped a planter and his wife in their car and killed them, cutting their bodies to pieces.

Report 7,000 Were Shot.

"The only way to get these ideas out of their heads was to shoot them out, kill them," said a member of the diplomatic corps.

No one knows just how many were shot, some say the whole 7,000. None was given a trial. Now Gen. Martinez has taken hold of the country with an iron hand. He is endeavoring to settle the land difficulties, raise wages, and make the condition of the people easier. A military dictatorship seems the only way.

With the recognition of this government by the United States conditions are in better shape than they have been for a long time. With the increase in coffee prices the trade with the outside world, which has been decreasing since 1930, again becomes normal. But it is an unhealthy normality from an economic standpoint. This is a civilization in which life is made lovely for the few at the expense of one crop and cheap labor. It is still their age of candlelight.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Lambs Fed from Bottle

March 6, 1934.

FOUR meals a day out of a bottle—that's the schedule for a pair of lambs here on the farm. The mothers of these lambs do not have enough milk for their babies, so Mrs. Rawlings and her daughter [wife and daughter of John Rawlings who is in charge of the sheep] have had to get some nursing bottles and cow's milk to bring up the "orphans."

It didn't take these newly born lambs very long to get on to the idea of how to drink warm milk out of a bottle. They soon learned the trick of grabbing hold of the rubber nipple. It takes four feedings a day to keep these bottle lambs somewhere near quiet. The schedule calls for milk at 10 in the morning, 4 p. m., 6 p. m. and a final night feeding at 8:30 p. m. Each of the lambs drinks about an ounce of milk, although the amount will have to be increased very soon. The lamb score now reads 21. Three pairs of twins and a single lamb were born yesterday.

The warm weather over the week-end resulted in a sort of spring parade in the pigpen. Every little pig on the place came out in the yard to enjoy the mild temperature and root around in the muck. During the cold weather they stayed inside, all crowded together to keep as warm as possible.

A variety of chores around the farm have required the attention of the boys. In the first place the farm is being dressed up with quite a lot of new fencing. Ed Johnson and Louis Thurow Jr. are taking care of this job. Already they have put up about 60 rods of fence and there is more to be put in place. Sleezer is busy with the fanning mill. Some repairs were needed before he could clean some timothy seed. Guenther, who has charge of all the hogs here on the farm, ground up about 90 bushels of oats for the sows with suckling pigs.

The recent warm weather seems to have affected the pigeons and sparrows around the barnyards. This morning one of the sparrows sailed into a gray and white pigeon in a dispute over territorial rights in the yard. Although outweighed, the pestiferous sparrow won the scrap. A lone crow surprised the boys today by sailing over the barnyard and perching on top of the barn.

Toby, the big gray cat that bangs around the cow barn where the Guernsey milk cows are kept, is in disgrace today. Jack Kunde, the dairyman, says she hasn't caught a rat around the barn for several days. Toby is supposed to pay for her keep by warring against the rats and the mice which naturally wax fat where there is so much feed available. This cat is not allowed around the house at all and she is never fed there. The idea is to make her realize that the barn is home and that she must keep hunting rodents if she expects to get anywhere in life. This morning when we saw her, Toby was jumping around on the partitions between the stalls in the cow barn more like a monkey than a rat hunting barn cat.

Plague Sweeps 20 Indian Cities; 1200 Reported Dead

LONDON, March 6.—(AP)—Twelve hundred persons have died within a week in a plague sweeping twenty cities of the united provinces of India, said a dispatch from Lucknow to the Daily Mail today. The inhabitants of the stricken region were said to be deserting their homes and fleeing the country in terror.

PENDERGAST MEN LEAD HEAVY VOTE AT KANSAS CITY

Regular Republicans Cut Out of Race Entirely.

Kansas City, Mo., March 6.—(AP)—Kansas City's "little Tammany" triumphed today where New York City's "big Tammany" failed.

Confronted with similar opposition and subjected to charges of "machine graft," the T. J. Pendergast Democratic organization smashed its way to victory in a municipal primary election so turbulent that protests were carried to the state's governor.

A Fusionist movement, embracing both Republicans and Democrats, lagged more than 39,000 votes behind, but won the right to contest the Pendergast ticket in a runoff election on March 27 by easily outdistancing a third slate of "straight" Republicans.

How Vote Stands.

Four hundred and thirty-five precincts out of 460 gave Pendergast's mayoralty candidate, Bryce B. Smith, seeking reëlection, 99,136 votes to 59,804 for Dr. A. Ross Hill, former University of Missouri president and candidate of the Citizens', or Fusionist, ticket. Clark E. Jacoby, the Republican, had only 4,121 votes.

Joseph Pennelly, president of a national youth movement which was the sparkplug of the Citizens' movement, protested to Gov. Guy B. Park the election was filled with irregularities and that even a complete ruling out of the whole affair was warranted.

Hurl "Boss" Charges.

The Citizens' party accused the Pendergast group, in control of the city hall more than a decade, with faulty bookkeeping, extravagance, and with being subservient to a "boss" who exacted favors for his private business interests.

Pendergast denied all the charges and called upon his organization to make such a show of power as to discourage the opposition for the March 27 runoff.

Mayoralty Primary in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., March 6.—(AP)—Mayor William Mahoney, Farmer-Labor incumbent, backed in his fight for reëlection by Gov. Floyd B. Olson, held an early lead over his three opponents in today's primary city election, according to returns tonight.

FRANCE TO REDUCE IMPORT LICENSE TAX ON AMERICAN GOODS

PARIS, March 6.—(AP)—The chamber of deputies today opened the way for relief to American products from an import license tax against which the United States protested in May, 1933.

A bill empowering the government to lower the tax on semi-finished and finished products from 4 and 6 per cent to 2 per cent was approved. American copper, which was taxed 4 per cent as a semi-finished product, would especially benefit.

A delegation of exporters today urged Lucien Lamoureux, minister of commerce, to apply the government's new dictatorial tariff powers to end harmful trade wars with various countries and to negotiate a Franco-Argentine commercial accord.

TWO DILLINGER JAILERS SEIZED FOR HIS FLIGHT

Deputy Blunk and Turnkey Are Accused.

Police in Buffalo, N. Y., were reported to have information that he was there.

The decision to arrest Blunk and Cahoon, the jail attachés, came after an investigation of the circumstances of Dillinger's escape by Prosecutor Robert G. Estill of Lake county and Assistant Attorney General Edward Barce of Indianapolis. The affidavits against them were signed by Ray M. Hullett, a special investigator for the attorney general.

Cahoon was accused of leaving open the cell doors into the corridor of the jail so that Dillinger might move around freely. Both he and Blunk were charged with calling Warden Lew Baker so that Dillinger might lock him up and also calling other prisoners and guards. They were also charged with leaving keys where Dillinger could obtain them.

When the affidavit was read before Judge Murray, Blunk collapsed. The judge himself, although obliged to issue the order for the arrest, commented critically upon the charges against Blunk, who, as fingerprint expert, had been appointed by the court and was under the court's supervision.

"Didn't Have Any Nerve."

"Somebody has gone off half-cocked in this investigation," Judge Murray remarked. "I'm satisfied that nothing was off-color about Blunk's performance. He was doing his regular work when he was called by Cahoon. Blunk didn't have any nerve—that's all that was wrong with him."

In view of this attitude, the state will probably ask for a change of venue when Blunk and Cahoon are arraigned before Judge Murray, it was said. Bonds of $2,000 each were set for the two men. Conviction on the charges carries a fine of $5 to $50 and a jail sentence of 90 days to one year.

Sheriff Holley last night took up the defense of Cahoon.

"Sam," she said, "was the only one who resisted Dillinger. He refused to call Warden Baker at the desperado's command. Dillinger dropped him and forced Blunk to call the warden. Sam wasn't to blame."

There was some discussion among the prosecutors concerning whether Cahoon and Blunk should be kept in the jail where they are well acquainted or should be removed to the Hammond city jail. The decision was finally made to take a chance on their incarceration in the Crown Point jail, known as "escape-proof" until Dillinger broke out.

A report on the general management of the jail was awaited with much interest. It has been prepared by Assistant Attorney General Barce, it was learned, and sent to Gov. Paul V. McNutt at Indianapolis for his approval before release. Sensational revelations were reported to be included in the report.

"The special guards put on at the jail to prevent Dillinger's escape," he commented, "costs $150 a day and the bills haven't been paid yet."

Just why the wrong license number upon the sheriff's automobile used by Dillinger in his escape had been broadcast to the world was also explained yesterday. Chicago police have asserted that the gunman would have been captured if they had not been misled by the wrong information given them about the license number.

Looks at Wrong Car.

Warden Baker, it was learned, after Dillinger had driven off, asked Edward Rogers, a deputy sheriff, to ascertain the license number on the car.

"The number was one less than the other sheriff's car in the garage," Rogers was told. "Go take a look at that number."

Rogers came back with the information that the license number was 679,930. The warden thereupon substracted one number and gave out the number 679,929 as the number on Dillinger's car.

It was learned yesterday that Rogers should have looked at another sheriff's car bearing the license number 674-550. Subtracting one from that number would have given 674-549, the right number and the one found on the car abandoned in Chicago.

Asks Sheriff's Resignation.

The political furor in Indiana caused by the escape increased yesterday when Charles Baran, head of the county commissioners [another local body differing from the Lake county council], again called upon Sheriff Holley to resign "for the good of the Democratic party." Mrs. Holley again refused. Late in the day she issued a statement announcing that she had suspended Turnkey Cahoon pending the outcome of the charges against him.

In Indianapolis Gov. McNutt said he had no power to remove Sheriff Holley from office. He pointed out that such power is vested in the Circuit court of the county in which the official holds office.

Doubt was cast yesterday upon the identification of the woman who visited Dillinger in his cell a week ago and talked with him in a code as Mrs. Elaine Burton, an acquaintance of John Hamilton, known as Dillinger's lieutenant. Attorney R. H. Grunewald, representing Mrs. Burton, declared she had been in a hospital for a month and had never seen or known Dillinger. She also has not seen Hamilton for months, the lawyer asserted.

The deputy sheriffs who identified a picture of Mrs. Burton previously admitted they may have been mistaken yesterday when told of the lawyer's claim.

LA RUE, KLUTAS GANG MEMBER IS SPIRITED INTO FEDERAL PRISON

Leavenworth, Kas., March 6.—(AP)—Guarded by 11 men and eight machine guns, Eddie La Rue, reputed gangster and something of a mystery man in the crime world, was brought to the federal penitentiary today.

He was arrested in Miami, Fla., Feb. 17 and pleaded guilty yesterday in Springfield, Ill., to interstate transportation of a stolen motor car for which he was given a 10 year term.

Officers said he was a member of the Javk Klutas gang and had been an associate of Roger Touhy, now under prison sentence of 99 years for the kidnaping of John Factor, Chicago.

At the time of his arrest, Lincoln, Neb., authorities said he was wanted there in connection with the $2,500,000 holdup of the Lincoln National Bank and Trust company in September, 1930, which was led by Harvey Bailey, in prison here as one of the abductors of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma oil millionaire.

Extraordinary precautions were taken this morning to veil movements of officers and their prisoner at Kansas City during a change of trains. It was there that Frank Nash, gangster-convict, and four officers were slain last June by friends of Nash who sought to free him as he was being transferred from train to motor car on the way to Leavenworth.

DOCTOR FREED ON CHARGE OF AIDING ROBBER

Dr. Sidney S. Wise, 42 years old, a physician with offices at 3200 Warren boulevard, yesterday in the Felony court was cleared of a charge of being an accessory after the fact of robbery. Assistant State's Attorney John Phillips, in obtaining a nol pros from Judge Frank M. Padden, revealed that Dr. Wise had been found not guilty of a similar charge in a bench trial by Judge James F. Fardy of the Criminal court on March 2.

The double charge was explained by the fact that the state's attorney had gained an indictment while the police charge was pending in the Felony court.

Dr. Wise was charged with performing an operation on a wounded bandit without reporting the operation to police. The bandit, Frank Gallagher, has been sentenced to the penitentiary.

Decide Dillinger Wasn't in Gang.

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 6.—(AP)—Half a dozen cursing machine gun bandits, who shot one policeman and slugged another in a spectacular $46,000 bank holdup here today, apparently had escaped into Minnesota tonight while authorities scoured the highways and airplanes flew over adjacent territory in the hunt for them.

While law officers of other states were asked to guard highways officials of the Securities National Bank and Trust company retracted an earlier statement that one of the bandits appeared to resemble John Dillinger, notorious outlaw and killer.

After scanning photographs of Dillinger several hours after the holdup C. R. Clarke, president of the bank, who had made the earlier identification, said none of the bandits resembled the outlaw.

Headed Toward Twin Cities.

Latest reports of the whereabouts of the gang placed them somewhere between Worthington, Minn., and the Twin Cities. All roads leading into St. Paul and Minneapolis were guarded.

South Dakota posse men traced the bandits' car as far as a point north of Luverne, Minn., but there lost the trail after two brushes with the outlaws.

Sherif Melvin L. Sells, Deputy U. S. Marshal Art Anderson, and a posse returned here after losing the gang's trail. Anderson's car bore a bullet hole in the windshield while the headlights on Sells' machine had been punctured and the hood penetrated.

Hundreds Watch Robbers.

Approximately 1,000 persons watched the robbers as they halted traffic before the bank. From doorways, behind poles and mail boxes and from windows curious spectators craned their necks as guards for the gang lined up police officers and others on the sidewalk.

While the robbery was in progress, calls to the police station a block away, brought the chief, M. W. Parsons, and a detective. Advised only to "get over to the bank right away," the officers were unprepared for the situation and were forced from their car under threat of a machine gun and lined up with others on the sidewalk.

During the robbery, Hale Keith, motorcycle patrolman, hearing bursts of machine gun fire which the bandits set off for intimidation started to investigate. As he approached the bank building one of the robbers saw him and sent a volley through a window.

Take Women As Hostages.

Keith fell to the sidewalk, shot in the abdomen, the leg and both arms. The robber shouted a joyful, "I got one, I got one," before swinging the menacing muzzle of his gun back to cover more than 30 customers and employés in the bank.

Guarding their escape, the robbers seized five hostages from the bank's employés—four women and one man, the latter Leo Olson, a teller. Olson was released at the city limits but the four women were carried several miles further before they were set free.

DIVORCE GROUNDS SINK; SISTER, NOT WIFE, THE SINNER

White Plains, N. Y., March 6.—[Special.]—A wealthy New York business man discovered today that by attempting to obtain divorce evidence against his wife he had besmirched the honor of his sister.

Abraham Abrams, head of a theatrical trucking firm, president of United Tea Shops, Inc., and proprietor of a string of restaurants in New York and Philadelphia, had accused Mrs. Shirley Abrams of spending a night in a Washington hotel with Eli Keisman, an interior decorator who had a contract for decorating the $24,000 Abrams apartment on Ocean parkway, Brooklyn.

But in an affidavit produced today in Supreme court at White Plains his widowed sister, the former Fay Abrams of Brooklyn, disclosed it was she and not Mrs. Abrams who spent the night with Keisman.

Furthermore, she charges that a raid last May on an apartment in Midtown Manhattan in which Mrs. Abrams and Harold Woodson, a Miami business man, were arrested, was also a frameup. Woodson spent 27 days in jail on a charge of adultery. Mrs. Abrams, who spent a night in a cell, asserts she was released only when she signed an agreement not to oppose her husband's divorce suit.

"No more shoveling coal or hauling out ashes for me"

An interview with Mr. Joseph Cepek and family, 5921 Campbell Avenue

"And gas heat is clean. There's no soot, dust, and dirt. It has made our home many, many times more enjoyable."

Mr. Cepek works nights. He used to worry about his furnace, but now with gas heat he never gives it a thought.

WHEN you're a stationary engineer—on the night shift in a large packing house—you certainly appreciate a gas heated home, according to Mr. Joseph Cepek.

"My working hours are from eleven at night till seven in the morning," says Mr. Cepek. "I used to worry terribly about the furnace while I was gone. I knew it would overheat, and I was afraid of the chimney catching fire. Now, with gas heat, I never give the furnace a thought."

"It's marvelous," he says. "We used to have to throw up the windows to let out the excess heat, and then the children would catch cold. Now the house stays right at the temperature we want it, night and day."

THOUSANDS SWITCH TO GAS HEAT AS RATES GO DOWN

Each week more families in the Chicago area are giving up old-fashioned heating methods, and switching to this scotless, dirtless, automatic way of heating their homes.

No longer do they have to shovel coal, sift, shake or haul dirty ashes, watch and wait for the heat to come. They just set the little thermostat on the wall for the heat they want. Every hour, day and night the temperature is even, comfortable, healthful. They appreciate the utter cleanliness of gas heat. Walls and drapes stay clean much longer.

And low cost. Every home—even the most modest—can now afford to heat with gas. Rates for heating homes with gas are one-half of what they were during the 1930-31 season.

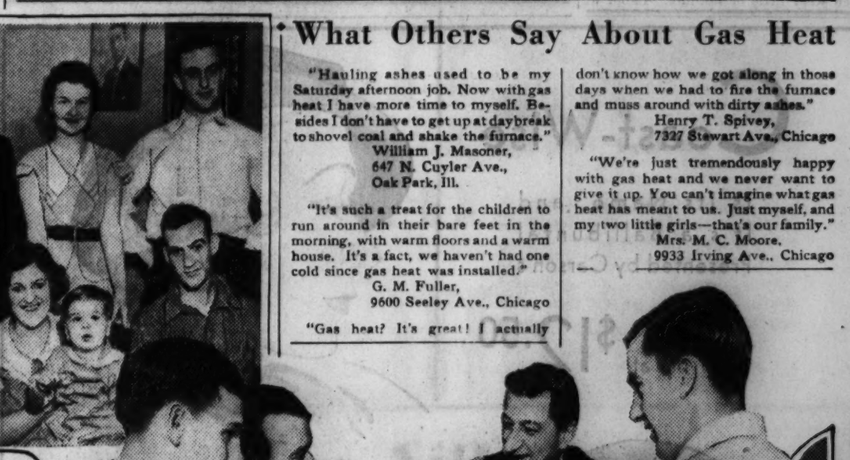
INSTALLED AT OUR EXPENSE

And—you can have gas heat without one cent of investment for equipment. We will install a burner in your present furnace or boiler at our own expense. You pay only the rental on the equipment which amounts to $3 a month in the average home. This charge is included with the bill for the gas you use. You try it for a month, two months, a year. And if within the year you find that you are not completely satisfied with gas, we will take it out and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. But, if you decide to keep gas heat—as we think you will—the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment.

Don't delay! It is pure folly not to investigate this liberal offer on gas heat, when it brings so many comforts and conveniences. Call your local gas company for full information.

Below—The happy family of Mr. Joseph Cepek. "It's true, Gas Heat has made our home many, many times more enjoyable." In the picture are Mr. Cepek's sons, Daniel, James and Ray, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, his son-in-law and daughter; a friend of the family, Rita Wagner; and his two grandchildren, Patricia and Edward Phillips.

Mr. Joseph Cepek and his baby grandson, Daniel Phillips. "We used to have to throw up the windows to let out the excess heat, and then the children would catch cold," says Mr. Cepek. "Now, with gas heat, all we do is set that little thermostat and the house stays right at the temperature we want it."



What Others Say About Gas Heat

"Hauling ashes used to be my Saturday afternoon job. Now with gas heat I have more time to myself. Besides I don't have to get up at daybreak to shovel coal and shake the furnace."
William J. Masoner,
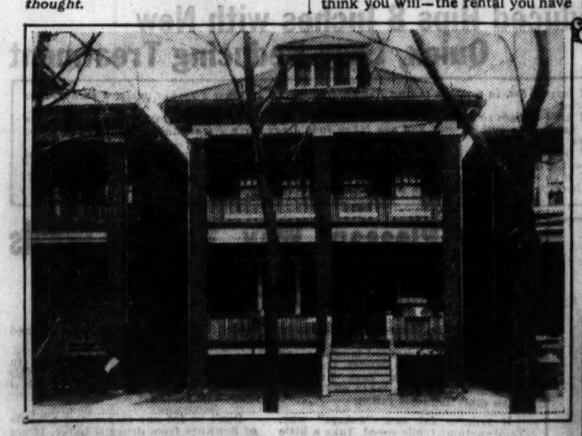
Oak Park, Ill.

"It's such a treat for the children to run around in their bare feet in the morning, with warm floors and a warm house. It's a fact, we haven't had one cold since gas heat was installed."
G. M. Fuller,
9600 Seeley Ave., Chicago

"Gas heat? It's great! I actually don't know how we got along in those days when we had to fire the furnace and muss around with dirty ashes."
Henry T. Spivey,
7327 Stewart Ave., Chicago

"We're just tremendously happy with gas heat and we never want to give it up. You can't imagine what gas heat has meant to us. Just myself, and my two little girls—that's our family."
Mrs. M. C. Moore,
9933 Irving Ave., Chicago



The Cepek home at 5921 Campbell Avenue—one of more than 20,000 homes in the Chicago area now equipped with automatic gas heat.

"THE GAS—WILL IT LIGHT?"

In 83 years of serving gas to the city of Chicago, we have never heard of any customer who seriously asked that question when he touched the handle on the gas range.

Few people give it a thought, so unfailingly reliable is gas service. Gas is ALWAYS there at the burner, ready at a touch. It was there when Abraham Lincoln made his Gettysburg Address, it was there on the day that Lindbergh landed in France, and it is there right now.

Such reliability, which makes "lighting the gas" a habit almost as automatic and involuntary as breathing, is the product of constant vigilance and steady work by 4,000 people in The Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company.

The fact that we all take it for granted is proof of the excellence and reliability of gas service in Chicago.

Due to gas heat, the Cepeks now have an extra room in the basement where they play cards and all sorts of games.

STARTLING TRIAL OFFER!

To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense . . . and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

YOU INVEST NOTHING!

Without ONE CENT of investment by you, we install the most modern burner in your furnace or boiler. If you are satisfied, it stays. If not—and you are the sole judge—out it comes and your former heating system is re-installed—AT OUR EXPENSE. We make this offer because of our confidence in the perfection of gas heat.

CHARGE McNUTT RULE IN INDIANA FOSTERS SPOILS

Dillinger Fiasco Draws National Spotlight.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 6.—[Special.]—The story book escape of Desperado John Dillinger from Indiana authorities has attracted nationwide attention to the political intrigue and the spoils system which are purported to pervade the administration of the Hoosier state's chief, Gov. Paul V. McNutt.

Criticisms that a one-man government is in control of the state have been rife ever since the governor caused to be passed, shortly after he took office in January of 1933, a law which virtually made him ex-officio head of every state department. Under a suspension of rules, McNutt asked and was granted, at the first session of the legislature held under his administration, a law which gave him greater power than was ever before exercised by an Indiana governor.

Whole Government Changed.

Cries of "dictator" from anti-McNutt Democrats and from Republicans were ignored as the entire Indiana government was reorganized by the new chief. "At the will of the governor," was the phrase repeatedly written into the law regarding the governor's power to appoint to state office.

Under the power of this law, which gave him the authority to change the personnel of all penal institutions, McNutt immediately reshaped the boards of trustees of the state prison at Michigan City, the reformatory at Pendleton, and the penal farm at Putnamville. Two-thirds of the guard personnel at the Michigan City prison was changed with the new guards being selected, according to charges, on the basis of political service.

The new guards were inexperienced. An instance of the increased laxity was shown by the routine accepted in the prison shirt factory, where materials were shipped into the prison without packages being examined except by the prisoners themselves.

Blamed for Prison Break.

This procedure made a perfect setting for a jail break and it has been charged that as a direct result of this laxity ten law defying convicts were able to make their brazen but successful break for liberty last September with weapons that were reputedly smuggled in to them by Dillinger. So thoroughly had the convicts and their outside leader prepared their plot under the very eyes of their guards that they marched straight out of the institution while McNutt's unsuspecting prison attendants looked on without suspicion.

Several months before he engineered that break, Dillinger had dealings with the McNutt officials and had fared quite well. He had assaulted and robbed an elderly merchant in his home town of Mooresville, Ind., and was consequently sentenced on Sept. 15, 1924, to serve an indeterminate sentence of from 10 to 21 years. He spent his time from the date of his sentence until July 15, 1929, at the state reformatory, which was then at Jeffersonville, and was then transferred to the prison at Michigan City.

He remained there for nearly four years, during which he established a poor record by drawing six demerits. Shortly after the McNutt reorganization of state penal institutions, however, he petitioned for a parole. Despite his record at the prison he was successful in his request before the McNut controled board of prison trustees. The board acted favorably on his petition and the parole was later approved by the governor himself.

Razor Found in Cell.

The marks against Dillinger during his stay at the Michigan City penitentiary were for being found in another man's cell, for twice talking while marching in line, for possessing cigaret papers, for gambling in a dormitory, and for shaving himself in his cell.

This last demerit was considered with new interest in the light of his recent escape from the Crown Point jail with a wooden pistol he had fashioned by whittling down a block of wood with a safety razor and applying parts of the razor to make his "weapon" appear more realistic.

After receiving his parole Dillinger blithely returned to Mooresville, thanked his neighbors who had signed his parole petition, visited his assault victim, and began attending his family's church. Then suddenly he disappeared. Indiana authorities next heard from him again when they learned he had engineered the escape of convicts from the same institution from which they had helped to release him.

Gov. McNutt ordered a "drastic investigation" after the September prison break and considered appointing a citizens' bi-partisan committee to inquire into conditions. But he didn't appoint the committee, and instead announced a report of his prison trustees which "whitewashed" the political personnel at the prison. The report did result in the removal of the prison's deputy warden, William Claudy, a Republican.

HOUSEKEEPER QUITS; SHE LOSES $74,000 IN EMPLOYER'S WILL

Boston, Mass., March 6.—(AP)—When Katherine Ellen Sweeney, housekeeper for George Baldwin French, left her place of employment "without ascribing any definite reason therefore," she left $74,000 behind.

French's will was filed for probate in the Suffolk county courthouse today and thus the disclosure was made.

French died on Feb. 26. Seventeen days before his death, he made a codicil, which wiped out a trust fund of $50,000 and a cash bequest of $35,000 made to his housekeeper in the original will. Under the codicil she received a bequest of $1,000.

The money which the housekeeper would have received was bequeathed to charitable institutions.

TROOPS GUARD DILLINGER PAL'S TRIAL AS KILLER

Lima, O., March 6.—(AP)—Harry Pierpont, once a traveling associate of John Dillinger, jail breaker, probably will not testify in his trial here for the murder of former Sheriff Jess L. Sarber. That was indicated today in questions put to prospective jurors, twenty-three of whom were dismissed for objection to the death penalty.

Each venireman was asked whether he would be prejudiced if Pierpont did not testify. As the first day of the trial ended eight men and four women had been qualified, although each side still has six peremptory challenges. The first venire drawn had 60 names.

The close attention which deputies and National Guardsmen are giving to any one who manages to get into the courthouse became one of the questions involved in the trial today. Miss Jessie Levy, Indianapolis attorney representing Pierpont, inquired of each venireman as to whether he had been searched.

National Guardsmen stationed at the top of the stairs leading to the courtroom had frisked every one but the judge and the attorneys. More National Guardsmen have been ordered into town.

SIMS DAZZLES AUDIENCE WITH BRIDGE SKILL

Expert Thrills 500 When Plays Succeed.

Before an audience of 500 bridge fans in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House P. Hal Sims, noted bridge expert and conductor of THE TRIBUNE's "Conquering Contract" column, gave a demonstration of his craft last night. The audience, though cautioned to remain silent during the course of the hands, burst into spontaneous applause on several occasions as Mr. Sims and the other players executed difficult and unusual plays.

Ten hands were played in the exhibition, which was sponsored by the Kenwood branch of the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago. The proceeds of the exhibition were donated to the society by Mr. Sims. In most of the hands his partner was John Rau. Their opponents were the teams of Robert Halpin and Louis Haddad, Paul Parcells and Charles Rilling, and Frank Brown and Harry Kempner.

Audience Gasps at Skill.

The hands in the various deals were given in printed programs and also were displayed with white cards on a black board out of sight of the players. Several times during the exhibition the audience, following the bidding and play, gasped when a trick apparently was played wrong and waited with glee to see "the experts get set." Mr. Sims didnt' oblige them, but his chuckles were carried over the announcer's microphone when the team of Brown and Kempner went down six on a grand slam no trump bid, vulnerable and doubled.

The comments of the experts, on the whole, were not much different from those heard at an ordinary bridge table.

Mr. Brown, protesting at his partner's ambitious seven no trump bid when Kempner put down the dummy, and it was apparent that the contract was hopeless, said to Kempner: "Looks like time for a shooting."

"You both ought to be shot," said Mr. Sims amiably as he led a low spade to his partner's ace and then spread down five more spade tricks when Rau returned a spade to his king through Brown's queen.

As the last hand was about to be played, E. Hall Downs, who announced the details of the match through a microphone on the players' platform, told the audience: "Mr. Sims is commonly recognized as the greatest no trump player in the world."

Follows No Trump Rule.

The first three players passed. Mr. Sims, sitting fourth, had a 4-3-3-3 distribution with king, queen in clubs, his four suiter; king, queen of spades, and the king of hearts. True to his system of opening third and fourth hands containing less strength than first and second hands he bid a no trump. His partner, now Mr. Halpin, with two and a half honor tricks raised him to two no trump and Mr. Sims went to three no trump. Mr. Rau and Harry Steiner were his opponents.

Rau opened with his singleton club. Throughout the early play of the hand Mr. Sims avoided the heart suit in which he would have five tricks if a finesse for the jack held. The audience could see the finesse might make, but would cause Mr. Sims a needed entry to the dummy where lay the ace, queen of hearts, and three others.

Mr. Sims took the finesse late in the hand, but did not have another heart with which to lead to dummy and cash the queen, eight of hearts. On the ninth trick he threw Mr. Steiner into the lead and allowed him to cash two club tricks and, while the audience applauded, Mr. Steiner was forced to lead his jack of hearts up to dummy, allowing the hand to be made.

FOUND SHOT TO DEATH.

Earl Smith, 50 years old, was found shot to death yesterday in his room at 543 Madison street. A revolver was gripped in his right hand. Police expressed the belief that he had committed suicide.

LEAVES $100,000, BUT BARS USE OF MONEY FOR TRAVEL ABROAD

Woodbury, N. J., March 6.—[Special.]—Dr. Mary W. Griscom, who has been around the world three times, said today that she would abide by the wishes of her father, James C. Griscom, who stipulated in his will that the heirs of his $100,000 estate should not use the money for travel anywhere but in the United States. The will, probated today, also specifies that no bequest is to be used for "foreign missions, foreigners, or in foreign countries."

DUNHAM DENIES EX-PROSECUTOR'S RELIEF CHARGES

Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, yesterday characterized as "unjustified" charges of James A. Peterson, who resigned Monday as prosecutor of frauds for the commission, that he had not received proper coöperation from his superiors. Peterson had said the investigating staf was taken from his control and that he was hampered by department heads in his investigations.

"I consider Mr. Peterson's action and the manner in which he carried it out, very unfortunate from his viewpoint," Mr. Dunham said. "His letter of resignation was received in my office one hour after I had left the city for Springfield. He should have awaited my return before he announced his resignation and given me the courtesy of discussing it.

"He is a young lawyer who, seemingly, has not yet learned the ethics of his profession. He has received my full accord and support during the six months I have headed the commission. During that time he has had much publicity. Oftentimes, with a young man, that brings a result whereiln a very small cog thinks he is the whole machine. His public statements are unjustified and he is deserving of a very severe rebuke.

"Not only has Mr. Peterson acted very shamefully, he has also misstated facts. The staf of his department has not been decreased—it has been augmented—and he has received every coöperation."

FIND GAS AND OIL IN WELL ON FARM IN LAKE COUNTY

A crew drilling an artesian well on the farm of James Doyle, south of Rondout in Lake county, yesterday encountered a natural gas and oil deposit at a depth of 80 feet. The gas was flowing last evening in a steady pressure and chemists from the Northbrook plant of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois took several samples to determine its heat content.

The Doyle farm adjoins the Charles True farm where natural gas was found at a depth of 158 feet three years ago. This well has been capped and furnishes light and heat for the farm house at the present time. The finding of the gas and oil deposit yesterday tends to support assertions of Benjamin A. Dick, Chicago geologist, who examined rock formations in Lake county several years ago and announced that there were mineral and gas deposits in the county.

LAWYER CENSURED AS $28,000 VERDICT IN CRASH IS UPHELD

In an opinion yesterday upholding a Superior court jury verdict of $28,000 for Mrs. Clara D. Watson, 48 years old, of Bensenville in a personal injury suit against Edward Trinz, former theater owner, the Appellate court censured Trinz and his attorney, John A. Bloomingston, for presenting a "dishonest defense." The opinion said that Attorney Bloomingston had "conducted himself improperly" before Judge John H. Prichs of Pana, who heard the case in the Superior court, and held that Bloomingston should have been held in contempt of court for "flagrant misconduct."

Mrs. Watson was struck by an automobile owned by Trinz or his wife on April 1, 1928. She first won a verdict of $42,500 for the injuries, but the Appellate court reversed this judgment, holding that the evidence had not shown that Trinz' wife, Rosalie, who was a defendant, was the owner of the car. The case was remanded to Judge Prichs, and on Attorney Bloomingston's assertion that Mrs. Trinz was not the owner she was dismissed as a defendant. The attorney then put Trinz on the stand and he testified that his wife owned the car. Judge Prichs then rescinded his order dismissing Mrs. Trinz and, after the $28,000 verdict was returned, Attorney Bloomingston appealed on the grounds that the judge erred in changing his order.

"The very unusual situation presented to the trial court undoubtedly shocked the sense of justice," the opinion read, "and it would be a serious commentary on our procedure if the court had been helpless to protect the plaintiff from becoming a victim of a dishonest defense. Defendants do not come to this court with clean hands."

STATE OFFICIALS CONFER TO DAM LIQUOR TAX LEAK

J. M. Braude, associate director of the state department of finance, met yesterday with officials from Wisconsin and Minnesota to discuss problems affecting collection of state revenue on interstate liquor shipments. Officials from all the wet states are to be invited to participate in a national conference to be held in Chicago in about three weeks.

David R. Arundel, liquor control commissioner of Minnesota, pointed out the necessity for a uniform system of collecting state revenue so that liquor manufacturers cannot claim tax exemptions on interstate liquor shipments that do not exist. Arthur J. Palmer, beverage tax director for Wisconsin, asserted that unless some unified plan is adopted by all the states millions of dollars in liquor revenue will be lost annually.

Under the present system distillers may claim exemptions on hard liquor manufactured in one state for consumption in another state. The state tax per gallon on hard liquor consumed in Illinois is 50 cents. In Minnesota the tax is 60 cents and in Wisconsin one dollar.

JUDGE WILL RULE SATURDAY UPON HALTING RECOUNT

After a stormy six hour hearing yesterday on the two petitions filed in the Superior court to halt the recount of all ballots cast in the general election of Nov. 8, 1932, Judge James J. Kelly announced that he will make public his rulings Saturday morning. One of the petitions asks a writ of prohibition to prevent County Judge Jarecki from ordering the recount, and the other asks for a writ of mandamus to compel the election commissioners to destroy the ballots cast in the general election.

Yesterday's witnesses were Municipal Judge Samuel Heller, who won his seat a few months ago after contesting the election of Erwin J. Hasten on the official returns, and Roland T. Steinert, an employe of members of the citizens' committee which asked the general recount and a Heller watcher at the election contest. It was because of alleged vote frauds uncovered during the recount that the general recount was sought.

Both Judge Heller and Steinert clashed frequently with Attorney Theodore Levin who represents the taxpayer complainant in Judge Kelly's court. They asserted that his questions concerning political aspects of the recount were immaterial. The lawyer alleged that he was seeking to show that the recount was wholly a political move and not brought in good faith.

THE COLD FACTS ABOUT COLDS!

What a Cold is and What is Required for Relief

Clearing Up a Subject on Which Much Misinformation Has Been Promulgated!

EVERY YEAR colds take a heavy toll in health, time and money. As a result of the prevalence of colds, much misinformation on the subject of colds has been spread about. There are so many "cures" for colds now that one wonders if there is anything good for anything else.

All kinds of self-appointed experts tell you what to do for a cold. Some tell you to soak your feet. Others tell you to fill your head with vapors. Still others tell you to wash your mouth and gargle. Still others advise chest rubs. Between them all you would be doing everything but painting yourself.

The joke of it—or rather the tragedy of it—is that these measures for the most part are like trying to cure dandruff by clipping the hair. They just don't reach the seat of the trouble.

An Internal Infection That May End in Flu!

It is well to remember what a cold is. A cold is an infection produced within the system by a germ, a germ so small that it will pass through the finest filter and hence it is easily spread. A cold, in other words, is an internal infection that may pave the way for other diseases, including flu.

A cold, therefore, plainly calls for internal treatment.

A cold also is something of a definite condition. Relief calls for certain definite effects. How, then, can a preparation that's good for half a dozen things besides colds be equally effective for colds? Yet medicines that are good for neuritis, toothaches, halitosis, dandruff, etc., seven months of the year suddenly blossom out as cold remedies during the winter months! If there is anything that common sense dictates, it is a cold remedy for a cold.

The Four Effects Called For

Obviously, to get rid of a cold you must kill the infection within the system and drive out the poisonous matter it has created.

That calls for a remedy that will do certain definite things.

The remedy called for is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine because it does the four things necessary.

First, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly, the first step in expelling a cold.

Second, it combats the cold germs and fever in the system.

Safe to Take!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Every drug store in America sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good dealers won't try to talk you into something else for the sake of a few pennies more profit.

When a cold threatens, play the part of wisdom. Don't wait or waste time with makeshift methods, but get a package of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine and start taking the tablets immediately. Taken in time they will usually expel a cold overnight and that's the action required for safety.

Get Rid of Bad Breath at Its Source . . . Keep Breath Sweet 24 Hours a Day . . . Way Doctors Advise

Don't fool yourself into believing that you are secure simply because a rinse or gargle with a mouthwash leaves your mouth tingling with a clean, pleasant taste.

To get rid of bad breath and taste you must get at the root of the trouble. That's in your stomach if you're an average person. Excess acids ferment foods, form obnoxious gases that rise up into the mouth and cause embarrassment.

So naturally the easiest, surest way to get relief is to get at the root of the trouble. Doctors advise a teaspoonful of BiSoDoL in water morning and night.

This pleasant-tasting blend of six valuable digestive remedies works wonders. It swiftly neutralizes excess acids, soothes and heals the inflamed mucous membranes, and keeps your stomach so settled and sweet that you are sure of waking up in the morning with a clean, pleasant taste and certain of having a sweet, inconspicuous breath all day!

Don't forget that your breath is only as sweet as your stomach and nothing can keep the stomach any sweeter than BiSoDoL. Try it. Also when you have indigestion, gas, heartburn or any other distressing acid trouble take BiSoDoL. It's the improved, quicker-acting way to get rid of pain and discomfort that doctors have used for many years with remarkable success. All druggists sell it for only 25c a package.

"AN EYE TO THE FUTURE — AN EAR TO THE GROUND"

—this describes General Motors' policy, a policy by which the public is given what it wants in better cars year after year, and yet is safely protected against ill-timed or dubious experiments

"I am confident that a more intimate, detailed and systematic knowledge of the consumer's desires will afford a sound and progressive basis upon which to meet the new conditions as they unfold."

ALFRED P. SLOAN, JR.
President, General Motors
(From message to stockholders, September 11, 1933)

Even MORE than they expected!

ONE of the real surprises to the public—and to the motor industry—is the mature beauty of General Motors streamlining for 1934.

They expected No-Draft Ventilation. Knee-Action Wheels had been announced. These were enough to arouse excitement. But streamlining made the score for General Motors "three in a row."

It wasn't luck that gave this winning combination to our cars. It wasn't daring. This organization has entirely too many friends—too deep a sense of responsibility to almost half of all the people who now own cars—to make any experiment with finished models.

And anyone who listens to what the whole public is saying about the new Chevrolets, Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs, Buicks, La Salles and Cadillacs today, will hear what General Motors heard from hundreds of thousands of car owners many months ago.

HOW GENERAL MOTORS LEADERSHIP KEEPS IN STEP WITH YOUR DESIRES

FIRST—The vast and varied activities in research and experiment pursued by General Motors cover virtually the whole field of transportation. Its work in aero-streamlining over many years, for example, embraces airplanes, automobiles, even railway trains.

SECOND—Through the largest automotive dealer organization in the world General Motors is in close understanding of the public mind; and every year this understanding is verified and double-checked—last year through more than a million questionnaires mailed to owners of all makes of cars.★

THIRD—It is a hard and fast policy of General Motors to suffer its own mistakes, to test and prove every innovation under conditions beyond those of normal use, to protect the buyer against any experiment of doubtful utility or value.

FOURTH—The balanced excellence of General Motors cars in 1934 as in other years includes ample and numerous features such as safe, smart, roomier Fisher Bodies, perfected No-Draft Ventilation, Knee-Action Wheels, smoother, more powerful motors, better brakes, to mention just a few.

This medallion commemorates the twenty-fifth anniversary of General Motors and of its public-minded interest in the advancement of motor transportation

MANY CONTESTS FILED IN WARD COMMITTEE RACE

Regular Democrats Oppose 94 Candidates.

An unprecedented number of contests against nominating petitions for ward committeemen were filed at County Clerk Sweitzer's office yesterday shortly before the 5 o'clock deadline for contests and for withdrawals.

Cornelius J. Harrington, attorney for the Democratic organization, entered contests against 94 candidates who had filed against the regular slate entries. But the regulars did not escape entirely. Edward M. Sneed, now committeeman from the 3d ward, was the object of an attack by Herman E. Moore which alleged that the Sneed petition had been notarized by a man whose commission as a notary public had expired. Another contest was directed at the petition of Horace G. Lindheimer, 5th ward.

Republican Contests Filed.

There also were a number of Republican contests filed. Patrick B. Prescott, entered with the backing of Earl B. Dickerson, assistant attorney general, attacked the candidacy of Congressman Oscar De Priest for reelection as committeeman from the 3d ward. Hearing of the contests before the election board starts tomorrow.

The final withdrawals left lists of 131 Democratic and 169 Republican aspirants for places on the county committee of the two parties. The lists, with numerals indicating the wards and asterisks the incumbents, follow:

ELECTION BOARD ASKS FOR $100,000 BUDGET INCREASE

Fred V. Maguire, chairman of the board of election commissioners, appealed yesterday to Mayor Kelly for an increase of approximately $100,000 in his department's appropriation for 1934. The amount recommended for the board by the council finance committee was $729,343. The mayor said he would determine whether additional funds could be obtained.

One of the items mentioned by Mr. Maguire was the appropriation for the prosecution of vote frauds. The board had asked for $18,500, out of which $9,388 would have to be paid for prosecutions conducted last year. The council cut the request to $15,000. Mr. Maguire said he would need $10,000 more.

COUNTY PRIMARY LINEUP TO STAND; FEW LATE SHIFTS

Six Important Democratic Candidates Unopposed.

Last minute withdrawals yesterday of petitions of candidates for nomination to county and sanitary district offices failed to produce any material shifts in the lineups for the primaries of April 10.

The office of County Clerk Sweitzer was closely watched by regular organization representatives until the 5 o'clock deadline but they found that the few chances in battle lines were of no great consequence.

6 Democrats Unopposed.

It was disclosed, however, that withdrawals on Monday had left the regular Democratic candidates for county tax offices without opposition. They are Ald. John S. Clark for assessor and Fred W. Brummel and Emmett Whealan for the board of tax appeals. Three other Democrats running for important offices have no opponents, but there is some sort of a Republican contest for every place on the ballot.

It was said that the Democrats, who control the election machinery, intend this year to change the order in which the several offices will appear on the ballot. This, it was reported, will be done in order to bring to the top of the column the man they regard as the head of their ticket, County Clerk Sweitzer, who is without opposition for the nomination for county treasurer.

If that change is made, the groups for sanitary trusteeships probably will follow all county offices except county board lists on the ballot. In that form with the asterisks [*] indicating the incumbents and the letter [R] denoting regular organization entries, the lists follow:

DEMOCRATIC.

County Treasurer—Robert M. Sweitzer [R].
County Clerk—Joseph B. McDonough [R].
County Judge—*Edmund K. Jarecki [R], C. H. Kavanagh.

TWO GUILTY IN ROBBERY.

Joseph Dorsey, 21 years old, and Anthony Macia, 22 years old, were found guilty yesterday by Judge James F. Fardy of the robbery of Edward Braun, owner of a handbook at 39 West Adams street, of $89 on Nov. 3, 1933.

ADOPTION DECREE REFUSED TO AVOID SEPARATING TWINS

Judge J. G. Van Keuren of Duquoin, sitting in County court, yesterday refused to grant a decree of adoption because it might mean a lifetime separation for Jean and Joan Barlow, 3½ year old twins. Mr. and Mrs. William Gardner, 2329 Diversey parkway, who have reared Jean Barlow for three years, sought to gain legal custody of the child, and the action was opposed by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Barlow, 3717 Belden avenue, on the ground that Jean should not be legally separated from her twin sister. While Jean played about the courtroom, Judge Van Keuren ruled with the parents and refused to enter the decree.

10,000 PROPERTY OWNERS RUSH TO PAY ON '32 TAXES

Opening Day Is Biggest in Several Years.

Taxpayers from throughout Cook county came to the county building yesterday in an almost unprecedented rush to pay their 1932 tax bills. At the office of County Treasurer McDonough on the first floor of the building, where the bills are payable, long lines of taxpayers formed early in the day at the receiving cages and increased until nightfall.

Last night the treasurer estimated that ten thousand persons had paid their bills yesterday. Most of them were small taxpayers. The total of 1932 real estate taxes collected during the day was $155,632. Personal property collections totaled $33,213.

Biggest Crowd in Years.

Edward J. McCabe, assistant to the treasurer, said that the crowds yesterday were greater for an opening day than at any time in the last several years. Many property owners received their bills only Monday, but are mastening to pay because of their improved financial conditions this year.

The deadline for the payment of the first instalment of 1932 taxes has been set tentatively for April 15. This date will be effective if all tax bills are mailed out by March 15 as the statute provides that thirty days must elapse between the date of the mailing of the last bill and the payment deadline. The treasurer found it necessary to extend the deadline from March 1 because of the delay in the county taxing machinery. The treasurer is now mailing out the bills at the rate of 160,000 a day.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday, including those for 1932, were $289,000, making a total of $199,814,534 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28, 1933. The day's collection of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

March 6	$ 1,785	$ 6,312
Uncollected	15,068,166	40,382,816
	1930.	1931.
March 6	$ 18,197	$ 107,083

County Judge Jarecki yesterday overruled objections to the 1928 and 1929 taxes on the Chicago Edgewater subpostal station at 1240 Lawrence avenue. He indicated that his rulings would be similar today in the cases of seven other stations. The stations are owned by Raymond D. Brown of Indianapolis, president and treasurer of the United States Postoffice corporation, which leases them to the postoffice department.

Must Pay $690.

Thomas J. McGovern, representing Assessor J. L. Jacobs, asserted in his argument to overrule the objections that the government was paying $18,480 a year on the Edgewater substation lease and that a fair value of the property would be $90,000. The property was assessed at $63,680 for 1928 and 1929 and Attorney William Grace, counsel for Brown, asked that the assessment be lowered with a resulting lower tax bill. Judge Jarecki's denial of the objections means that the corporation must pay a total of $690, the balance of the taxes on the property for the two years.

In another hearing before him yesterday, Judge Jarecki ordered attorneys for the Chicago Real Estate board to expedite presentation of their testimony in the suit in which they are seeking a 15 per cent reduction in the 1931 assessments on the 438,000 homes and small flat buildings in the county.

WAUKEGAN RAID NETS FIRST STILL SINCE DRYS LOST

Chief of Police Edwin Ahlstrom of Waukegan yesterday made the first raid on a bootleg still in Lake county since repeal of prohibition. In a residence at 650 McAlister avenue, Waukegan, he seized Peter Hroian, 39 years old, the owner, and Christ Nicoloff, 40 years old. The two men were watching a large still in which a mash of corn and raisins was bubbling over the fire.

The chief also seized a large quantity of supplies including three barrels of mash, a quantity of raisins and several bags of sugar in the place.

The prisoners were charged with operating a still without a state license and with manufacturing spirits without paying the state tax.

BUSINESS HEAD AND WIFE ROBBED IN CAR BY BANDIT

A robber last night held up David Blair, president of the Blair Corset company, and his wife, Mrs. Lee Blair, and robbed them of property valued at about $5,000. The robber stepped up to their car as Blair stopped in front of his office at 231 South Green street and got into the rear seat of the automobile. Keeping his pistol in Blair's back, he ordered that the car be driven to Loomis and Adams streets. There he forced Mrs. Blair to surrender her mink coat valued at $3,000, an engagement ring worth $1,800, and a $300 wedding ring and made her husband give up $65 in cash.

STORE CLERK HIT WHEN POLICEMAN AND BANDIT FIRE

Harry D. Cohen, 42 years old, 4423 Sheridan road, was shot in the back and seriously wounded last night in a cigar store at 500 South Wabash avenue, where he is a clerk. He was struck during an exchange of shots between a bandit and Policeman William O'Grady of the South State street station.

The bandit stepped up to Cohen, whose right arm is amputated, and ordered him to put up his hand. Then he marched the clerk toward the rear of the place, unaware that the policeman was hiding there. O'Grady had been detailed to the store since last Saturday to guard against holdups.

The policeman said later that the bandit fired a shot when he saw there was someone else in the rear room. He declared that the robber's bullet struck Cohen and that his one answering shot missed. However, at St. Anne's hospital Cohen said he was struck by a bullet from the policeman's gun.

Jury Clears Physician After Death of Woman

A coroner's jury yesterday absolved Dr. Clyde P. Stoller, 5602 West Chicago avenue, of any blame for the death of Mrs. Phyllis Benson, 23 years old, 5053 Le Moyne street. Mrs. Benson died in the Blaine Ramsey hospital Feb. 6 after Dr. Stoller had performed an operation for her. The physician was arrested and charged with performing an abortion. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

"CHOKING" May Waste Gas Enough to Run a Five Ton Truck

Excess choking douses your cold engine with raw gasoline. For, with the choke clear out you use up at least twice as much—sometimes twenty times as much—fuel as in normal operation. That is senseless waste these days. Because there is now a gasoline so fast-starting that your motor hums into action, warms up speedily and delivers smooth, sustained power through the first mile and every mile after. Try it!

THE NEW LIBERALISM.

The United States Supreme court upholds the right of the New York state milk control board, under an act of the legislature, to license milk dealers to fix the prices they must charge their customers and to punish offenders by fine and prison.

The milk control board of New York fixed the retail price at 9 cents a quart. Leo Nebbia, a small storekeeper in Rochester, gave a loaf of bread with each purchase of two quarts of milk at the price fixed. "He was convicted," Justice McReynolds wrote in the dissenting opinion, "of a crime for selling his own property—wholesome milk—in the ordinary course of business at a price satisfactory to himself and the customer."

The four dissenting justices are known as the conservative judges. The five judges agreeing to the majority opinion are hailed as the liberal judges.

According to their decision a citizen conducting a business in a small way is guilty of a crime if he sells milk at a price satisfactory both to him and to the purchaser or if selling at the high price fixed by a political board he gives away a loaf of bread to a buyer of two bottles.

If this is liberalism, what is tyranny?

REVIEW OF BUROCRATIC RULINGS.

In the original bill for the regulation of the food, drug, and cosmetic industries, as it came from the hands of its authors, Prof. Tugwell and Bureau Chief Campbell, there was no provision for a review of the decisions of the secretary, save such as might remain with the courts. As litigation is both expensive and tardy, representatives of the industries concerned asked that some provision for prior review be made in the proposed law, and the subcommittee of the senate in charge of the bill included among other amendments a provision for the establishment of a committee on public health, consisting of five members designated by the President, "with a view to their distinguished scientific attainment and interest in public health and without regard to their political affiliation," and a committee on food standards consisting of seven members, three of them to be selected from the public, two from the food producing, processing, and manufacturing industries, and two from the food and drug administration.

The function of the committee on public health is "to aid and advise the secretary in promulgating the regulations for the protection of the public health" under certain sections of the bill, and the function of the committee on food standards is to "aid and advise" the secretary in the promulgation of regulations with respect to food authorized by other sections of the bill.

These committees, while they provided some check upon the regulatory powers of the secretary, were in no sense an answer to the reasonable demand of the industries for an agency of review, and accordingly provisions for effective review have been included in the McCarren bill offered as a substitute for the Tugwell bill and now before the senate committee. The provisions set up an administrative board of review to consist of five members appointed by the President for terms and subject to regulations to be prescribed by him and to removal for cause. It is provided that charges of violation of the act shall first be heard by the secretary or his representative and that upon a finding of violation and report to the alleged violator the latter may have the right of review upon prompt application to the board and approval thereof by the board. The decision of the board after due hearing that the appellant has not violated the act shall be binding upon the secretary and a majority vote of the board shall prevail upon any motion before or decision of the board.

Such a safeguard for the rights and legitimate interests of the citizen should be included in any measure adopted by congress for the burocratic regulation of private industry. The extensions of regulation proposed by the Tugwell measure are inordinate and reckless of private right and should be drastically reduced, but even the better advised grants of administrative authority now proposed require the safeguard of adequate review.

THE HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION.

The problem Mr. Carnera presents to young men in the ring is one composed of height, reach, weight, and feet, and some of the young men are not so young. The giant boxer has the edge in youth. Tommy Loughran, who lasted fifteen rounds with him and had the better of some of them, is a veteran in years as well as experience. Mr. Loughran complained that he had almost as much trouble with Mr. Carnera's feet as he had with his gloves. Tommy's footwork is very good, but it is cramped when a man of 86 pounds greater weight is standing on his toes. It was a reasonable remark of one of the ring officials that Carnera has to put his feet somewhere, although unfortunate if the other fighter is under them.

In the ring classifications other than heavy the weight is essential. If a man cannot get down to the limit he does not have a chance at the championship and its profitable trimmings, but any heavyweight is a heavyweight, and nature in Carnera's case left no doubt about it. He is a heavyweight, and if he leans on an opponent a few seconds the other fighter has done a day's work before he breaks away. There have been other big men in the ring, but Carnera almost requires a new classification. If he is a heavyweight the other heavies are middleweights.

THE BAR AND THE LAWYER CRIMINAL.

Whatever the consequences of the decision of the state Supreme court in the Lieber case may be, it has had the effect of calling emphatic attention to our faulty administration of justice, and, it may be hoped, will result in some needed corrections. In the discussion already under way lawyers will take a leading part. It is proper that the opinions and suggestions of men whose lives are given to the study and practice of the law and who have experience in the actual operation of the courts should be given special consideration by the public and by the legislature. But professional opinion has its faults and limitations. It is sometimes rather blind to them. It is sometimes indifferent to serious conditions which the lay public feels acutely. This disparages the influence of the bar, and justly.

For a conspicuous example we suggest that the bar association, not only in our own community but in the country generally, would carry more weight if it took the menace of the lawyer criminal more seriously and vigorously attacked it. The profession has been culpably indifferent to this evil, which is a discredit to the profession as well as a serious injury to the public. The lawyer criminal, whose livelihood and profit are in the habitual and virtually exclusive defense of criminals, whose association is with men of notorious ill repute, and whose methods of defense are without scruple, is a relatively recent development. The defense of individuals charged with crime is a duty of the profession and has been undertaken by its most eminent members. In past generations every conspicuous lawyer took criminal cases and the most unimpeachable lawyers today occasionally take them. There is no discredit in this. The discredit lies in the way this duty is abused. The individual charged with crime is entitled to a lawful conduct of his defense and to nothing more. His counsel's duty to him is to see that he gets this. The lawyer criminal is bound by no such limits. He uses every means without scruple to bring success.

It is difficult to establish the lawlessness of the lawyer criminal and much of it is out of reach of punishment. But a good deal can be done to curb and punish it, and we believe it is one of the most urgent duties of the bar that it should be done without further procrastination. While the lawyer criminal flourishes he is a menace to society and a disgrace to the legal profession which it cannot afford to tolerate.

NO DICTATORSHIP FOR JOHN BULL.

The managers of the British Labor party do not like recent remarks of the former solicitor general in the late Labor government, Sir Stafford Cripps, which suggest a dictatorship when Labor comes into power. The executive committee of the party has taken them seriously enough to publish a disavowal, which also contains the following interesting assertion of principle:

"The Labor party, as has repeatedly been made plain in its official declarations, stands for parliamentary democracy. It is firmly opposed to individual or group dictatorship whether from the right or from the left. It holds that the best and, indeed, the only tolerable form of government for this country is democratic government with a free electoral system and an active and efficient parliamentary machine for reaching effective decisions after reasonable opportunities for discussion and criticism.

"In so far as any statements which are at variance with the declared policy of the party on this question have been or may be made by individuals, these are hereby definitly repudiated by the national executive."

The tide of reaction which has swept over democratic institutions on the continent, and is felt in plausible disguise even in America, has not shaken the political philosophy of the British.

Editorial of the Day

AND NOW A COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION.

[The Peoria Transcript.]

In a special message to congress President Roosevelt asked for the establishment of a new federal agency to be known as the federal communications commission, which would be given "full power to investigate and study the business of existing companies and make recommendations to the congress for additional legislation at the next session."

A communications merger under federal control was forecast long ago. Committees of both houses of congress are said to be ready to introduce bills which, if enacted into law, would enable the new federal commission to reduce rates, prevent discrimination and stock watering and control speculative management and contracts with foreign countries.

The new agency probably would be assigned the symbol FCC, unless that combination has already been allocated. In any case, the President's latest move is another step in the process of socializing industry. Whenever this administration sees anything that is not socialized it immpediately jumps into the breach and proposes new legislation.

Inasmuch as radio is now under effective government control, a control which may be supported by many good arguments, an extension of the federal principle to wires and cables with "broad authority" vested in a regulatory commission would give the federal government a strangle hold on newspapers without openly flouting the "freedom of the press" reservation in the newspaper publishers' code.

It will be recalled that the federal radio commission early in the month issued a "news release" to broadcasting stations virtually forbidding them to accept liquor advertising. There was no explicit ban on such advertising, but the intimation was clear that the commission disapproved it.

If wire and cables, as well as wave lengths, are to be brought under control of a federal communications commission with "broader powers," the press may be no better off than are the radio stations today. It is characteristic of all government that it uses any and all available means to enforce its policies. Men at the top may be benevolent and high minded, but men at the bottom, like army officers who are flying the mails, either will take orders without protest or will go to extremes in complying with the assumed wishes of their bosses.

The proposed act of congress under which a federal communications commission of seven members would be set up will bear watching.

EVERETT SANDERS, the national chairman of the G. O. P., tossed a pretty bouquet to the administration at the end of its first year, which is mighty nice for a Republican leader to do. He says Gen. Johnson is the very best man possible to make NRA succeed. And then he said that nobody could make NRA succeed, because such a thing was impossible. It was a pretty bouquet, but after all there seems to have been a brick in it.

AND YESTERDAY in the morning papers we read that Jesse Livermore, the stock plunger who has taken millions of dollars out of Wall street, was broke and had gone into bankruptcy. Moral: Don't speculate—"All passes, art alone endures." But in the afternoon papers we read that Charles Beahan, the playright and novelist, had gone broke and filed a petition in bankruptcy. COME BACK.

Come back from your far country
And sit an hour with me;
The house you loved is quiet,
The hearth fire good to see.

Only my eyes shall greet you;
I shall not cry your name,
Asking of your strange journey

Return in peace, unquestioned.
There shall not be one tear,
One word to tell how lonely
A heart can be, my dear.

But we shall sit in silence
Just as we used to do,
Close in the understanding,
The old content we knew.

And when your time for going
Is come, dear guest of mine,
I shall not seek to stay you

ADELAIDE LOVE.

THE DENTAL TECHNICIANS' EQUITY are going to start a strike in New York beginning next Tuesday. If the Dental Technicians are the ones who put the twenty year old magazines out on the dentists' tables every morning and carefully carry them away at night to lock up in the burglar proof safe until next morning we needn't worry how long they stay on strike. Now we can hurry to a dentist's office and get a tooth pulled without suffering from having to read the magazines. But maybe the dentists put the magazines there themselves. Maybe they figure that if a patient reads one of those old yellow back number magazines having a tooth filled will be a relief.

HERE'S AN IDEA! Desperate prisoners can be kept in jail in Indiana. Think a moment! Remember when the escaped convicts went charging around in Indiana robbing banks and having things pretty much their own way until they got to the little dreamy village of Bean Blossom. And there the groceryman, the village blacksmith, the town clerk, and the shoemakers simply picked up a few guns they had lying around handy and stepped out into the street and laid down a barrage on the convicts that killed one of them and drove the others in frantic retreat from the town. All right, then. Why not have desperate convicts in Indiana put in the Bean Blossom calaboose? The National Guard or state police or special posses won't be needed. The people down there in Bean Blossom will take care of things. If any desperado gets out of that Bean Blossom calaboose unless he's told he can go, by golly, he'll go out feet first.

TO EAT OR NOT TO EAT FATS.

A CORRESPONDENT wants to know why he has received contradictory advice about taking fats and nonpurgative oils for his gall bladder trouble. The question is one that is often asked. Physicians not infrequently are at a loss whether to advise their gall bladder cases to take nonpurgative oils freely or to refrain from eating them entirely. Sometimes they give advice one way and later change it and advise directly the other way.

This apparent indecision may not be indecision at all and it rarely results from ignorance. Nonpurgative oils are excellent agents to cause the gall bladder to empty its bile. We have no better agents for that purpose. Therefore, if in a given case the objective is to cause the gall bladder to empty, fats and nonpurgative oils are given.

These are olive oil, butter, cream, eggs, fat meat, and occasionally nuts. But oils and fats are hard to digest and they throw tasks especially on the liver. If the liver is a good deal damaged—and it is very apt to be damaged if the gall bladder trouble has persisted long—the sufferer from gall bladder attacks heads into trouble when he eats freely of fats. In many cases of gall bladder trouble the sufferer remains free from symptoms so long as he eats very little cream, butter, oils, eggs, gravies, and fat meats.

In cases of gallstones an attack of colic may follow a rich meal—one containing much highly seasoned food, rich soup, gravies, and greasy foods. The fats start up the contractions of the gall bladder and a stone is pushed into the duct along with the bile.

For all of these reasons one of the most difficult questions that a doctor has to decide in gall bladder cases is whether to advise a diet that includes no eggs, cream, butter, fat meats, and rich foods, or to order directly one that contains plenty of cream, butter, and olive oil.

BIG STOMACH.

Mrs. M. L. F. writes: My son, 18 years old, is annoyed and embarrassed by quite a large "stomach." He is 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 145 pounds clothed. He is a good eater, fond of rich foods, but does not overeat. As he works all day the most exercise he gets is walking. What is the cause and how can he reduce his "stomach"?

REPLY.

Prominent abdomen may be due to any one of several causes. One is posture. Persons who throw their shoulders out are very apt to throw their "stomachs" out. Unusually great curves in the spinal column are another. Still another cause is being short bodied. Disease located in the abdomen may be the cause. A frequent cause is overeating accompanied by too little work for the abdominal muscles. That is the probable cause in this case. If it is responsible for your son's abnormality have him change his eating habits and arrange for more corrective work. Rowing is excellent and so is swimming. Spading in the garden and shoveling are good. So are bending exercises.

MOISTURE.

Mrs. E. M. writes: I have been housekeeping for twenty years and we have always used the regular radiator pans and modern contraptions to give moisture in heated rooms. However, in spite of all this each winter we went through a number of terrible colds, flu, etc. Then two years ago my son started raising tropical fish as a hobby. To save space we put two tanks on radiators. We insulated the top of the radiators just so the water in the glass tank remains at 80 degrees during the day. In the two years we have had this practice no member of the family has had a cold and not the slightest watering of the nose. Yet we live the same and eat the same as we always did. I believe what I have found out is that the average pan used on a radiator does not give adequate moisture. Perhaps you can pass this on to some other cold sufferer.

SEND FOR BOOKLET.

L. S. E. writes: What are the symptoms of prostate gland trouble, the cause, and the treatment?

REPLY.

We have a booklet on the prostate gland. Send 10 cents and a stamped, addressed envelope for it.

MUST BE IN WRITING.

Chicago, March 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.] — In 1926 I borrowed $500 from my father and I signed a note for same. 1. Some time later my father advised me to forget the note and that I didn't have to pay it. My father passed away recently and my sister is now in possession of this note. 2. Will it be possible for my sister to have this $500 deducted from my share of my father's estate? 3. How long does it take in Indiana to probate an estate? 4. Just what should I do to protect my interest in said estate? G. A. B.

1. Under section 121 of the negotiable instruments law "a renunciation must be in writing unless the instrument is delivered up to the person primarily liable thereon."
2. Yes.
3. The ordinary period is a little over one year.
4. We do not see that any affirmative action on your part is called for.

CONVEYING PROPERTY.

Chicago, March 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Five heirs have a house with a $1,000 mortgage on it. They consider [1] giving it to the youngest son of the deceased parents. A son-in-law has been acting as administrator. If the son cannot meet his [2] payments can the administrator be held responsible? 3. In case of foreclosure proceedings would the mortgage holder be able to demand anything of the administrator? 4. What procedure should they follow in giving this house to the son? J. A. V.

1. This implies that it would be a gift.
2. It is not clear what payments will be involved. You state no facts on which any responsibility of the administrator would be based.
3. If the deceased signed the mortgage notes, then a deficiency judgment might be recovered which might be a valid claim against the estate.
4. Execute a quitclaim deed to them.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—A strong and stably governed state, not the slave of a dictator's whims, but the servant of honest, energetic statesmen who are above party considerations, is the demand of France's half million Fascists, who have come prominently into the limelight as the result of the past fortnight's events.

The French Fascists—who call themselves the Republican, National, and Social party—plan no revolution of the kind that took place in Italy and Germany. They are fanatic defenders of republicanism and their program of moderate reform fits into the framework of the Republican régime. All they want is a government that can make itself respected and that is firm enough to run the country politically, economically, and morally.

Their party is composed of 300,000 militant young and middle aged men known as the Jeunesse Patriote [Young Patriots], who are affiliated with the association of decorated war veterans called the Croix de Feu [Fiery Cross]. The latter are mostly middle aged men and bourgeois pater familias, while the Jeunesse Patriotes are for the most part youths from the universities.

"We are and we are not Fascists," Roger de Saivres, head of the party's political service, told THE TRIBUNE. "We are inspired by certain of Mussolini's ideas, but we don't want a dictatorship. What we want is a government of national safety. We are Fascist to the extent of favoring the guild state, but not Fascist to the point of having the guilds run the state. The economic and political forces should be separate.

"We are in no way racists, as the Hitlerites are. We are nationalists, and for us the nation is and must be above the race. France was formed of a mixture of a number of races, and out of that mixture has come the Frenchman and the French nation. We are not racists, for racism contains the seeds of war, and, as nationalists, men anxious to protect their country and keep it strong and intact, we cannot want war."

A national charter of work along the lines of that of President Roosevelt is advocated by the Jeunesse Patriotes, who also want a guild state in which there would be councils and tribunals of workers, the councils concerning themselves with social laws but not dominating the state.

"We are against the domination of big business," De Saivres continued. "We struggle against bourgeois selfishness, for we believe that no class should be dominant. That's why we don't permit the class fight as preached by the Reds. There should be a collaboration between workers and employers, but workers should not be allowed to mix in the actual running of industries. At the same time, disputes between workers and employers should be settled by the councils and magistrates.

"If lockouts are permitted, workers should certainly be permitted to strike, but, as the guild idea is put into practice, we would like to see both lockouts and strikes discarded.

"We believe that workers should share in the profits, because sound economy demands a broad distribution of money. If people have no money, they can't spend, and, in that case, industry and commerce come to a standstill."

The Croix de Feu, which began as a discredited freak outfit but has lately gained the respect of the public, subscribes to the same general ideas. Its leader, Col. de la Rouque, accents the idea of comradery.

"And, above all," he emphasizes, "we are not to be compared to the Hitlerites. We aren't romantics."

AFTER THE DILLINGER ESCAPE.

Urbana, Ill., March 5.—A very inquisitive reader wants to know when, as and if that great national hero, Dillinger, is caught [again], will the prosecutor just hug him, like the last time, or will he hug and kiss him? And will the sheriff show her affection for the hero by doing likewise, or will she just present him with the keys to her institution [again]? And the judge, who granted the long delay before the hero's trial, will he, too, embrace the hero before THE TRIBUNE'S camera? Surely all should have their chance and not only the prosecutor.

The escape-proof prisons and jails of Indiana and the escape-proof criminal laws of the other states are startling examples of the collapse of the methods of society to protect itself against the increasing number of dangerous criminals. Thus far the boys who steal pie and jam from the pantry are nearly always caught and are given very severe punishments, because they are easy to punish—but a real menace to society goes free—if he so desires.

A man could carry out the worst crime thinkable and, if he has a dollar, there can always be found a lawyer criminal to defend him and to lie for him. With such poison in society's cup progress is impossible.

Let's scrap all criminal laws and procedure and build a scheme on honesty, sanity, and intelligence if possible.

RECALLING A FAMOUS SLOGAN.

MILK.

Attica, Ind., Feb. 27.—I am indeed troubled by the milk situation and its outcome. The producers with government assistance have pretty well established their prices so that little can be done there. Consumers can hardly be expected to pay higher prices for their milk with their employment so uncertain, and the drivers are determined not to take a cut in their salaries. It is a puzzling question, but it looks as if the next play is for the presidents and officials to take the cut, even though it does hurt. They may have to give up a trip to Cuba, or even play with last year's golf balls, to stand the loss. There just doesn't seem to be any other way out.

MEDICAL NOTE.

Chicago, March 1.—I'll bet the Democrats suffer from a combined attack of the jitters, the heebie-jeebies, and an advanced stage of St. Vitus dance whenever they receive letters with air mail stamps on them. REGISTERED VOTER.

HE SEEMS DISPLEASED.

Dixon, Ill., Feb. 28.—If the thinking people of Chicagoland are moved to look scornfully at the poisonous editorial policy of THE TRIBUNE they are apt at the same time to give that paper's editors great praise for knowing exactly how to spread the venom most effectively.

For example, it is a matter of common knowledge that the minds of most people are influenced to a great extent by headlines. THE TRIBUNE'S headline writers consistently choose the detail of a New Deal story which is most blackening to the administration and sereech it out to deaden the real meaning of the subject of the account as a whole.

Practically every political story in THE TRIBUNE is written by a staf correspondent—Henning, Boettiger, Herrick, etc. These writers prepare editorials, pure and simple, written in accordance with THE TRIBUNE'S policy of downing everything advanced by Mr. Roosevelt. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE press service should be confined to the editorial page. The only real news stories in THE TRIBUNE are furnished by the Associated Press, and these are hidden on inside pages where few see them.

Orr's cartoons [like the one today, "Working on His Eagle Again"] are the vilest items of poisonous propaganda circulating in America today.

You yell your heads off about freedom of the press, while probably 90 per cent of your readers feel that your paper should be the very first to feel the clippers of censorship. If there were a better Chicago newspaper you would have exactly as many readers as you have employés. ROOSEVELTIAN.

AN IDEA FOR THE FAIR.

Chicago, Ill., March 2.—As A Century of Progress prepares to reopen, some recognition should be made of Chicago's greatest industry, the redistribution of wealth through receiverships. No other city boasts so magnificent an assortment of closed banks nor so many thriving receiverships. One of Chicago's many closed banks should be reërected on the lake front and visitors given an opportunity to see a genuine, live receiver receiving and a bondholders' protective committee holding. A historical pageant should immortalize events and characters who have molded, or are still molding, Chicago's financial history.

Space should be reserved to honor honest receivers and all public officials who have waged a vigorous fight to protect the interests of small investors. The size and nature of this feature might cause differences of opinion. Of equal interest would be some exhibit, perhaps an allegory, interpreting the Chicago spirit which permits present conditions.

Outside the sacred portals should be collected types of people holding deposits in closed banks and investments in defaulted "sound" bonds, as widows, orphans, unemployed, elderly people, and others.

An exhibit of this nature should interest visitors, particularly those from France, where there was recently considerable furor over a comparatively minor scandal. If the exhibit could be placed on a money making basis a receivership could be appointed to handle the profits.

REDUCE TAX RATE IN 32 OF 36 LAKE COUNTY AREAS

The 1933 tax rates for Lake county were reduced in all except four of the thirty-six tax expending municipalities within the county, it was announced yesterday by County Clerk Lew A. Hendee. There were two slight increases in rates, one municipality in which the rates for 1932 and 1933 are the same, and one in which the rate for 1933 has not yet been computed.

The decreases in rates ranged from 7 cents to $1.68 in the various municipalities. The two increases were for two cents and five cents, respectively, in Mundelein district 75 [in Freemont township], and in the township of Waukegan. North Chicago, district 64 [in Waukegan township] has the same rate, $6.69, for both 1932 and 1933. There are only 36 districts in the county although they are not numbered consecutively.

Barrington Rate Delayed.

The rate for Barrington 4, has not yet been calculated, the county clerk stated. This computation has not yet been completed because part of this township is in Cook county, for which the 1933 assessed valuations have not yet been made.

The tax rates are used by the county treasurer to compute the tax bills of taxpayers living within the various municipalities. Any taxpayer may find the amount of his own bill by multiplying his assessed valuation by the tax rate and pointing off four decimal places.

Tabulated List.

Biggest Cut in Lake Villa.

An examination of the above table discloses that township Lake Villa 32 has the largest reduction in rates, it being $1.68. The second largest reduction was in Lake Villa 41, where the reduction was $1.59.

County Clerk Hendee stated that the reductions in most of the municipalities were traceable to the elimination of the fifty cent state real estate tax, reductions in the township, road, and bridge, village, schools, and other tax levies.

The total assessed valuation of Lake county, including the corporation and railroad valuations made by the state tax commission, amount to $95,640,550 for 1933. In 1932 the total assessed valuation amounted to $98,413,359, and the reduction for the current valuation amounted to $2,767,809.

County Treasurer Jay B. Morse of Lake county last evening announced that of the 1932 taxes a total of $4,301,802 or 80.51 per cent of the total levy has already been collected.

GREECE AGAIN CHANGES MIND ABOUT INSULL

Agrees to Give Fugitive New Medical Test.

ATHENS, March 6.—(AP)—Another period of grace in its "final" order for the expulsion of Samuel Insull was granted the fugitive Chicago utilities promoter today by the Greek government.

Officials announced that Insull would be examined once more by doctors Thursday noon, two hours after expiration of their decree that he must leave within 48 hours.

Insull, wanted in Chicago to face charges resulting from the collapse of his utilities empire, called in a heart specialist this morning shortly after he was notified he had to get out, and it was subsequently announced that a third official examination will be made by the same physicians as before.

Pleads for Clemency.

Simultaneously Insull's 16 months' fight against deportation was continued in another sector when his Greek lawyer, P. Rhallis, filed with the foreign office a plea for clemency in connection with its latest expulsion decree.

Since December, when his residence permit first expired and government ministers determined that the former Chicagoan would have to go, Insull has claimed to be too ill to travel and on that ground has obtained five extensions.

United States Minister Lincoln MacVeagh, meanwhile, refused a request by the interior ministry that he appoint a physician to examine Insull. Mr. MacVeagh said such a procedure would be most "irregular."

Fails to Find New Haven.

The ministry then instructed Drs. Vladimir Bensis and Spyros Livieratos to conduct another examination. They previously found Insull could travel by sea or rail.

It was said that all of Insull's attemps to find asylum in another country had failed. The wide publicity given his case made other governments reluctant to receive him.

INDIAN OIL HEIRESS, AGED 12, GIVES BIRTH TO CAESARIAN BABY

Juanita, youngest daughter of Mrs. Wosey Deere, one of the wealthiest of the tribe of Creek Indians, and the baby were reported "doing nicely" at the hospital.

As far as local medical authorities could recall she is the youngest mother to undergo a Caesarian operation.

Her husband, Buster McClish, 19, also is of Creek descent.

Some difficulty was experienced by the physicians in obtaining proper hospitalization for the girl due to the conviction of her grandmother, Mrs. Annie Dick, that the operation was unnecessary.

CERMAK NEPHEW IS ORDERED HELD IN AUTO DEATH

James Cermak, 22 years old, of La Grange, nephew of the late Mayor Anton J. Cermak, was held to the grand jury in bond of $32,500 yesterday by Police Magistrate John H. Ehardt, Berwyn, on charges of manslaughter and driving while intoxicated.

The charges grew out of an automobile crash Feb. 7 in which Leroy Susanka, 22 years old, 3720 Home avenue, Berwyn, a gasoline station attendant, was fatally injured. Magistrate Ehardt disregarded the verdict of a coroner's jury, holding the death accidental, in binding young Cermak over to the grand jury.

After setting the high bond, the magistrate ordered Assistant State's Attorney William C. Rotchford to make certain that an indictment is returned by the grand jury. Cermak failed to post the bond and was taken to the county jail. Susanka was fatally injured while he was helping to push a disabled automobile at Winona and Ogden avenues, Berwyn. Crushed between this car and one driven by Cermak, he died the next day.

Estranged Wife Shoots CWA Aid in School

The shooting occurred in his office in the basement of the Hayt grammar school, 1518 Granville avenue. May went home after his wound was treated at a doctor's office. Summerdale police were searching for his wife.

MORE WOMEN ARE URGED TO STUDY MEDICINE

Better than Men in Some Lines, Says Specialist.

Baltimore, Md., March 6.—(AP)—More women are needed in the practice of medicine, Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, eminent cancer specialist, told the student body of Goucher college today.

"Woman was once considered an inferior, but now that we've educated her she may prove a superior being," Dr. Bloodgood said.

"I feel confident that we need, in all the civilized countries, a larger number of women fundamentally trained in the medical sciences, not only as practitioners of medicine in the specialties and general practices, but in laboratory positions, research work, and in the public health."

Women, Dr. Bloodgood said, have a maternal instinct that naturally makes them better fitted for preventive medicine.

Needed in Preventive Field.

"My experience teaches me that women are taking to preventive medicine quicker than men. The greatest protection against disease today is the continuous care of the medical and dental profession, and we need more of the best trained women physicians to take their place in this preventive effort."

Discussing the dangers of cancer, Dr. Bloodgood said only 10 per cent of mothers have adequate protection because of lack of examination and general knowledge. "The women," he said, "ultimately should have a great deal to do with the prevention of cancer in women, and the establishing of preventive measures from the prenatal stage."

Sees Races of Supermen.

Spokane, Wash., March 6.—(AP)—A belief the next hundred years will see the beginning of a superior race of men was expressed here today by a noted surgeon, Dr. Malcolm MacEachern, associate director of the American College of Surgeons.

Through scientific reduction of the mentally and physically unfit this beginning will come about, said the surgeon, a speaker at the sectional convention of the college here.

In this period of time, he predicted, the science of medicine and its administration will have advanced far enough to combat the destruction of the body through nervous and mental disorders caused by the terrific speed man is now traveling.

In most fields of medicine, Dr. MacEachern predicted, great advances will be made toward solution of the ailments to which man now is subject. But in the field of nervous and mental disorders "we shall be in the red" even after the passage of 100 years.

"Diabetes Will Be Conquered."

Dr. MacEachern predicted that tuberculosis and diabetes will be conquered within the next century. At the same time preventive measures will have reduced the incidence of goiter.

"Too," Dr. MacEachern added, "we shall have made advances in the prevention of gallstones and ulcer of the stomach. The hazard of childbirth will be even further reduced. The span of life will be lengthened still further. The nature of cancer will have been revealed, but it will still claim many victims."

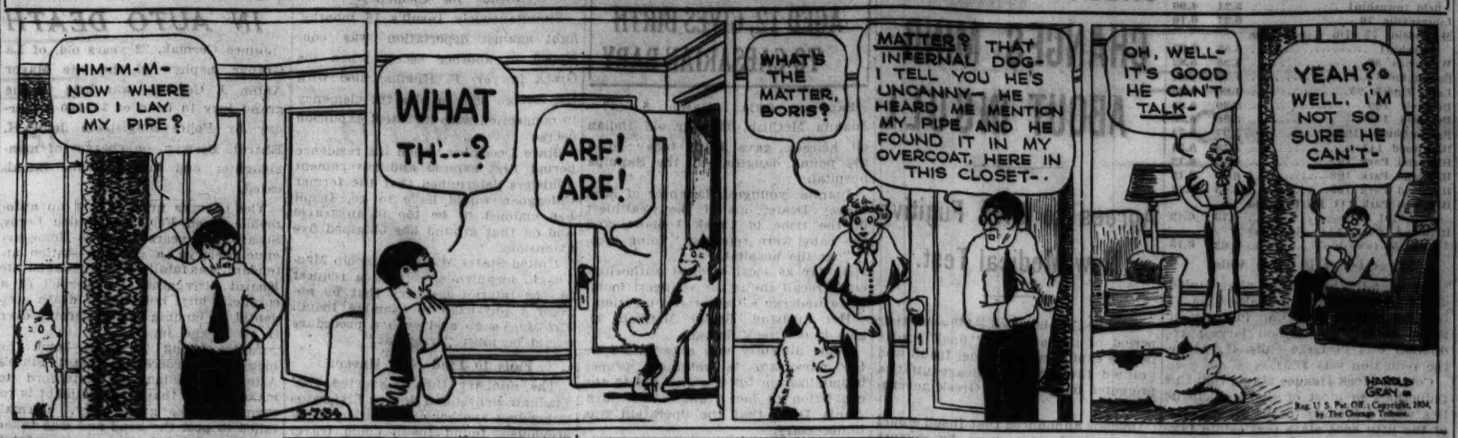
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Not So Dumb



ILLINOIS NOTABLES ATTEND MEMORIAL RITES FOR STERLING

Springfield, Ill., March 6.—[Special.]—Memorial services for the late Fred E. Sterling, Rockford Republican, were conducted in the state senate today. There for twelve years—from 1920 to 1932—he was presiding officer. Members of his family attended and many representatives, state officials, and friends of his filled the room and its galleries.

Two of the senators close to Mr. Sterling during the years he was second in command of the state government, were among the speakers extolling his life today. They were Richard J. Barr [Rep., Joliet], who guided Republican destinies during Sterling's last term, and James J. Barbour [Rep., Evanston], another influential member of the present minority party. The third eulogy was given by Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan, who succeeded Sterling as president of the senate.

Flowers and funeral decorations were banked about the rostrum where Mr. Sterling presided so long. In the chair was the senator from his Rockford district, Charles W. Baker of Monroe Center. Ministers delivering the invocation and benediction were the Rev. John Gordon of Rockford and the Rev. Joseph Lonergan of Apple River. A quartet sang two numbers.

RITES TOMORROW FOR A. S. BEAMISH, PIONEER SMITH

Funeral services for Abraham S. Beamish, who once had been blacksmith for the Chicago fire department and for Marshall Field & Co., will be held tomorrow at St. Patrick's church, with burial in Calvary cemetery. Mr. Beamish died Monday in his home at 1309 Jackson boulevard. He was 87 years old.

Mr. Beamish, born in Ireland, came to Chicago when he was 18 years old and fought in the civil war. He was engaged in the blacksmithing business until 20 years ago, when both the fire department and the Marshall Field delivery service were motorized.

A colorful figure in First ward politics for many years, Mr. Beamish was owner of the animal about which grew up the once well known legend of "Beamish's goat." The animal was said to have had an undying hatred for the uniformed police and was reported to have torn the trousers from one patrolman. Numerous window smashings and other unsolved misdemeanors were written off the record as the work of the goat.

The smithy of Mr. Beamish stood in La Salle street, near the Harrison street police station. Mr. Beamish is survived by two daughters, Margaret, and Mrs. J. F. Finnegan.

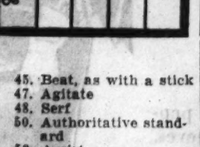
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



CHURCHES UNITE FOR NATIONWIDE RELIEF PROGRAM

Loesch Plan Basis for Extensive Drive.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

New York, March 6.—[Special.]—Coöperating Protestantism as represented by its leaders in social service fields today announced epoch making plans for the most extensive correlated welfare and relief work yet to be projected by the churches. Its scope will be nation-wide.

The churchmen definitely turned deaf ears to proposals that churches should shift all welfare work loads to secular and public agencies. To the contrary, they contended that social work competence should be increased to such a point that in emergencies church agencies may administer public relief funds and thus care for the churches' own needy.

75 Welfare Executives Present.

Statements to that effect were made public today at the close of a conference of 75 church welfare executives called by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ of America. It was disclosed that pioneer work done by the Chicago Church federation, together with plans for Chicago's associated church charities developed by a committee led by Frank J. Loesch, inspired today's meeting.

The Loesch committee plans, together with an exhaustive social service survey made under Dr. Henry Seymour Brown's church federation committee on social service, became foundations for the nation-wide program. Although the program of Catholic Charities of Chicago, which administers public relief funds, was attacked here, particularly by representatives of the more powerful secular welfare agencies, the principle involved by Catholic Charities was implicitly approved.

"Public funds, raised by taxation, should be administered by public agencies and should not be allocated to private agencies except when proper care of people make it imperative," the findings declare.

Five Other Basic Proposals.

Five other proposals are basic to the new nation-wide plan. They are:

1. Every community should have a central coördinating agency similar to that being evolved by Mr. Loesch's committee in Chicago.

2. Surveys, similar to that made by Dr. W. C. Giersbach of the University of Chicago for the Chicago Church federation, should be made of Protestant social work in each community. Dr. Giersbach's report became the basis of the Loesch committee's plans. Statistics from these surveys should be compiled for study on a nation-wide scale. Denominational social service statistics should also be assembled. It was disclosed in today's meeting that Northern Methodism in this country has spent $250,000,000 in welfare work during the past 20 years.

3. Ministers are urged to take part in community social service work and to lead their churches into coöperation.

4. Ministers and their workers should keep in touch with their unemployed members and their families and do the utmost to get help for them. As a general principle, churches should care for their own people, but knowing and using the full resources of the community.

5. Churches should develop competency in social work, both for the sake of those they may help and to make possible more effective coöperation with the welfare agencies of the community. Church social service training schools should turn out supervisory leadership as competent as that of secular social agencies. Volunteer social workers should be sought and trained.

SEEK FINANCIAL CLEW IN DAICHES SLAYING ENIGMA

Quiz Drops Women to Study Debts.

Renewing their questioning of associates of Eli Daiches, advertising agency head who was killed by shotgun assassins in gangland style last Saturday, authorities yesterday strove to learn more of Daiches' financial affairs. Police and Assistant State's Attorney Richard Regan admitted they had veered away from the theory that he was slain a quarrel over a woman.

Louis A. Weitzman, chairman of the board of Thomas M. Bowers Advertising company, of which Daiches was president, remained with Mr. Regan until 3 o'clock yesterday morning in his effort to throw light on the murder. Describing Daiches' personal finances as "somewhat muddled," Mr. Weitzman said the victim sometimes would draw as much as $7,000 or $10,000 from the company for his spending.

Lost Stock in Loan.

Daiches in 1929 was forced to turn over to him all of his stock in the company by borrowing $80,000, said Mr. Weitzman, who now holds 425 of the 430 shares of the agency. It was mainly to protect the advances made to Daiches that he named the concern beneficiary of his approximately $200,000 life insurance, Weitzman told Prosecutor Regan.

The company itself is in a strong position, Mr. Weitzman indicated to Mr. Regan, having business of $1,000,000 a year. The chairman declared that Daiches was "more valuable than a fortune" to the company, and that it was through his personality that most of the accounts were obtained.

Mr. Weitzman, who came from New York to aid in the investigation, was in the flour blending business previous to his entering the advertising company four years ago, according to Assistant State's Attorney Regan. He once had a seat on the New York Grain exchange but sold it because he was losing too much money in the market, Mr. Regan said he was informed.

Reveals Poison Threat.

Yesterday afternoon when Mr. Weitzman talked to Lieut. Otto Erlanson of the homicide squad he revealed that Daiches had shown him several pills, supposedly poison, and said, "Well, I guess I'd better swallow these." This was on Daiches' recent visit to New York when Mr. Weitzman pointed out he was spending money too lavishly for his own good.

Also questioned again was Miss Lillian Miller, who is also known as Mrs. O'Shea, amateur aviatrix and actress whom Daiches maintained lavishly for two years. She told of her association with the executive, disclosing that on the night of the day he was slain he was to have accompanied her to the Opera club. She was unable to offer police any clews to the identity of the killers.

Daiches' funeral was held yesterday morning at the undertaking chapel at 937 East 47th street. The young woman appeared at the funeral there with two detectives, whose protection she had requested. "The same men might want to kill me, too," she said. She wept throughout the sermon.

More than a hundred friends and business clients of Daiches attended the funeral and rode in the motorcade out to the Waldheim cemetery in Des Plaines.

Hold Cermak Memorial on Anniversary of Death

Memorial services were held yesterday at the tomb of the late Mayor Anton J. Cermak in the Bohemian National cemetery. A wreath was placed at the tomb by the late mayor's three daughters, Mrs. Richey V. Graham, Miss Helen Cermak, divorced wife of Floyd Kenlay, and Mrs. Frank J. Jirka. Afterward the daughters presented a portrait in oils of the late mayor to the Chicago Historical society. Mayor Cermak died on March 6, 1933, in a Miami, Fla., hospital of a wound received 19 days earlier when he was felled by an assassin's bullet which was intended for Franklin D. Roosevelt, then President-elect.

FIREMAN INJURED BY AXE.

Fireman Joseph Lynch suffered a cut on his hand yesterday when another fireman dropped an axe as the two men were fighting a blaze in the hallway of a taxern at 836 Cermak road. The fire caused a damage of $1,500.

Empty Your Gall Bladder
And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!
Sleepless nights, doc-tired days, headaches; pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?
And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?
No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been trusting yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralizing gastric acid, quickening digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food sours, putrifies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.
From the world's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purer than the air you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralizes burning acidity and sweeps that poison-packed bowel clean.

$9,050 VALUE PUT ON ESTATE OF BRUNDAGE

The inventory of the estate of Edward J. Brundage, former attorney general of Illinois, filed in the Probate court yesterday, disclosed that his property, after debts are paid and exclusive of insurance, will amount to $9,050. The estate will consist of $4,050 worth of household furnishings and farm equipment, and $5,000 which was given the estate through the settlement of Mr. Brundage's interest in the law firm of Brundage, Landon & Holt.

Attorneys who filed the inventory and gained its approval by John F. Keeley, assistant to the probate judge, explained that at the time of Mr. Brundage's death last Jan. 20, he held large blocks of stock and extensive farm lands in Ogle county. These assets, they explained, were wiped out when debts for which they had been posted as collateral, were paid.

Mrs. Germaine Vernier Brundage of Lake Forest, the widow, was given a widow's award of $5,000 and her four children were given an award of $600 from the estate yesterday. Mrs. Brundage has been declared guardian of the children in Lake county Probate court proceedings. Nuptial Parties Starting Early for June Bride

BY JUDITH CASS.

BECAUSE Miss Betty Scriven and her fiancé, Frederick Harney Bassett, have a host of friends both old and young, it is not a surprise that parties for them are beginning two and a half months before their wedding day.

At 4:30 o'clock on the afternoon of June 2 Miss Scriven and Mr. Bassett will exchange their wedding vows at the altar of St. Chrysostom's church. Two weeks from Sunday, the afternoon of March 25. Mr. Bassett's three house mates, Howard J. Snowden, Henry P. Bruner, and Benjamin N. Jackson are feting them at their bachelor quarters at 203 East Chestnut street. The hours are four to seven.

Incidentally this large eight room apartment, masculine and comfortable in its furnishings, was the home of Mr. Bassett's father, Admiral Frederic Brewster Bassett, before he married the widow of Admiral Blue and went to Florida to make his residence. Lieutenant Commander Stewart Blue, the son of Mrs. Bassett, who is in charge of President Roosevelt's private yacht, is coming from Washington to be one of the ushers at the wedding.

As far as bridal retinue is concerned the ceremony is to be simple, with Miss Scriven attended only by her sister, Mrs. John J. Finlay (the former Jane Scriven) as matron of honor, and her tiny niece, little Barbara Finlay, as flower girl. It was Barbara who really announced the engagement of Miss Scriven and Mr. Bassett at the party given for them by the Finlays Feb. 8 at their home in Geneva.

Mr. Bassett will be served by Richard Yates of Buffalo as best man. And ushering besides Commander Blue will be John J. Finlay and four or five of Mr. Bassett's good friends, most of them easterners.

Polish War Chief Will Visit Chicago.

The consul general of Poland has invitations out for a luncheon at his residence, 999 Lake Shore drive, next Saturday, and for another one on Saturday of next week. The latter is for Gen. Josef Haller, commander-in-chief of the Polish forces during the world war, and his young son, Eric, who will accompany him to Chicago. They will arrive on the 16th and will be at the Drake during their several days' visit. There will be much entertaining for them by Polish organizations and one of the few unofficial affairs they will find time to attend will be a luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey will give on Monday the 19th or Tuesday the 20th.

U. of C. Program Will Benefit Settlement.

Nineteen representative Chicagoans are anticipating the evening of March 16 with especial interest. On that occasion they will gather in Mandel hall at the University of Chicago to enjoy a performance that will benefit the university's settlement just as they have for 35 years.

That first show in 1899 was a comic opera called "The Deceitful Dean." This time the performance is to be a combination of three short plays, "Box and Cox," a hundred year old farce; "Roots," a drama set in the Jewish community of 53d street; and a "Town Hall Tonight," a comedy that will be played by a group of alumni of the university.

Mrs. Joseph Bond, Mrs. Frederick Ives Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Fiske, Mrs. William Rainey Harper, Mrs. Wallace Heckman, and Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson are some of the nineteen who have maintained their interest in the settlement for 35 years. The others are former Gov. and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, Miss Mary McDowell, Mrs. Frank H. Montgomery, Mrs. Philo Otis, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Payne, Miss Susan Peabody, Mrs. Martin Ryerson, and Mrs. Benjamin Terry.

The settlement is now 40 years old and Miss Mary McDowell, its director for 37 years, is completing her 40th year of residence. It was the settlement benefit in 1899, interesting enough, that first called forth the histrionic and skit writing talent of the university campus.

Clemence Dane to Lecture Today.

This morning at 11:30 o'clock Clemence Dane is to lecture at the Arts club; her subject will be "Writer and Reader." Alfred E. Hamill, chairman of the literary committee, will entertain Miss Dane at luncheon after the lecture.

Sixty Melodists and members of the Chicago chapter of the League of American Penwomen will gather in the drawing room of Mrs. Leonard D. Karcher's home at 20 East Cedar street at 11 o'clock this morning.

After a program contributed by Paul Kerby, the young Viennese composer who has spent the winter in Chicago, Mrs. Frank G. Logan and Mrs. Archibald Freer who is Mrs. Karcher's mother, there will be luncheon. Mr. Kerby is expecting to leave for New York shortly and then, if a good musical season is in prospect, return to Vienna.

Forty persons with a lively interest in Japan are planning to have dinner this evening at the Drake hotel with Chicago's distinguished visitors, Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, his son, I. M. Tokugawa, who is the Japanese minister to Canada, and his daughter, Toyo Tokugawa. They arrive this morning for a 24 hour stopover as a part of a round the world tour.

The trip is truthfully a vacation for the prince, for he has just retired from his presidency of the Japanese house of peers. Charles H. Chandler, as president of the Japan-America society, is to be the host at the dinner. Some of the 40 guests will be Yoshio Muto, the Japanese consul general, and Mrs. Muto, Dean and Mrs. John H. Wigmore, Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, John E. Abbott, Mrs. John

The real Carrie Spafford, who won the heart of Col. Elmer Ellsworth, the first officer to die by bullets in the civil war, could have been no more charming in her girlhood days than pretty Patricia Wilson, who is to impersonate her Saturday afternoon in "Ellsworth of the Zouaves," a play written and directed by Louis E. Laflin Jr. It is to be presented for the first time at 2:15 Saturday in the Deerpath theater in Lake Forest by the members of the Gargoyle club at Lake Forest academy as a highlight of the academy's annual midwinter festivities. Miss Wilson, a student at Ferry hall, is one of several young actresses assisting the academy students.

Checker Motif Enters Fancy Cookery Realm

Sandwiches and Cake Are Special Devotees.

BY MARY MEADE.

Come the first daring buds of spring, and with them armies of checks! But don't mistake me. They're not hat checks, rubber checks, checks on papa, or even checkers running rampant over the March ensemble.

Quite on the contrary.

Our lady of the kitchen has decided this spring that it's pattern that's lacking in foods, and that, by Jove, she's going to do things about it with a deluge of squares—fifty-fifty, dark and light! And if you don't like it, you can just stay home from her parties!

For it's not just food items here and there which are going to feel checkerish. It's whole parties. And if you doubt it, harken to this:

Next week, at a place I've promised not to name, since guests must be surprised, there's to go forward the city's first checker board party. And, to judge by the layout, if said guests don't go home seeing spots, it isn't the fault of the hostess.

In the first place, not contract, nor anagrams, nor charades is the excitement of the evening, but tables and tables of checkerboards. And, also, there are a dozen or so variations which our youthful host has found in a book of games, and plans to spring upon the crowd. And, to give this the proper party atmosphere, glorious crêpe paper, strident with checks, is being made up into swanky pocket hankies for the gentlemen, and lovable, frilly aprons for the ladies. These are pocketed and donned upon arrival.

But this is only the start of the checks. In crêpe paper and cotton they wave to you from all sides. Table tops, piano runner, curtain tiebacks, lamp shades, even straight chairs have donned short back slips of checkered gingham.

And, if you think that checks you out, cast an eye through the keyhole at Mary sprinting about in the kitchen. It's to be a buffet supper, it seems, served from a checker cloth covered table. Napkins, of course, to tie in. As for foods, we can't quite see whether she's having them all, but following are some that the hostess has been mulling over as a means of coaxing checks into the foods. Possibilities lie in checkered cakes, cookies, sandwiches, gelatin salads, sandwich loaves, refrigerator cakes, ice creams, and umpsteen other things one's own ingenuity will invent once one becomes checkminded.

CHECKERBOARD SANDWICHES.

These are easy, although they look just a bit tricky. This is how: Trim the crusts from a loaf of white and a loaf of whole wheat, day old bread. Slice both loaves in from ¼ to ½ inch slices. Butter each slice on one side. Stack the slices in piles of seven, alternating brown and white. Begin and end half the stacks with brown, the other half with white slices. Press together and slice each stack down, making ribbon sandwiches. Now spread butter over one of the ribbon slices with brown at its edges, place on it a slice with white at its edges, and continue alternating until the pile is as high as it is wide. All stripes should run the same way. The brown stripes will fall directly over the white ones. Press the stacks together again, and slice down, forming perfect checkerboards.

Or glorify the idea this way:

CHECKERBOARD SANDWICH LOAF.

Use a smooth cheese-pickle spread, a pimento butter, peanut butter, or any other smooth but flavorful spread for variation between the slices, preparing the stacks of checkerboard sandwiches as above, but not slicing them the last time. Now place two or three of these stacks side by side, on a large service platter, and cover all over with a thick frosting of fluffy cream cheese. Decorate with olive slices or pickle fans, and surround with radish roses and black olives. To serve, cut down and you have white coated checkerboard sandwiches like those above, just a little gayer way of serving them.

Checkerboard cookies are made after somewhat the same principle. Make up a batch of chocolate refrigerator cookie dough, and one of white refrigerator cookie dough. Press them into bread pans, making the layer 1 inch deep [separate pans for the white and the chocolate]. Chill several hours, turn out, cut each panful in four lengthwise strips, and arrange these strips together in fours, with white and brown alternating. Wrap and chill again. Slice off checker cookies from the ends of the bars, and bake.

But the handsomest checker of them all is the checkerboard cake. While it may be made in three regular layer cake pans, it's a little better to invest about 20 cents and pick up, at one of the stores, a checkerboard cake set. Make 1½ recipes of white cake, then divide it, and to one half add ½ cup of cocoa. Into two pans pour the dark batter around the outer edge, white batter for a second circle, and dark batter in the center. In the third pan [this layer will be placed between the other two] make the outer circle and center of white batter, with the dark batter between these two. It's a bit difficult to lay these rows down evenly without direction, and that's where the gadgets I mentioned come in. They consist of two metal collars, one smaller than the other, which are slipped into the pan to guide the batter. Pour in the batter, then draw out the two collars, wash them, and put them in the next, and then in the last pan. Put the layers together with white frosting. These directions all come on checkerboard cake pan boxes.

IT was on the Evanston elevated, Zelda Glickman writes. Two fashionably dressed women, one a young woman and one elderly, had discovered a new way in which to break the tedium of the train ride. Using the steamed-up window alongside their seat as a tablet, they were playing the naughts-and-crosses game—the one where the idea is to get three naughts or crosses in a row, thereby winning the game.

IT is difficult to believe that there are people who go to the movies every night of the year, but they do exist, and the movie people must be pretty glad. This story concerns a woman with eight children, who has been to the movies every night for the last twelve years, I am told, on reliable authority. One evening her husband received an urgent message to go to a distant town. His wife was at the movies as usual, so he went there, located her in the very same seat she had been occupying most of her evenings at the movies, year in and year out. He bid her adieu there and departed. After being out of the city for six weeks he finally was able to return home and wired his wife, from whom he had never before been separated, to meet his train. However, when he arrived she was not there, and he hurried home, fearful that ill had befallen her. She was not at home but he found a note from her. It read:

"Dear Henry, received your telegram and intended to meet you at the station, but the movie house changed its program at the last minute and are showing two pictures for the price of one. If you hurry you can see them, too.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

There are more than eight girls in this movie (the "eight" refers to a racing crew) and there's not much about a boat. So forget the title. The picture, however, is decidedly worth your thought.

Most of the action occurs in a Swiss girls' school. Across a background of gayety, athletic sports, and the various activities of such an institution is woven the somber little pattern of one student's tragedy—the story of Christa Storm, who discovers she is going to have a baby.

Christa's lover is a fine lad studying to be a chemist. He is poor as Job's storied fowl, however, and both he and Christa feel that marriage would spell the end of his career. Fine, clean thinking, honorable youngsters, both of them, who had slipped, with never a thought of being bad.

Only David knows of Christa's predicament—but the secret brings paralyzing fear to the girl. It dulls her mind so that she fails in her examinations and makes her so apparently negligent about other things that discipline, cruel under the circumstances, is imposed upon her by the clean cut young woman who is head of the school.

The proposition of solving Christa's problem is handled by the director with delicacy and insight that command admiration. He has manifested a marvelous understanding of youth and its problems and a constructive sympathy for its intense suffering. For, say what you will, age never undergoes the piercing pangs experienced by the adolescent new in the ways of human experience.

Dorothy Wilson does some superb acting as Christa. Douglass Montgomery is fine as the boy in the case. Walter Connolly delivers a neat, albeit unpleasant, characterization of a father too occupied with business to pay any attention to the mental and spiritual needs of his daughter. And then there is that lovely Kay Johnson as the school director! Why on earth we don't see more of this charming and talented young woman is beyond me. All of the other players please.

A captivating musical score and gorgeous scenery do much to make "Eight Girls in a Boat" the engrossing movie that it is.

Flying Clothes Score Hit for Other Sports

BY RHEA SEEGER.

You don't have to fly this year to be comfortable, but it helps . . . a certain famous aviatrix has designed some clothes for flyers and all the grounded shoppers that are the last word in supercomfort. Armholes that allow all the feverish activity any woman ever expended on any job or sports . . . inverted pleats in the back sections of the dresses that will achieve more freedom of the arms than any sports dress you've been lucky enough to find.

This exciting new collection of clothes for the active woman, even though they have been designed by an aviatrix, are suitable for any kind of sport wear, as well as street and flying.

The flying lady has indulged a weakness for zippers, practically every model in the showing, sports a couple of zippers—but clever zippers geared for a flying minded person, the ends decorated with propeller screwlike ends.

One deftly molded brown felt hat has a swanky fold in the crown held down with such a metal zipper. Slim skirts and knockout looking blouses have pairs of zippers . . . snugly fitted jackets are streaked with a trick zipper and when the zippers run out the buttons are made to look like ball-bearings without the rim. Other buttons are fashioned like screws and bolts.

A stunning tailored blouse is fashioned of white parachute silk, the same kind of stuff that is used in the parachutes ambitious members of a caterpillar club use when they bail out. Other trick materials are waterproofed, ready for stormy weather aloft or on the ground.

And the last gasp in coat linings are the numbers that slip in and out with a zipper. Whether you fly for a thrill, just once a year, or dash about on earth at top speed, or fly daily, these clothes are especially attractive . . . they are the smartest, swankiest new sports clothes you can find.

Nancy Yuille and Viscount to Wed Today

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 6.—[Special.]—Viscount Richard Adare and Miss Nancy Yuille of New York will be married tomorrow at Villa Louwana, winter home of Miss Yuille's sister, Mrs. Wolcott Blair of Chicago, at Palm Beach.

The wedding will be very simple, only the family and intimate friends of Miss Yuille and Viscount Adare attending. The Rev. William Biederwolf, minister of Poinciana chapel, will perform the ceremony at 4 p. m. There will be no attendants.

Miss Yuille is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Yuille of New York. Owing to Mr. Yuille's serious illness he and Mrs. Yuille are unable to attend, and Miss Melissa Yuille, who had been here visiting, went to New York Saturday to be with them.

Viscount Adare is the eldest son of the earl and countess of Dunraven of Adare manor, County Limerick, Ireland, and Dunraven castle, Glamorganshire, South Wales.

Viscount Adare came to Palm Beach in mid-January, and for a short time was the guest at Villa Amado of Charles A. Munn, afterward going on a yachting cruise among the keys as a member of Capt. and Mrs. R. Amcotts Wilson's party together with the duchess of Sutherland, who also was a guest of Mr. Munn upon arriving in January.

Following a short cruise, Viscount Adare and his bride expect to return to Palm Beach to be with Mr. and Mrs. Blair.

SYNOPSIS.

Barbara Brawne, aged 22, is completely dominated by an adoring though jealous father, who is against every modern idea and improvement. Lynwood, their home, is in the prim and proper village of Oxbridge, a place of intellectual sanctity. Barbara seems predestined to join the ranks of the village spinsters. Her father scares away any would-be suitors. She contemplates rebellion. Gregory Rance, popular novelist, is visiting her cousin, Laurie Chiswick. They are mutually attracted. Barbara overhears Rance asking Laurie about her. He says she is the sort of girl he'd want to marry. Barbara proposes to Rance. But Rance is divorced and her father hates divorce and uses this as an excuse to oppose their marriage. When Barbara determines to marry Rance, regardless, her father has a stroke. Barbara fears he'll kill himself deliberately. She promises him she won't marry Rance without his consent. Gregory goes away and Barbara strives futilely to put him out of her mind. Disbrough, her father's partner, is a frequent visitor at Lynwood. Her father approves of him as a husband for Barbara, knowing she is not in love with him. In desperation, Barbara marries Disbrough. It is to be, until Barbara decides otherwise, a marriage in name only, Barbara sharing her fortune with him. Then with his daughter safe from his enemy Brawne loses his grip on life. Barbara inquires of Miss Mintie of her mother.

INSTALLMENT XLV.

A LOVER'S RETURN.

April went and May came in with the old quince hedges in scarlet bloom and the crab apple trees swollen with fragrant clouds. Barbara had grown very silent in the last month, and to her brooding imagination the young season brought the old hunger and the hot flash of rebellion. Rance had never written. She had waited for another novel, wondering, even hoping that in some remembered phrase she might recover contact with him. Her husband, occupied with his duties at Washington, had been an infrequent visitor. She followed his progress occasionally in the newspapers. In two more months they would have been married a year, and as yet she had come to no decision. When he returned to the house she felt a new antagonism; nothing that he provoked personally, but rather a resentment against the inexorable quality of her fate that demanded that she, too, third of her line, should be denied her nature.

The thing she distrusted in her husband was his patience and the correct impersonality of his attitude toward her. Men who could wait with an oriental patience for what they wanted were often implacable in their strength. So long as their relations remained as they were she was mistress of her actions. But if he bound her to him by a child, would she find a master? If children came the racial love of the child, as in her ancestors, would never permit her to free herself. Unfortunately for Disbrough, as the year of probation neared its end he began to assume a new attitude. His letters began to grow longer, more frequent, more intimate. He made a special effort to reach Lynwood at least twice a month, bringing with him little presents. She felt the beginning of a conscious wooing and the result, even before the discovery of her family history, irritated her. Afterward the effect was a violent revulsion that ended in a fixed determination never to yield to him. She would retain her complete independence at all hazards, and when her father died she would free herself in fact.

In the last week of May she went to the station to meet her husband, a social ceremony she had never failed to perform in fairness to him. She stood in the background, waiting without curiosity while the train ground to a stop. Her husband detached himself from the confusion of the crowd and came towards her, precisely as her father used to arrive. Stiff, formal, the important man, lifting his hat, with a surface smile. The same opening remark:

"Ten minutes late, aren't we?"

"Are you? I didn't notice."

She turned mechanically to follow him and, looking up, looked into the eyes of Gregory Rance. By an impulse which she never understood she swayed toward her husband and took his arm. She withdrew her hand hastily and turned, but Rance was already up the platform, lost in the crowd.

They took their seats in the laudau. At her husband's special insistence she had continued the tradition. It was a distinction, he felt, that marked their peculiar position in Oxbridge society, as one of the families that had the right to determine manners and morals.

"Whom are you looking at?" he said, noticing that she turned.

"There was a man reminded me of Gregory Rance," she said quietly. "Did you notice him?"

"I? No. You must be mistaken."

She did not enlighten him. Deceived by her manner he added: "But we've gotten over that by now, haven't we?" He spoke with a new confidence. With his new dignities he was manifesting a sense of his own value. "I've got great news for you. There's to be a disarmament conference in Paris and we are to go over with the secretary. It'll be a brilliant gathering. You'll meet no end of interesting people. What do you say to that? Barbara, didn't you hear me?"

"What?"

He repeated, enlarging on the importance to him and the opportunity to her.

"You know very well I can't leave father."

"There is not the slightest reason you shouldn't leave him now. He won't even realize you've gone. I had a long talk with Dr. Richards about his case. Your father will never recover his lucidity, Barbara. There'll be fewer and fewer flashes of returning memory. Dr. Richards says that he cannot possibly live for more than three years, and he may go much sooner. You can have no feeling about it. It would be a mercy to him. So you see there is no reason why you should deny yourself such an opportunity as this.

"Well, what have you been doing all week?"

She roused herself unwillingly to answer, as formerly she had given her report to her father. The shock of Rance's return had left every sense numbed. She felt a dull physical lassitude, her mind inert, refusing to contemplate what was ahead. When she answered his repeated questions her voice sounded to her as though she were in a dream.

At dinner she was held in the same lethargy. Her father sat opposite her, Miss Kerrigan at his side, to cut up his meat, then Aunt Abbie bowed over her plate. Disbrough's return always momentarily stimulated her father. He liked the sound of the male voice and the gossip of the law firm. He was not always clear as to Allen's relations to Barbara, whether they were engaged or married, but his interest in him was marked. He was the thin connecting link back to his active life.

"And where is your Aunt Mattie, my dear?" he said abruptly.

Explanations were useless. A regular formula had been agreed on.

"She is not feeling very strong tonight, Mr. Brawne," said Miss Kerrigan. "We thought she'd better stay in her room."

Dr. Saunders had been dead twenty years.

Disbrough began to tell of the difficulties the administration was having with the radical senators. Mr. Brawne listened with his head on one side—back in the days of McKinley and La Follette.

Barbara listened, too, without an attempt to follow the conversation. Her husband was her father all over again—the same stanch opinions on property rights, the same incomprehension of human rights. He was of her father's generation, never of hers. He was entering a new phase, the phase of achieved success. His toleration and understanding would not continue indefinitely. Already, as in the matter of the trip abroad, he was beginning quietly to assume what her decisions must be. The authority he would seek would be the authority her father had imposed. The clock in the hall ticktocked heavily, and the dinner went on as it had gone on night after night with the same somnolent regularity as it had gone on in her mother's day and her mother before her. Another turn of the wheel and Disbrough only would be sitting opposite her, without youth or understanding of youth, and so on and so on, year after year—tick-tock, tick-tock.

She rose abruptly, excused herself and went out, throwing a cape over her shoulders. She was half way down the path to the river before she realized what she was doing.

"He will be there at the bridge tonight," she thought. "If I go it will be the end."

She turned and came back heavily and, afraid to trust herself to the call in the air, the winds, and the fragrance in the breeze, came in and sat by the fireplace, leaning forward, staring. That night she did not undress, but stood by the window leaning out toward the night, long hours until, with the gray seeping in of the dawn, she turned and flung herself exhausted on her bed.

Doris Blake Answers

Return His Ring.

"Dear Miss Blake: I had an argument with my boy friend and insulted him. I dislike him now, but I have his ring. Should I return it or wait until he asks for it?

"DYNAMITE."

Send Him Invitation.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy who said he loves me. He is out of a job and hasn't been around for two weeks. What should I do? RUTH."

Send the boy an invitation to your house, why don't you? He'll be glad to know he still has friends who want him when he's idle.

Nine Bachelors Dislike Girls' Artificiality

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Nine young men, all in their late twenties, with not one of them married, engaged, or attached to any one girl!

Is it possible? It seemingly is. For the dad of three of the young men is direct informant for the bachelor group. He knows them well, for his home houses the nine frequently.

"All in their late twenties," the man reports, "good looking, upstanding, socially acceptable, on the invitation lists of established social position in the area. They are all at work, several of them teachers, one in a bank, one an artist, one in a great wholesale house, and so on. Six of them have traveled widely, have brought home modest treasures of artistic and ethnological interest. They are athletic, with letters from their colleges, most of them, wear their formal clothes handsomely, and their moral cleanliness gives us faith in their generation."

Now, what is wrong with the girls of the community? The dad feels there must be something wrong. Why should these young men prefer to play bridge together than circle around among the young women? They're not queer in any sense of the word, the dad knows. But the girls obviously are not sufficiently attractive to interest them.

The lack of naturalness among the girls is one of the charges. The overuse of makeup and the general artificiality of their characters are charged off by the observing parent as having something to do with it. The "vamp stuff" has been discussed among the young men and chalked up as a total loss. The girls do not take time to let the boys find out their real selves, changing and shifting their "dates" as easily as they change their makeup and clothes. The fact that the young men like to dress and "go formal" to parties does not meet a similar taste in the young women.

Is it possible that there is a young man movement to establish a new dignity, a new formality of behavior? Maybe. Anyway, it is a queer phenomenon that is presented in this group of nine bachelors. What do you think of them?

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—The German ambassador, Dr. Hans Luther, entertained at dinner tonight at the embassy for the speaker of the house and Mrs. Henry T. Rainey.

The engagement is announced by the rector emeritus and now acting rector of St. John's church in Washington and Mrs. Roland Cotton Smith of their daughter, Margaret Cotton Smith Emerson, to Bartow H. Hall, son of Henry C. Hall of this city. The wedding will take place Thursday in New York.

Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the secretary of the interior, who came to Washington for the anniversary dinner for the President on Sunday night, returned to Springfield, Ill., last night to resume her duties as a delegate to the legislature.

Miss Libby Chase Goes to Arizona.

After toying all winter with the idea of a trip to some far distant land—or even only as far as Mexico, Miss Libby Chase suddenly departed for Arizona to spend a quiet fortnight. Her aunt, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, invited her out to the Champe ranch near Phoenix, and she also plans to visit the James Minottos.

One by one the "Farwell girls" are returning to their homes after a week of fun together in Lake Forest visiting their mother, Mrs. Granger Farwell, and their sisters, Mrs. Laurence B. Robbins and Mrs. Richard D. Stevenson. Mrs. Franklin C. Kenly left for Medford, Ore., a few days ago, and Mrs. Edward B. Hill returned yesterday to her San Francisco home. Mrs. Farwell Boston, whose visit from England occasioned the reunion of the sisters, is leaving today and sails in ten days for her London home.

Mrs. Arthur Cable returned Sunday from Paris. While abroad Mrs. Cable was with her mother, Mrs. Orestes B. Tennis, and her sister, Miss Louise Tennis.

A sad mission . . . the sudden death of Henry W. Wales . . . hastened the return of the Gorham family from a vacation at the Boca Raton club in Florida. Mr. Wales and the senior Sidney S. Gorham were brothers-in-law. Accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Gorham south were their two sons and daughters-in-law, the junior Sidney S. Gorhams and the Willett N. Gorhams.

Mrs. Hunter A. Dickson, who has been handling so efficiently the publicity for the Kenwood Social Service club's fashion show, bridge tea, and supper dance on March 31 at the Drake, left yesterday for the west coast to visit her family in Bellingham, Wash. She will return about May 1. Mrs. Edward R. Adams has assumed Mrs. Dickson's position as publicity chairman.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Those of you who are constantly on the lookout for something new will be pleased to know that a brand, spanking new line of beauty products came to town on Monday and awaits your inspection in a department store.

We attended what amounted to its coming out party just so we could tell you all.

The creator of these products starts out with one of the soundest ideas you ever heard of. Facials are grand, she thinks, but she believes in getting to the bottom of face troubles. And get to the bottom she does. Her facials start with a foot massage, using a special foot cream. And if you ask us it's a grand idea. As we've said here before, many a face wrinkle is born of creaking feet.

Her foot treatment, which she tells you how to give to yourself at home, doesn't stop at massage; there are half a dozen simple exercises to go through, too. The combination insures that "walking on air" feeling—and if you've never had a foot massage you haven't any idea of relaxation. It's one of the best little relaxers in the world.

Our enthusiasm for the idea and for the cream may lead you to think that it's all the lady has to offer. T'aint so. There are creams and oils and tonics to suit every type of skin—all of good quality. There is one very heavy cream that will appeal to those of you with terribly dry skins who seem to have such awful difficulty in replenishing its oil supply. It's very heavy but seems to be absorbed rather quickly.

There is also a foundation cream we suggest you look at. It gives the skin that enviable soft, moist finish that is the vogue at the moment.

And don't overlook the hand whitener. If you want your hands to be in elegant shape for some particular occasion this is a good trick to know about. A bit of it will, in some miraculous fashion, whiten the hands instantly—an effect that obligingly lasts for a couple of hours. It's nifty.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

Mr. Sims is universally acclaimed the greatest living contract and auction player. He was captain of the renowned "Four Horsemen" team of four, now disbanded, and has won twenty-four national championships since 1924. These articles are based on the Sims system, which includes the one-over-one principle which the Sims group of players was the first to employ and develop.

DO NOT FORCE UNTHINKINGLY.

IT is blindly agreed by perhaps the majority of players that whenever partner has opened the bidding and they hold a hand with which they would have bid if partner and opponent had passed, a forcing response must automatically be given.

Sometimes even when you wre right in forcing you will get to a game that through duplication of values you are unable to make. For instance, your partner deals and opens very soundly with one spade on to which you equally soundly give the forcing response of three hearts.

Spades—A K 9 6 4	Diam—A 10 x
Hearts—x x x	Clubs—x x

Spades—x x x	Diam—K Q J
Hearts—A K x x x	Clubs—Q x

Misfortune, however, awaits you as you will be set one trick in either four hearts or four spades. This is downright bad luck; ninety-five times out of a hundred game will be made with these values. The hands need only a slight rearrangement of the very same cards for game [at least], to be there. I merely want to illustrate how primary values alone can disappoint one as the basis of a forcing response.

Essentials for a Forcing Takeout.

Since responder guarantees game, opener is entitled to feel optimistic regarding slam prospects if his hand holds reserve values. Therefore, we are cautious in making forcing takeouts. Three factors are vital:

1. Since game is guaranteed, not more than three or four apparent losers in conjunction with normal visualization of partner's opening bid.

2. Normal support for the opening bid—that is, four small ones or three headed by the queen or higher. This would have insured game in spades in the example given above. After a rebid of his suit by opener, king x becomes normal support.

3. Failing No. 2 sufficient side strength plus a long solid suit to render probable the success of a slam contract.

North	East	South	West
1 Sp [1]	Pass	3 Cl [2]	Pass
3 N T [3]	Pass	4 Cl [4]	Pass
4 N T [5]	Pass	6 N T [6]	Pass
Pass	Pass

1. A strong defensive hand. Contains sufficient strength to rebid no trumps if the partner makes a response.

2. The jack ten of spades will enable South to set up the spade suit in North's hand in the event that he will be the declarer. Although it is not normal spade support, the likelihood of setting up this suit at a very early stage causes South to take an optimistic view.

3. Not containing a club honor the minimum response is made. If the spades were a five suiter, a rebid of three spades would be correct.

4. Denoting at least a six card suit with the top honors.

5. Still no club support, but a fine playing hand.

6. North's bid showed excess values over an original bid, so that the slam bid should be tried.

Seven was made by virtue of East opening the diamond two. A squeeze play was developed. At trick eleven, North led the spade queen and also held heart queen-ten. East had to discard from heart king five, diamond queen and South held heart ace six, diamond ten.

Endless Stairs.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This quilt block is a great favorite with quilt historians, as well as all quilt makers. The simplicity of the pattern and the ease with which it may be pieced do much for its popularity. The various steps, each one of different colored prints, create a design of everlasting appeal. The inherent quaintness of the completed block speaks of the antiquity of the original design.

SpringDemands Light Diet and Some Exercises

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

You may not be deeply concerned about your weight. You may not be overweight, but around this time of year you may feel sort of washed up and look it. You feel heavy on the feet for no good reason.

The wise old men, who dictated a period of fasting and abstinence known as Lent, had not only the soul in mind, but also the body. They knew that a period of lighter eating was likewise good for the mind to clarify it, as it were, the better to determine what's wrong with the sinner.

Nowadays we laymen are permitted so much wise, instructive food knowledge, that it hardly needs to be told us that we should put ourselves on periodical light diets.

All this soggy heaviness of mind and body is destructive to looks, as you know. Little of the old sparkling person remains where digestion is not working rightly and where constipation exists. The eyes aren't getting in their best work. The hair is hard to arrange. The complexion may take on any hue under the rouge. And the life has gone out of the old sole.

A lighter diet for a few weeks may be all you need, coupled with a little light exercise daily. Adopt a couple of stray exercises looking for a victim, any good exercise program that stretches and stirs up the circulation. Then, in place of the heavy breadstuffs, cereals, gravies, puddings, pies, or any rich dish, think out something light to substitute. Milk, taken as food, is perfect. Drink it. Take it in cocoa or malted milk. Take it in creamed soups or custards. Get a good supply of fruit juices into your system. Substitute stewed fruits for dessers for a while.

'Anathema' Is Just That to Drama Critic

"ANATHEMA."

THE CAST.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

We gathered in the Goodman theater last night, some 900 Friends of the Drama, to quench our thirst with "Anathema," a play by the Russian writer, Andreyev, much esteemed by the pre-war intellectuals. But after the prolog and two acts had been run off, only 899 Friends of Drama remained. I had quietly faded away, temporarily hostile to the movement.

"Anathema" is the kind of play that makes me feel like an utterly frivolous fellow, opposed to all forms of profound thinking, especially when accompanied by Russian oratory. It deals with the upper case abstractions, such as God, Eternity, Satan, Conscience, Soul, Good and Evil. It thumps you over the head with them. It browbeats you with philosophic riddles and portentous allegories. It makes play going a matter of knitted brows and gritted teeth.

Mr. Anathema, who is the central figure in the proceedings, is apparently the devil, viewed from a fantastic theological point of view. He yearns to merge himself with the Infinite and to become blended in the mystery of God, but after he has addressed the heavenly portals in vain on this point [in the prolog] he takes to meddling with the affairs of mankind, and particularly in those of David Lazar, a poor old Jew of many sufferings.

Anathema bestows two million dollars upon David, whose spiritual agonies are greatly increased by this material blessing. When he was poor he merely muttered about his trouble, when rich every wall becomes a wailing place. Somehow David does not feel that he stands right with God when he is clothed in fine raiment, when his wife does not have to peddle things in the market place, when his son is taking dancing lessons and his daughter is riding horseback with her admirers. David sets up a loud, long howl about all this.

Whereupon Anathema tells him to acquire merit with the Lord by giving away his money to the poor. So David calls in the ritraf of his people, and in a speech of wild religious ecstasy he strips himself of his possessions. Then Anathema, the God infatuated spirit of sin, falls at his feet and worships him as a saint.

I must drop the story at this point, for I was weary of David and wanted to hear nothing more of him. The play became anathema to me.

David Itkin, a member of the faculty of the Goodman school of acting, is the guest star of the cast, in the rôle of David the complainer. The rôle, of course, is Yiddish of racial color, and Mr. Itkin's accent is so realistic, so heavily laid on, that he is often hard to understand. He overacts—also a Yiddish characteristic.

The others in the company give a good account of their training as student actors. Duane McKinney, who has the rôle of Anathema, reaches the professional level. The costuming and scene design represent effective art theater work.

Swedish Prince Files Notice of Intent to Wed Berlin Actress

LONDON, March 6.—(AP)—Prince Sigvard of Sweden made legal today his decision to defy tradition and the wishes of his family by marrying the blonde German actress, Erika Patzek, for whom he is willing to surrender royal titles and privileges.

In the Caxton hall registry office—by answering a few simple questions—the 26 year old son of Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf informed "all whom it may concern" that he intends to wed the 22 year old Erika at noon Thursday.

The wedding will be of the simplest. There will be no reception. Everything almost will be far different from the pomp and ceremony he could claim if he married a princess.

Whose Fault?

Fitful Sleep or Bad Dreams

Fitful, fretful slumber and those 'bad dreams' are sometimes caused by eating things hard to digest, or eating too near bedtime. But a more common cause is constipation. If clogged with waste, a child can't relax; the whole system becomes affected. You just can't give the ordinary cathartic at such an hour. (Indeed, laxatives of adult strength are never suitable for children.) See next column for a way to make the child comfortable for the night, and insure the needed bowel movement next morning:

To turn a nervous, wakeful child into a peaceful little slumberer, try two teaspoonfuls of a delicious fruity syrup you can get from any druggist. Just have him to give you a bottle of California Syrup of Figs. Any boy or girl will love its taste. It starts at once to sweeten a sour, bilious system; and next morning, after moving about, the child will have a thorough, natural bowel action from the gentle action of the senna, if it is the real California Syrup of Figs.

Summer Frocks as Paris Plans Them Will Be Truly Bare Back Models

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Paris dressmakers are so infatuated with those dresses they made in late winter that had the blouse-back mostly vacant they are going strong on the same idea for spring.

Dresses that are strictly tailored and meant to be worn out to dinner with hats have back-bodices so décolleté or so slit that most of the vertebra show. It's a comfortable idea for hot weather and only shocks at first. Such décolletés are compensated for by a general covering up of arms and chest.

The informal evening gown of Schiaparelli which is shown here has the smartest kind of barebacked bodice looking as if it had been carelessly left unfastened. This model is made of vivid red knitted silk jersey and is trimmed with ribbed silk jersey in the same tone which makes the full length bands down the front and the bands at the back, which become trailing panels that can be pulled up and draped around the shoulders covering the décolleté.

Bronchial Irritations Need Creosote

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds, and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on. Creomulsion, with creosote and six other highly important medical elements, quickly and effectively stops coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creomulsion is powerful in the treatment of colds and coughs, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creomulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creomulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creomulsion on hand for instant use.

Chicago Symphonic Choir Gives Concert of Line Ensemble Singing

The Chicago Symphonic choir, directed by Walter Aschenbrenner, is now in its fourth season, and in its concert at Orchestra hall last night it demonstrated that its present form exceeds any that it has had since its foundation.

According to a line on the program, it is dedicated to the advancement of unaccompanied choral music. As such it is deserving of much credit.

Mr. Aschenbrenner has had the good fortune to select some five or six dozen members of considerable ability and the artistic ambition to drill them into quite extraordinary disciplined flexibility. A good part of last night's program was of sacred music, and much of that belonged to the Russian school of composition. Here the choir ranged from the merest whisper of tone to an exultant shout, but always it was tone and good tone.

Once in a great while, it is true, a desire to project the melodic phrase in full force worked at the expense of the text, but generally words and music came over in equal lyric partnership.

In other words, it was fine ensemble singing.

Even Veteran Newsmen to Be Replaced.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, March 6.—American-soviet relations will start with a clean slate upon the arrival of Ambassador William C. Bullitt and the remainder of his staf in Moscow tomorrow.

Although the staf was carefully selected and contains many of the state department's best men, none of the American representatives accredited to Moscow has a knowledge of conditions prevailing in Russia previous to the revolution. This inability to make comparisons with the period before the advent of Bolshevism is expected to facilitate the development of friendly relations.

New Press Representatives.

THE TRIBUNE is also informed that, coinciding with the arrival of the diplomatic staf, American press associations and newspapers which have correspondents in Moscow have suddenly recalled them and are sending others, also without previous experience in Russia. This move surprised foreign diplomats stationed at the soviet capital, who believe it was done at the instigation of the American government as a measure to guard against the possible contamination of the diplomats.

The soviet government is also taking measures to prevent a disturbance of the renewed American-soviet relations.

Further confirmation of this policy is found in the fact that competent state department men who have been following developments in Russia from Riga, Latvia, for many years, are not included in the Moscow staf. One youthful language officer was transferred to Moscow, but the older men were left out. The destination of the archives of the American legation at Riga, which contain reports of Russian conditions compiled in the last 14 years, is unknown.

Riga Legation Hit.

Riga, which until now has been the second largest and one of the most important American legations, now becomes of third rate importance, dealing only with developments in the Baltic states. A number of trained local clerks and translators, who had hoped to obtain jobs in Moscow, are facing discharge. Also, the staf of the Riga consulate, which has been handling soviet vises and the immigration quota, has been greatly reduced. The consulate is equally losing importance.

Bullitt, accompanied by John Cudahy, United States ambassador to Poland, paid a number of official calls yesterday. Afterward he granted an interview to the Polish press and foreign correspondents. Conversing fluently in French and German, Bullitt expressed the hope that American-soviet trade will quickly develop with the improving of facilities. Discounting war talk, Bullitt said the world's chief concern today was to maintain peace, promote international confidence, and restore world commerce.

Today Bullitt called on Premier Janusz Jendrzejewicz.

U. S. ASKS FRANCE ABOUT 2 YANKS JAILED AS SPIES

PARIS, March 6.—(AP)—Threads of the espionage charges against Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz of East Orange, N. J., are so complicated, French authorities told a representative of the American embassy today, a speedier investigation of the case is impossible.

The Americans have been in jail since December in connection with an alleged spy plot. The state department at Washington has made a new inquiry into their situation, it was learned.

Attorneys for the couple, however, are seeking their earlier release from prison. Officials of the embassy said no visit to the Switzes by a representative is contemplated, since the Americans did not ask the embassy's aid.

VIENNA, March 6.—(AP)—Emil Fey, heimwehr leader and vice chancellor, appealed to Austrian workers tonight not to throw themselves "into the arms of Nazis."

He predicted that Socialism would soon disappear in the entire world and described political leaders of all colors "who at present are trying to stir up new unrest and make a profit out of the political situation" as "hyenas of the political battlefield."

The vice chancellor denied statements that police and gendarmes would fail to oppose any Nazi action because of sympathy with the Nazi cause. He said officers would "exert the same energy as used recently against bolshevists."

ROOT ACCEPTS TERMS; JOINS CUBS TODAY

GOLDEN GLOVES FLYWEIGHTS BEST IN YEARS

So Latecoming Fans Will Miss Plenty.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Golden Glove warriors will be on the march again tomorrow, headed back to Chicago and the scene of the championship on Friday night. Their final drills—the last of the year for many of them—will take place in local gymnasiums during the afternoon.

JESSE LEVELS.

Following the boxers here from the 12 cities which the 24 invaders represent will come the greatest crowd of out of town rooters ever to gather at the ringside for the climax of the Tournament of Champions. There is the possibility that they may outnumber the Chicago spectators. In the volume of noise making they promise to outdo their Chicago neighbors by a considerable margin.

They're from All Over.

The cities from which the large rooting delegations are coming and which have one or more heroes left in the title scrap are Cleveland, Grand Rapids, Detroit, Peoria, Gary, Springfield, South Bend, Danville, Joliet, Rockford, Nashville, and Michigan City. The fans from the territory surrounding these cities will also be much in evidence at the ringside.

The demand for tickets yesterday was the heaviest since the sale opened, with the fans from out in Chicagoland buying just as briskly as the Chicagoans did. There were plenty of seats left at prices ranging from 55 cents to $3.30. From today on, orders from out of town must be accompanied by certified check or by money orders.

The Golden Glove fans in Chicago yesterday turned their attention to the lighter boys who will strive for the championships, and the dopesters came to the conclusion that some of the greatest fighting may take place in the 112 pound or flyweight class before a winner is determined.

Flyweights All Stars.

Even the veterans among the Golden Glove fans could not recall a year when the surviving flyweight combatants possessed as much genuine boxing skill and punching ability.

They also found the work of trying to pick the favorite a futile job. They discovered early that each of the four lads remaining in the struggle were championed by about as many fans as any of the others were. The survivors are Patsy Urso of Grand Rapids, Johnny Brown from the Catholic Youth organization, William Joyce from Gary and Jesse Levels from Cleveland.

Joyce is the first Negro boy ever to win a place on the Gary team and he was the lone survivor of the eight stalwarts sent here to fight in the colors of the Steel City. He caught on with the Chicago crowd in the early part of the tournament but so did Urso, Brown and Levels.

Urso's Victories Sensational.

Urso's early victories were perhaps the most spectacular, for every foe he faced was a championship possibility. He trimmed each of them decisively and came through his bouts with hardly a scratch or a bruise.

Urso's presence alone in Friday's battles was sufficient to attract a large crowd from Grand Rapids. Yet there is another excuse for the Grand Rapids folks to spend Friday night in Chicago for Patsy has a teammate to fight along side by side with him in Peter Gregaitis, who is endeavoring to win the light heavyweight title.

Neither Urso nor Joyce will have an easy time of it fighting on toward the flyweight crown. In Johnny Brown of the C. Y. O. and Jesse Levels of Cleveland they have rivals who might easily have won championships in other years.

Unsung Officials Make Tourney Wheels Go Around

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The many thousands who have seen a Golden Gloves tournament in Chicago in the last seven years, who have watched the qualifying trials in the sectional meets, the Tournament of Champions, the finals, an intercity meet with New York or an international contest against France, Germany or Ireland, have concentrated attention on the boxers. It is natural that interest should center on these boys who have made boxing history, but back of their bouts is a corps of experienced and untiring men whose efforts make each tournament a success.

They're the Ones Who Make Wheels Revolve.

It is of these men we wish to write. They make the tournament wheels go around.

These men devote many hours to the amateur boxers, hours stolen from business or sacrificed from the time normally spent with their families. They work without remuneration and for the love of amateur competition. They are unsung heroes, many of them working long hours out of sight of the arena and whose only desire is to make each tournament better than its predecessor.

Let us start with the first day's labor and follow the work of these men. Six weeks before the opening of the Chicago sectional tournaments on the west side entries were received. Facts and figures on these tournaments have been repeated many times, but from the list of 2,772 boys who sent THE TRIBUNE an entry blank were culled more than 1,300 successful candidates. On nine nights during a three week period the clerks of the Central association of the A. A. U., the tournament clerks and the staff of physicians recorded applications, assigned the boys to the sectional tournaments, and passed on their physical qualifications.

Officials' List Totals More than 100.

More than a hundred men compose the list of Golden Gloves officials. From 2 o'clock in the afternoon until midnight for the ten days of the Chicago sectionals these men were on duty. Medical cards already signed by each examining physician at the early examinations were again approved. The boys were classified by weights, pairings made, gloves and other equipment issued, and the competitors were sent into the ring.

There the spectator first saw them. Fourteen men composed the list of judges—five were announcers and nine were judges. In their hands lay the decision for each of the 862 bouts in the four sectional tournaments. Some decisions were close. All perhaps were not approved by the average spectator, easily influenced by partisanship, but in the main the officials' duties were well handled. Certainly none could criticize fairness or impartiality.

Not only did this group of officials prove themselves capable of handling a two ring tournament, but twice dur-

Ellsworth Beats Henri in Straight Sets.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

William T. Tilden and Ellsworth Vines conquered their French opponents in handy fashion in the singles matches which opened the international professional tennis series last night at the Broadway armory.

In the first encounter of the evening Tilden defeated Martin Plaa, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, 7-5, after which Vines took the measure of Henri Cochet, 8-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Both matches were decided by the tremendous power behind the strokes of the Americans. Each Frenchman showed a sound and polished game when the ball was traveling at a moderately fast clip. But when each American in turn found out that he could not outsteady his opponent, he changed tactics and battered him down.

Plaa Shows Sound Game.

Tonight Tilden will be matched against Cochet and Vines against Plaa. The attendance last night was 3,100.

France salvaged one point in the closing event, Cochet and Plaa teaming to win the doubles from Tilden and Vines in straight sets, 8-6 and 6-4. The victory was the third the French have scored in the series to date. Tilden was apparently worn out and Vines was unable to carry the full load against the strong French pair.

Plaa showed the galleries a sound all around game marked by an unusually graceful and thoroughly dependable backhand. He was able to cope with everything except Tilden's power. Through long exchanges he matched stroke for stroke with the American until Tilden began leaning into the ball with full speed.

Outsteadying his opponent in long exchanges from the baselines, the Frenchman drew away to a 5-2 lead in the opening set. With some nicely judged placements, Tilden took the next game on his own service and broke through the Frenchman's delivery immediately afterward. In the tenth game Plaa ran the count to set point, drew Tilden to the net and passed him with a swift forehand shot to take the set, 6-4.

Tilden Turns on Power.

Plaa advanced to a lead of 5-1 in the second set. Then Tilden turned on the power and ran out the set at 7-5 after taking six consecutive games. During that onslaught he made seven service aces.

Again in the third set the Frenchman was unable to cope with the American's speed and Tilden quickly terminated the chapter, 6-2.

The pace slowed somewhat as the fourth set began and games went with service until the count reached five all. Then Tilden again cut loose with a series of spectacular shots to take the next two games and the match.

Service was the deciding factor in the first set between Vines and Cochet until the score worked up to six all. Breaking through the Frenchman's delivery, the American led 7-6. On the defensive, Cochet withstood a terrific bombardment, forcing the game to deuce again and again. Finally Vines battered out two successive points to take the set, 8-6.

They moved along on even terms in the second set until the score reached 3 all. Then again Vines' superior power asserted itself. Hitting with relentless force, he ran out the set, 6-4. Continuing to bear down, Vines forced Cochet into repeated errors as the third set progressed and had little difficulty winning, 6-2, and terminating the match.

GREETINGS, SONJA!

Miss Henie Arrives in U. S.; Present Tour May Be Last

New York, March 6.—(AP)—One of the greatest woman titleholders in all the history of sport, golden haired, 21 year old Sonja Henie, arrived here today for what may be her final American exhibition tour as a world figure skating champion.

"For five years," said the dainty little Norwegian girl, smiling so widely a dimple bit deep into her cheek, "I have been saying I will retire. Now soon I think I will. I am tired of training all the time."

Denies Dickson Romance.

There have been rumors that when the time comes the girl who started out at 14 to win the women's world championship eight times would marry Jeff Dickson, transplanted Alabaman who promotes sports in Paris and London.

"No, no," said Sonja, dimpling up again, "we are very good friends. But marriage, no. I have met no one yet."

She has absolutely no intention of turning professional, spiking another rumor, and she hopes she won't be talked into competing in the next winter Olympics in Germany in 1936. She won the women's title at Lake Placid in 1932 and before that in Switzerland in 1928.

"But they will say 'You must, Sonja,' and I like to skate so much," she sighed.

A few weeks ago she won the 1934 world title at Oslo, her home city, and except for the fact that it was held there she might not have competed.

"Never," she said enthusiastically, "have I skated so well. I have been in training since September. First I won the European championship, but I felt I could do better. Then just when the world championships are on I am at my very best. It is strange. In each season you can be at the peak just so long, two weeks at the most. Then you slip down."

To Open in Toronto.

She left tonight for Toronto for exhibitions there Friday and Saturday. She will return for exhibitions in Madison Square Garden here March 14, Boston the 16th, New Haven the 19th, Baltimore the 21st, and Atlantic City the 24th.

Her chief ambitions, as far as the United States are concerned, are to visit California and Florida.

"Each time I have been here," she said, "I have planned to see both. Each time something prevents. This time perhaps I can go."

DEMPSEY TRIES TO MATCH BAER AND STEVE HAMAS

Lubbock, Tex., March 6.—(AP)—Steve Hamas, former Pennsylvania football star, will meet Max Baer in a 15 round bout in New York City in June if plans of Jack Dempsey materialize.

Dempsey, here to referee a boxing card last night, talked by telephone with Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, today relative to a Baer-Hamas fight under Dempsey's promotion, and was told "Baer would be ready" and to "contact Charles Harvey, manager of Hamas, at once." Dempsey wired Harvey and was expecting a favorable reply.

NOTRE DAME TO START FOOTBALL DRILL TOMORROW

Notre Dame, Ind., March 6.—[Special.]—Notre Dame football practice will start Thursday afternoon, when 500 candidates are expected to meet the new coaching staff, headed by Elmer F. Layden.

Tom Conley, assistant coach, is the only member of last year's staff who will be on hand Thursday. Joe Boland, tackle in 1924, and Donald G. [Chet] Grant, quarter back in 1916, 1920, and 1921, are the new assistants to Layden.

Western Kentucky Wins Southern I.A.A. Title, 42-40

Lawrence, Kas., March 6.—(AP)—Glenn Cunningham, Kansas middle distance runner, and a sprinter teammate, Ed Hall, will run in three major track and field carnivals in New York, Hamilton, Ont., and Indianapolis the week of March 17-24, the University of Kansas athletic management announced today.

FONSECA NAMES SOX LINEUP FOR OPENING GAME

Bonura to Play First and Bat Third.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 6.—White Sox spring training today had progressed to the point where Manager Lew Fonseca announced his regular team, which, with the exception of battery men, probably will be the lineup when the Sox meet the Detroit Tigers at Comiskey park on opening day, April 17. The regulars were selected in connection with plans for the year's first intraclub game which will be played here Thursday.

The first 1934 lineup follows:

REGULARS.	YANNIGANS.
Swanson, rf	Lyons, rf
Haas, cf	Boeck, lf
Bonura, 1b	Uhalt, cf
Simmons, lf	Fonseca, 1b
Appling, ss	Kress, 2b
Dykes, 3b	Chamberlin, 3b
Hayes, 2b	Snyder, c
Pasek, c	Flippen, 3b
Nitcholas, p	Pomorski, p
Mills, p	Stine, p
Gallivan, p	Wyatt, p

Selection of Pomorski, Stine, and Wyatt for the Yannigans is an inverse proposition. They have been adjudged the most advanced of the pitchers now here and are placed on the second team in order that the regulars may look at the best shoots available.

Bonura Clouts Homers.

The competitive phase of the training season approaches with very few casualties. Red Kress is nursing a sore arm and Al Simmons has "a strawberry" on his right thigh. Kress' trouble resulted from too spirited effort to catch up with the first squad. Simmons got the abrasions on his thigh in his efforts to put on a show for the grandstand full of spectators that watched today's practice.

Zeke Bonura stepped up to the plate and cracked four straight homers for a big hand from the fans, who called upon Simmons, next up, to duplicate the slugging act. Al knocked three over the hedge, then ran out a triple, sliding into third base without pads. He tore off the right leg of his bloomers and then discovered that he had received his first "strawberry" in five years.

Practice was interrupted today by a couple of tape measure slingers representing the makers of Sox uniforms. The regalia this year virtually will duplicate that of last season except that the home uniforms will be lighter in weight.

Earnshaw Bears Down.

Earnshaw did some bearing down today from the pitchers' mound. Previously he had confined his efforts to shagging flies and pepper sessions.

With the opening of the season almost six weeks away it is a virtual certainty that Earnshaw will pitch the opener against the Tigers, making it a virtual reunion of former Athletic stars, what with Mickey Cochrane managing the opposition and catching the game.

Owner Lou Comiskey now has doubled the time he stayed with the team last spring and has expressed no intention of returning to Chicago for several weeks. Mr. Comiskey is enjoying his best health of several years.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

CARNERA AS CHAMPION.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., March 6.—Champion Primo Carnera, who successfully defended his title against Tommy Loughran last week, proved that he has improved almost unbelievably in his four years before the American public. From a clumsy physical freak who looked as if he never would be anything else he has developed into an acceptable champion, although still far from a great fighter, judged by past standards. Deficiency in fistic skill, however, is offset by such physical advantages that it will take a pretty good mauler to unseat him from his heavyweight perch.

Two opposing camps arose among fight experts following Primo's title defense. The positive coterie say no heavyweight now in training, not even Max Baer, if he resumes training can compete against the Man Mountain. The opposing faction asserts the first hard hitter who comes along will upset Primo. Max Baer is included in that category. Even Max Schmeling, whose recent battles have been on the down grade, is placed among those given better than an even chance.

Against Loughran, Carnera showed boxing skill he was not supposed to possess. He constantly outreached Tommy and beat him to a left jab. In fact, his left was his best blow, although his right uppercut in clinches was considered his ace. That blow the clever Philadelphian pretty effectually bottled up. Primo also was fast on his feet, also on the Philadelphian's feet, according to complaints from that camp. The foot speed vindicated our high appraisal of his ballroom dancing skill, of which we apprised WAKERS before the battle.

Where Carnera did disappoint was in the power behind his blows. They should be haymakers with his great heft behind them, but they were not. Yet we may remember that Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling are not killers, either. Baer packs a punch. We haven't seen Steve Hamas, former Penn State full back, battle. Quaker boxing critics tells us he is not first flight, but that German Max fought an unexplainably poor fight against him and for some reason did not use his effective right cross.

The WAKE thinks Carnera, having gone this far, will still improve. On the day following the battle we asked the big fellow: "Did you learn anything?" In his broken English he replied: "I learned plenty, and I'll remember it."

"Who next?" we ventured.

"Why Baer?"

Knows His Business.

Joe King of Lakeland, a light heavyweight, proved the comedian of the preliminary bouts last week in a rapid fire mixup against Jackie Reid. Both lost a few teeth. King was obviously disgusted and frequently put his tongue to where a tooth had been, making amusing grimaces. One could hear him call to his corner: "That big stiff did this to me."

Sent down from a left hook, a New York Press writer called, "Get up, get up!" King rolled over on his elbow where he had a full view of his self-appointed second and responded: "Never mind the advice. I'll get up at nine, which is more than you would do." And get up he did, to last the four rounds.

Do You Remember 'Way Back When:

After the baseball games up in the Dakotas the winning team gathered in a circle, swung their caps, and gave three cheers for the losers, the losers reciprocated; then, if he had not been too unsatisfactory, both teams gave three cheers for the umpire [1885-'86]?—H. B. Brown, Clark, S. D.

RACING DRIVERS ASK INQUIRY IN COAST CRASH

Los Angeles, Cal., March 6.—Auto race drivers today clamored for an investigation of Sunday's road race at El Centro, Cal., which cost the lives of three men: Ernie Triplett of Los Angeles; George [Swede] Smith of Portland, Ore., and C. L. Hafferly, mechanic.

BILLY HERMAN STILL PREFERS COWS TO CAMP

Walker Hints He Can Stay on Ranch.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Catalina, March 6.—Charley Root, veteran right handed pitcher, notified Cub officials tonight he had decided to accept terms offered last week by President William Walker and would report for practice tomorrow.

CHARLEY ROOT.

Root made known his decision to sign in a long distance telephone call from Los Angeles. The pitcher, who had been one of the Cubs' higher priced players during the last few years, was asked to take a sizeable cut and refused to sign when the Cubs reached Los Angeles Sunday.

His acceptance of terms leaves only Billy Herman, second baseman, in the Cubs' holdout corps. President Walker intimated tonight that Herman could either sign under the terms tendered him or he could stay in Texas on his ranch and groom his 100 head of cattle.

Babe Shows Up.

Floyd [Babe] Herman, whose 1933 batting efforts were part of the national depression, introduced himself into the training program today. The Babe's debut was so much a reminder of last season that the large corps of Cub officials present almost tumbled off their benches in the throne room, which is located back of first base.

It should be borne in mind, however, that the Babe was looking at pitched baseballs for the first time since the White Sox pitchers caused him annoyance in last October's city series. The Babe undoubtedly will improve.

What the illustrious Babe accomplished in his initial effort can be detailed in a few words. Lon Warneke was pitching to him and threw every thing right down the middle with no attempt at deception.

However, He Did Swing.

The Babe looked at 20 pitches. Six of these he swung at and missed. Then he popped a foul behind the plate. Four times he popped to the infield. In a subsequent appearance Herman did a bit better, but not well enough to take the play from Chuck Klein and Babe Phelps, the fat boy who hopes to hang on as a catcher.

Manager Charley Grimm decided today that for Friday's practice he'll put on the first of the series of camp games. To this end he split up his limited squad into two parts, one of them made up mainly of prospective regulars. However, there are vacancies for which only pitchers are available and the shortage may be more noticeable by game time.

This is due to the condition of Woody English and Bill Jurges, who now are known as the blind infielders. Each is suffering from an eye affliction and the doctors hint it may be a week before either can go without sun glasses. Both promise to defy the doctor's orders after a couple more days.

Nelson on Sick List.

Another cripple turned up last night in Pitcher Lynn Nelson, who was turned over to the medicos after he had complained about pains in one ear. The doctors discovered an abscess which was promptly lanced. Nelson went to Los Angiese for observation tonight and will be out of uniform for several days. These three invalids, along with the absentee because of salary differences, have reduced Grimm's squad of candidates to 23 men.

Here is how the Cub manager will lineup his regular squad Friday. English will lead off if his eye improves sufficiently. Augie Galan, prospective second baseman, will swing next. Klein will bat third, although this is temporary. Klein also will play center field. Babe Herman will play right and appear in the cleanup post, which later will go to Klein.

Hack to Lead Off.

Hack will lead off for the opposition, followed by Rice, an unsigned catcher who will have to play the in field. Stephenson and Cuyler will ba third and fourth, thus giving th Goofs a little needed batting strengt Stainback, the outfield rookie from th Los Angeles club, also will assist t Goof outfit. A pitcher will have play second base. Phelps and Seebe will do the Goofs' catching.

A Run on BABY'S BANK!

Around midnight the Old Man sneaks into the nursery, gropes for baby's bank—and finds Mother already has been there! She was first to think of getting tickets for the Golden Gloves finals at the Stadium Friday night.

But Baby still has some capital, for Mother found excellent seats on sale for $2.20, $1.65, $1.10, and 55 cents. The top price is $3.30.

Low prices and the peak in thrills! You can't beat that combination. Why, yesterday there were 17 Scotchmen in line at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street. And there were others at the ticket counter in Tribune Tower.

MINNESOTA MAY RESTORE FAMOUS GRAND PORTAGE

BY BOB BECKER.

Canoeists, campers, and fishermen who frequent the Superior National forest of Minnesota and the adjacent Quetico region during the summer months soon will have the opportunity to portage over an historic old trail, if plans of the Minnesota conservation commission are carried out. The commission has endorsed the idea of restoring the famous Grand Portage.

This was used by voyageurs in the 18th century and early part of the 19th century to circumvent the unnavigable portion of the Pigeon river. Motorists between Duluth and Port Arthur will remember the Pigeon river, marking the boundary between Minnesota and Ontario.

Fur Traders Used Trail.

The famous trail, used for years by fur traders, began at what is now the village of Grand Portage, on the north shore of Lake Superior, and ended about 9 miles away at the site of Fort Charlotte. Minnesota is considering a project which calls for clearing the underbrush from the old portage and placing markers at convenient intervals.

Just how many fortunes in furs were toted over this historic trail, which tapped a country rich in animal life, no one knows. It is known, however, that many roistering voyageurs hiked this path through the wilderness connecting the trapping and Indian country in the interior with Lake Superior.

For a distance of 20 miles, before the river flows into Lake Superior, it dashes past rocky ledges, plunges over waterfalls, and rushes through narrow canyons. Consequently, voyageurs, Indians, English soldiers, and other travelers coming in from the territory had to portage from Fort Charlotte, where the river lost its smoothness, to Grand Portage. It was not until 1783 that the land through which the trail passed became United States territory.

Find Traces of Old Fort.

Investigators have found traces of the old fort and palisade at Grand Portage, where a village has replaced the structures erected in fur trading days. The ancient wooden buildings have rotted away, but the Minnesota Historical society is confident that evidence of two stockades has been located. A few years ago one could see remains of fireplaces and cellars which are thought to have been a part of the old fort. The Northwest company, one of the great fur trading organizations of the early days erected 16 buildings at Grand Portage to take care of their trade and to serve as protection against Indians.

ing the sectionals the crew was divided and ran tournaments on two sides of the city on the same night. In all twelve nights of fighting were conducted on 10 evenings, and a total of 18 rings were used. And we're not forgetting the task of the professional seconds who watched over the boys, nor the examination which was made of each boxer when he was knocked out or unable to continue.

Records were kept of each contestant which included his physical condition before and after his bout. A complete check of each physical disqualification was made, and in many cases these have proved of inestimable worth to the boys themselves.

Then came the Tournament of Champions with its record number of contestants, the largest number of teams in the history of Golden Gloves, and it provided the greatest test of the tournament organization.

Out of Town Visitors Had No Criticism.

That all units functioned perfectly is attested by the fact that no visitor to Chicago, no coach or contestant offered criticism of his treatment or the decision rendered in any contest.

Fifty cots and blankets were provided for the boys between their matches. No boy entered or left the ring without an official to conduct him. We might go into greater detail and mention the dozens of pairs of gloves, the many yards of adhesive tape, the thousands of bags in which the contestants checked their clothes without the loss of a single article, the hundreds of buckets of water carried by the boys assigned to this job, but it is not necessary.

What has been done in Chicago is only a magnified view of the 35 tournaments which qualified contestants for the Tournament of Champions and which in turn introduced the 32 splendid candidates for diamond studded golden gloves who fight Friday night at the Stadium.

Battle to Enter New York Bouts.

From this group and their opponents last week in the Tournament of Champions will come the 24 boys who will meet New York in the seventh intercity bouts in Madison Square Garden March 28. On their trip east they will be joined by the eight novice champions of Chicago.

Lane and Tilden, a pair of teams which have been absent from the championship round of play for the Chicago Public High School league heavyweight basketball title for more than a decade, advanced to the finals for the 1933-'34 crown yesterday. Lane defeated Marshall, 23 to 15, at Crane gymnasium, and Tilden triumphed over Englewood, 26 to 25, in an overtime game at White City.

Lane will be seeking its first heavyweight championship since 1924 when it opposes Tilden in the title game at White City Saturday afternoon. Tilden will be after its second crown since the league was organized, having triumphed in the heavyweight division in 1923.

Free Throws Win For Lane.

The free throwing ability of Lakner, Benziger, and Polachanin brought Lane Tech victory over Marshall. Lakner scored three penalty shots, Benziger, four and Polachanin, five. In addition Lakner scored two field goals, while Benziger and Polachanin each collected one.

The score was tied, 7 to 7, at the end of the first half, but Lane took the lead on free throws shortly after the second half started. Possner, center, starred for Marshall, contributing four of his team's six field goals. Marshall scored only three free throws, Adelstein collecting two and Heller one.

Katich Gives Tilden Victory.

A basket by Katich gave Tilden victory over Englewood. At the intermission Tilden led, 13 to 9, but Englewood rallied to take the lead. With a few minutes remaining to play in the regulation game Ross, Tilden guard, sank two baskets to tie the score, 24 to 24.

Then in the extra period Katich scored a field goal and Petraitis, Englewood forward, sank a free throw a few minutes before the final gun went off. Petraitis was Englewood's leading scorer, garnering six field goals and one free throw.

Roosevelt Meets Senn.

The semi-final games for the league lightweight title will be played today. Roosevelt will meet Senn at Roosevelt's gymnasium, while Phillips will play Lindblom at White City. The winners will meet for the title at Loyola university gymnasium Saturday.

U. of C. Forced to Abandon 2 Prep Events

The University of Chicago, which annually has conducted the Cook county high school wrestling and swimming championship meets, has been forced to discontinue the events, it was revealed yesterday. The abandonment of the meets was urged by the Illinois State High School Athletic association, which is headed by C. W. Whitten.

Whitten last night said his organization did not object to Chicago schools competing in meets at the Midway, but preferred that invitations should not be extended to teams outside of Chicago. He denied that the association sought to force the discontinuance of the Maroons' annual holiday basketball tournament held in December.

However, it was reported that the basketball meet was conducted last December only after a lengthy debate between Whitten and Nelson Metcalf, Maroon athletic director. They are believed to have compromised by the abandoning of Chicago's swimming and wrestling meets. Teams outside of the Chicago district were not invited to the basketball tournament. This left out Downers Grove, defending champion.

CUB PRIZE

Billy Herman, Did You Ever Hear of Galan?

(This is the third of a series of articles on rookies in training with the Cubs and White Sox in California.)

Reports from the Cubs' training camp at Avalon, Catalina Island, frequently mention the progress of August John Galan, main pretender to the second base job held the last two seasons by Billy Herman, now a holdout.

Frenchy, as Galan is called because of his French ancestry, is just the type of a player to gain popularity with Chicago fans. He does things in a big way.

Another Bachelor.

He was born in Berkeley, Cal., May 25, 1912, is 5 feet 11½ inches tall, weighs 160 pounds, has black hair and brown eyes, bats and throws right-handed, and is single.

Little was heard of Galan until 1931, though he had dabbled around in baseball as an independent for quite a spell.

He was playing for the Globe club in the Arizona league in 1931 when one day in the first game of a double-header against Nogales he hit three consecutive home runs. In the second game Galan, on his first time up, hit another homer.

Plays Every Inning.

Galan was voted the most valuable player on the San Francisco Seals in 1933. He played every inning of the club's schedule, a total of 189 games, and compiled 265 hits for a batting average of .356. His string included 22 triples, 51 doubles and nine home runs. He also stole 45 bases.

He played second base in 86 games for the Seals making 257 putouts and 273 assists, while committing 21 errors for an average of .962. He played shortstop in 103 games, making 247 putouts and 330 assists with 40 errors for an average of .935.

Gomez Gets "Better Deal"; Joins Yanks

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Vernon Gomez, New York Yankees pitcher, signed his contract today and reduced the holdouts to four.

Gomez said he had signed for one year and "it's a better one than I had last season." This was interpreted to mean that he had received what he wanted.

REDS BUY BRENNAN.

Cincinnati, O., March 6.—[Special.]—The Cincinnati National league baseball club today announced the purchase of Pitcher Don Brennan from the Newark club of the International league. Officials also announced that Harry Rice, Johnny Moore, Jim Bottomley, and Paul Derringer had reported to Manager Bob O'Farrell in Tampa, Fla.

INDIANS FALL IN LINE.

New Orleans, La., March 6.—(AP)—Capitulation of holdouts was announced in the Cleveland Indians' training camp today. Earl Averill signed and started south to join the team. Monte Pearson, the rookie pitcher, agreed to terms and will check out of California tomorrow. Willie Kamm, infielder, indicated he was tired of the wrangling and will arrive Sunday. Two infielders and one outfielder remained unsigned tonight. They are Jimmy Burnett, Harley Boss, and Dick Porter.

VAUGHAN IS HOLDOUT.

Paso Robles, Cal., March 6.—(AP)—More holdout trouble developed in the Pittsburgh Pirates' training camp today, when Arky Vaughan, shortstop, refused to sign. Club officials added, however, he will reach camp "in a day or two" and the salary question will probably be rapidly patched up.

BOLTON REFUSES TERMS.

Biloxi, Miss., March 6.—(AP)—The status of Cliff Bolton in his contract controversy with Clark Griffith came to a showdown today and the Washington catcher and pinch hitter refused to sign his 1934 contract.

SAM WEST SIGNS.

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns were greeted with the first sunshine in a week today as they held their first workout. Sam West, one of five unsigned players, came to terms and drilled with the twenty-three players in batting and fielding practice.

COLLINS JOINS CARDS.

Bradenton, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—James [Ripper] Collins, St. Louis Cardinal first baseman, arrived here today, leaving Short Stop Leo Durocher the only infielder missing from training camp. Durocher is expected soon.

MACK REGULARS WIN.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics regulars gave the Yannigans another drubbing, 6 to 3, today. A three-run eighth inning rally gave the regulars the victory. Bob Johnson, star outfielder, arrived today and signed immediately.

HARRIS WINS PENNANT.

Sarasota, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—After two days of practice, Manager Bucky Harris today claimed the American league pennant for the Boston Red Sox.

"I read where some New York betting commissioners have picked us for third place, behind the Senators and Yankees," he said. "If they think we're good enough for third, we'll win the pennant."

PHILS START DRILL.

"That was the best opening day workout I have ever watched," he said, after the drill.

DODGERS SIGN TWO.

Orlando, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Two more Brooklyn Dodger holdouts capitulated today, leaving only four unsigned. Chick Outen, second string catcher, and Pitcher Walter Beck came to terms. Still unsatisfied are Al Lopez, Hack Wilson, Ray Benge, and Jimmy Jordan.

TERRY NAMES RICHARDS.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants isn't worrying so much about the illness of Gus Mancuso, now recovering from an attack of typhoid fever. Terry already has found an acceptable substitute in Paul Richards, who has been nominated for first string duty until Mancuso returns.

HAMLIN TIGER HOPE.

Lakeland, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Manager Mickey Cochrane of the Detroit Tigers said today he regarded Luke Hamlin, former Toronto pitcher, as a "good spring pitcher" and would probably count on him in the early season. Cochrane also said he is counting on Marvin Owen to play third, although it is reported that Detroit is angling for Lyn Lary of the Yankees.

BRANDT REACHES CAMP.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Ed Brandt, southpaw pitcher, motored into the Boston Braves camp today, two days late. He said a heavy storm in the northwest delayed his journey from his Spokane, Wash., home. Although he is unsigned, Manager Bill McKechnie is confident Brandt will come to terms with President Emil Fuchs, due here next week.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

POWEL CROSLEY, owner of the Cincinnati Reds and proprietor of one of the largest broadcasting stations in the country, will not permit home games of the Reds to be put on the air. . . . Henry Schulte of Nebraska, one of the most widely known college track coaches, never competed in track at Michigan, where he was a member of Fielding Yost's point a minute football teams. . . . Jake Kline, baseball coach at Notre Dame, hit three home runs against Wabash in 1917, and on the fourth time up hammered one down the left field foul line of old Cartier field, which landed fair by eight inches. . . . Jake beat it out for his fourth homer only to have the umpire call it foul. . . . He struck out on the next pitch. . . .

Only four United States teams have won the Stanley cup, emblematic of the world's hocky championship. . . . They are the Seattle Metropolitans in 1917, the New York Rangers in 1928 and 1933, and the Boston Bruins in 1929. . . . Gene Sarazen is almost certain to compete in the British open golf tournament, but it seems equally sure that Denny Shute, defending title holder, will not go across. . . . Russ Callahan, one of the most promising football ends Wisconsin has had in years, has reentered school. . . . He was ineligible last fall and remained out of the university. . . .

The White Sox training camp had been in session a week before Manager Lew Fonseca sang Gypsy Sweetheart or did the card trick, where he makes the ace of spades stick on the ceiling. . . . Lew set his all time high at San Antonio two years ago when he did the aria nine times at five suppers, following up in each instance with the black art stunt. . . . James Offield, Chicago sportsman, caught one of the largest sailfish of the season in the Florida keys a few days ago. . . . The origin of Boilermakers, as applied to Purdue athletic teams, did not come about because Purdue is a technical school with various shops and forges. . . . It was coined by an Indiana newspaper man many years ago when he referred to members of a Purdue team "as strong as boilermakers." . . . Maybe Huey Long isn't as cordial a host as he used to be, for Billy Evans, general manager of the Cleveland Indians, plans to take the team to Pasadena for 1935 spring training. . . . He was all set to switch to California three years ago, but Huey insisted the Indians continue to show up in New Orleans each spring. . . .

The University of Chicago has awarded varsity letters to seven men whose fathers won C's before them. . . . Two more second generation letter men are in prospect—Jack Scruby, freshman football star, whose father, Horace Scruby, played for Stagg in 1910-1911, and Harmon Meigs, another freshman grid man, whose father is Babe Meigs of the famous 1905 eleven. . . . Henry Bruder of Indianapolis, one of the best freshman guards in spring practice at Illinois, has been known as Hank since childhood, but the Illini want to fasten another monicker on him to avoid confusion with the erstwhile Northwestern back. . . . Herbert Read has finished his thirteenth year of basketball coaching at Western State Normal of Kalamazoo with never a losing team. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Illinois A. C. won the national indoor A. A. U. track and field championship for the second straight time. . . . Bob Cannefax defeated Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago twice in the national three cushion billiard tournament. . . . The Dandy First bowling team took first place in the five men team event in the A. B. C. tourney. . . . It was reported Iowa was going to appoint Pat Page football coach.

Baby Ruths Hocky Team Wins Over Toronto, 5 to 1

The Toronto Maple Leaf amateur hocky club lost to the Baby Ruths, 5 to 1, before 4,500 fans at the Coliseum last night. The Ruths scored one goal in the first period, added another in the second, and three in the third. The Leafs' tally was made in the first period.

Ottawa Whips Rangers, 5-4, to Aid Hawks

New York, March 6.—(AP)—Nick Wasnie, the veteran wingman who has been around the National Hocky league long enough not to become discouraged merely because his team is out of the playoffs, led the Ottawa Senators to a surprising 5 to 4 overtime victory over the New York Rangers tonight. The defeat cost the Rangers a chance to take second place in the league's American division, leaving them still tied with the Chicago Blackhawks for that position.

CANADIENS WIN, 3-0

MONTREAL, Que., March 6.—(AP)—Led by little Aurel Joliat, the Montreal Canadiens defeated the New York Americans, 3 to 0, tonight and virtually ended the Americans' hopes of landing a berth in the National Hocky league playoffs. The victory sent the Canadiens into second place in the Canadian section, a point ahead of the idle Montreal Maroons. The Americans remained in fourth place, five points behind the Maroons, and with only five games to play. Only the first three teams in each division qualify for the playoffs.

Graboski, New Hawk, Allowed to Enter U. S.

Maj. Frederic McLaughlin was notified yesterday afternoon that Washington immigration authorities issued clearance papers applicable immediately for Jo Graboski, the Hawks' new center. Graboski and his manager, Jess Spring, who were detained in Port Huron, Mich., are expected to appear at the Stadium for this afternoon's practice.

Both McLaughlin and Manager Tommy Gorman will watch the amateur star in action and should he measure up to advance notices, Graboski will play tomorrow night in a line including Johnny Gottselig at left wing and Lolo Couture at right. The Hawks meet the Detroit Red Wings, who are leading the United States division, in tomorrow's game.

Gorman said yesterday that should the former Cobalt miner make the big league, he will attempt to sign right wing Cliff Maundrell, who was Graboski's running mate as a member of the Oshawa Majors, a Canadian amateur team.

The Hawks have had two days of drills in which a new power play calculated to produce more scoring was evolved by Manager Gorman.

Defensive maneuvers also played a big part in both practices, for it is this department that has always been the main feature of Stanley cup games.

PURDUE NAMES EDDY HONORARY CAPTAIN OF FIVE

Lafayette, Ind., March 6.—[Special.]—Ray Eddy of Columbus, whose floor work and accurate passing were important factors in Purdue winning the Big Ten basketball championship, today was unanimously elected honorary captain of the quintet.

Eddy was a member of the runner-up quintet of 1931 and the undisputed title five of 1932, but just before the start of the 1933 season suffered an accident in which he severed all of the tendons in his right forearm. He was in the hospital for weeks and it was thought his basketball career was ended, but he returned to school this year and staged a comeback.

HAWKS PICK MOFFITT.

Iowa City, Ia., March 6.—[Special.]—Howard Moffitt, Iowa City, forward, was elected honorary captain of the University of Iowa basketball team today. Moffitt, a senior, and three letter man, scored 135 points for the season. He was second high scorer on the squad. Moffitt will be graduated in June.

FAVOR HOOSIERS IN BIG TEN TRACK RECORD QUEST

Seven of the ten standing records of the Big Ten indoor track and field meet appear safe this year against the best efforts of those who will compete in the 24th annual championships at the University of Chicago Saturday. A meet without new records would in itself comprise a record, however, so all is safe.

Two marks are seriously threatened, both of them by Indiana men. Ivan Fuqua, brilliant Hoosier quarter miler, last Saturday equaled the American indoor mark of :49.3. The Big Ten record is 50 seconds, established by Edwin Russell of Michigan in 1932. Fuqua, now a senior and the defending champion in the event, will be out to put his name into the books. He will be pushed by a fast field, which includes Marsh Miller of Illinois, Sidney Dean of Iowa, and Jack Fleming of Northwestern.

Watch Hornbostel, Too.

The historians also will have their pencils poised while Charles Hornbostel of Indiana runs the half mile. Hornbostel established the present record of 1:53.9 in a brilliant performance last year. He, too, is a senior, facing his last try at this particular mark. He will have to push for himself, however, since none of his competitors has come within four seconds of that time. He is at the top of his form, having beaten the best in the country in meter length middle distances in five recent meets in New York. On the other hand, because Indiana's title is imperiled by Michigan's threat, he may have to perform in as many as four events.

List Present Records.

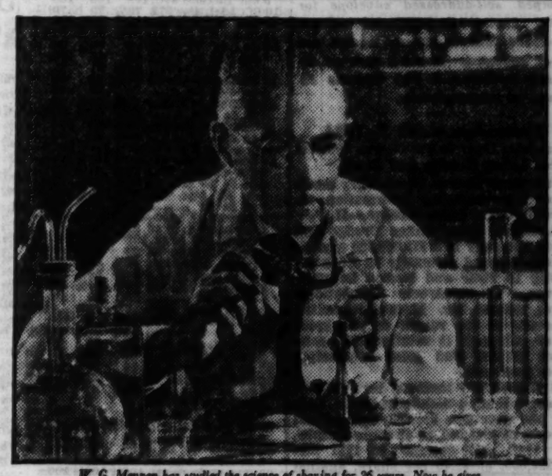
A third mark is in some danger. That is the mile relay time of 3:20.6 set by Michigan's team of Lemen, T. Ellerby, De Baker and Allen last year. Again Indiana is the chief threat. The Hoosier foursome of Bicking, Harpold, Hornbostel and Fuqua won the National A. A. U. 1,600 meter relay in 3:21.4 and last week set a new armory record for the one mile distance against Illinois with a time of 3:21.6.

Present records:
60 YARD DASH—:06.2, Simpson, Ohio State, 1929 and 1930; Timm, Illinois, 1929; Tolan, Michigan, 1931; Renwick, Michigan, 1932; Bennett, Ohio State, 1933.
70 YARD HIGH HURDLES—:08.5, Sentman, Illinois, 1930.
440 YARD DASH—:50, Russell, Michigan, 1932.
880 YARD RUN—1:53.9, Hornbostel, Indiana, 1933.
ONE MILE RUN—4:12.5, Brocksmith, Indiana, 1932.
TWO MILE RUN—9:18.4, Brocksmith, Indiana, 1932.
ONE MILE RELAY—3:20.6, Michigan [Lemen, T. Ellerby, De Baker, Allen], 1933.
SHOT PUT—48 feet 9½ inches, Mann, Minnesota, 1933.
POLE VAULT—13 feet 10 inches, Lennington, Illinois, 1933.
HIGH JUMP—6 feet 5 inches, McGinnis, Wisconsin, 1927.

200 IN CENTRAL MEET

Notre Dame, Ind., March 6.—[Special.]—More than 200 athletes, from twelve colleges and six high schools, were entered in the eighth annual Central Intercollegiate conference indoor track meet when entries closed today.

Preliminaries in all but three events will be held at 7 o'clock Friday night, with finals Saturday afternoon. There will be no preliminaries Friday in the two mile run, pole vault, and high jump. The pole vault will start at 11:30 Saturday morning.



W. G. Mennen has studied the science of shaving for 26 years. Now he gives you the first scientific answer to the question that is puzzling most shavers

LATHER OR BRUSHLESS

WHICH FOR YOU?

LET ME GUIDE YOU, I MAKE BOTH

W. G. Mennen

"I've been studying shaving for 26 years and I am convinced that one type of shave cannot suit everybody. Whether you should use Lather or Brushless depends on your shaving habits, your type of beard and—most important—your type of skin.

"That's why I make both. Both give the "wilted whisker" shave. Both conquer the stubbornest stubble—so that the blade sails thru, cuts clean, without a pull.

"But only your skin can decide which is better for YOU—Lather or Brushless.

"If you have an oily skin—I recommend Mennen Lather Shave. You need that lather—to flush out your over-active pores. Mennen Lather loosens imbedded grease deposits. Leaves your face healthier!

"If you have a dry skin—I recommend Mennen Brushless Shave. It's a cream—not a grease—containing special, fine ingredients good for dry, thin, tender skins.

"If you have a normal skin then take your choice! Then it's a question of convenience—do you like to use a brush or not?

MENNEN

LATHER SHAVE — brushless SHAVE

New York, March 6.—Bond prices were generally higher on the stock exchange today. Most of the long term United States government issues closed higher, finishing up 15-32ds to down 2-32ds point on the belief that the new treasury financing to be announced tomorrow will not be as large as had been expected. Domestic corporation bonds and foreign loans were irregular by higher in moderately active dealings.

Alleghany Issues Slump.

Heavy selling of Alleghany corporation bonds featured the domestic corporation list. These issues opened 3⅜ to 8¼ points below the previous day's close on the disclosure of the corporation's bank loan status. At the close of business the market for these issues was off 2⅝ to 5⅜ points.

As a group, the domestic utility and railroad issues did better than industrial bonds. Fluctuations in the more active issues were chiefly confined to narrow ranges. A handful of issues entered new high ground for the year on advances of fractions to a point or two.

Belgian Bonds Active.

Kingdom of Belgium loans showed unexpected activity in the foreign list, which was otherwise quiet. The Belgian issues were marked up 1⅛ to 1⅜ points. French government and municipal loans were unchanged to up a point in light trading, while Dutch East Indies and United Kingdom bonds showed fractional price variations. Commonwealth of Austria obligations were firm in active dealings. The various German issues were generally higher on the day. Latin American bonds were very dull.

On the curb exchange, domestic bonds moved irregularly higher and foreign loans generally lower.

NEW ISSUE.

Halsey, Stuart & Co. and Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. are offering $500,000 City and County of Denver, Colo., 3.65 per cent bonds, due $100,000 annually March 1, 1950, to 1954, inclusive.

HOLC BONDS.

Great Lakes Dredge and Dock.

Answer: Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company is a $13,000,000 organization engaged primarily in work relating to river and harbor improvements. It constructs foundations, piers, bridges, etc. Most of its activities are in the region of the great lakes, although it obtains some new York harbor and some Mississippi river contracts.

The company incurred its first loss in more than a decade in 1933. Loss for the year was $46,000, against net income of $249,000, or 45 cents a share, in 1932. Net income in 1931 was $1,326,000, or $2.40 per share, against net of $2,318,000, or $4.01 per share, for 1930.

At the close of 1933 current assets, including cash and United States government bonds of about $3,500,000, totaled $4,687,000 and current liabilities were $394,000. Included as noncurrent assets were municipal investments carried at $641,000 and 8,290 shares of its own stock carried at $75,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization, excluding treasury stock, consists of 643,830 shares of no par stock. The stock pays 25 cents a quarter. It is medium grade.

New York Central.

Investors' Guide: What can you tell me about New York Central equipment trust bonds?—R. H. K.

Answer: This road, during normal periods, has covered its charges at least twice each year. The severe decline in traffic, together with constant overhead of a plant designed for a heavy traffic load, greatly impaired the company's earning power. Recent sharp upturn in industry, however, made a satisfactory reflection in earnings.

In 1933 91 per cent of charges was earned. The equipment trust issues, senior to all other obligations of the road, rank as one of the highest grade of railroad bonds obtainable. They are sound.

Listed Securities.

Investors' Guide: Does the listing on a stock exchange denote a superior security? In other words, is an unlisted security as good as a listed one? —Miss K. N.

Answer: Mere listing of a security does not give it any elements that were not formerly present. It merely indicates that the security probably has a wider market than an unlisted security, and that the issuers have agreed to abide by the rules of the exchange.

DEMAND ROCK ISLAND RY. PAY BONDS IN GOLD

Holders Sue for Old Dollar Parity.

General mortgage bondholders of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, now operating in bankruptcy, yesterday made formal demand in the United States District court here that their claims be recognized as payable in gold dollars of the weight and fineness existing prior to the devaluation proclaimed by President Roosevelt. The case may prove to be the first important test of the right of creditors holding gold contracts to demand payment in gold.

The demand was made by attorneys for the Bankers Trust company of New York, which is trustee under the bond issue totaling $99,981,000. The trustee also demanded that the general mortgage bonds be recognized as a prior lien on the railroad's properties ahead of all other creditors, including the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which has advanced the road $13,956,197. The RFC loan is secured by collateral consisting mostly of subsidiary securities.

U. S. Prosecutor Opposes Demands.

Both demands of the railroad bondholders were opposed by Leo J. Hassenauer, first assistant United States district attorney, representing the RFC.

The petition filed by the Bankers' Trust specified that the bonds be recognized as "payable in gold coin of standard and finess, prevailing Jan. 1, 1898." It was in that year that the present gold standard act was passed. It remained unamended until last year.

Mr. Hassenauer stated that the Rock Island case, particularly with reference to the gold payment demand, may become a test in view of the fact that other railroads with "gold" obligations outstanding have filed voluntary bankruptcy proceedings without actual adjudication in bankruptcy.

RFC Intervenes in Case.

When the petition was filed yesterday the RFC, through Mr. Hassenauer, also sought to intervene in the case and was permitted to do so by Judge Patrick T. Stone.

Whether the bondholders would push to the gold payment demand in time to make a test case out of it was a matter of some doubt. They reserved their right to do so for the time being "without prejudice" pending a final determination by the court.

In opposing the bondholders' contentions the RFC counsel said that gold payment of the bonds in old par dollars would increase the indebtedness of the railroad beyond what really is due to the bondholders in present lawful money. He further pointed out that recognition of the bonds as a prior lien would adversely affect the RFC, which attempted to succor the property and keep it out of bankruptcy.

Two Other Notable Cases.

Two other cases in which the right of creditors to demand payment in gold have received wide attention. Last month Common Pleas Judge John R. King of Columbus, O., ruled that the gold embargo invoked by President Roosevelt did not invalidate contracts calling for gold payment.

The ruling was given in a foreclosure action brought by the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States against Theodore and Edna Freda of Columbus. Under the ruling payment would call for 65 per cent more on the basis of the present dollar since its value has been cut to 59.06 cents in terms of the former dollar.

The British house of lords, sitting as Britain's highest court, upheld the right of an English security holder of a Belgian utility company to demand payment of principal and interest in gold pounds rather than paper pounds. Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, however, ruled that the decision did not apply to United Kingdom gold bonds issued in New York which, he said, were governed by American law.

COTTON CONTROL BILL GETS HOUSE RIGHT OF WAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—The Bankhead cotton control bill, involving far reaching theories of compulsory government regulation of farm production, today was granted legislative right of way in the house of representatives.

Under a special rule approved by majority leadership the measure will be taken up Thursday. Debate will be limited to eight hours but the general rules of the house will govern its consideration.

Pure Oil Adds $811,066 to Surplus in '33

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Although encountering heavy losses during the first half of 1933, the improvement in business in the second half of the year enabled the Pure Oil company to earn sufficient money to be able to transfer $811,086 to earned surplus, according to Henry M. Dawes, president, in his annual report to stockholders. Of this amount $355,883 consisted of discount on gold notes purchased for the sinking fund. The amount transferred to earned surplus in 1932 was $642,386.

HENRY M. DAWES. [Harris-Ewing Photo]

During 1933 dividends were partially omitted on the preferred stock so that the cumulative dividends unpaid to and including Jan. 1, 1934, totaled $1,929,267. Profits applicable to interest charges on the gold notes and to depreciation and depletion reserves were $9,819,694. Interest and discount on gold notes stood at $2,063,928 and depreciation and depletion accounted for $7,108,120 of the net profits.

Predicts Speedy Recovery.

Mr. Dawes discussed problems affecting the oil industry and expressed the opinion that with the resumption of normal conditions and reasonable prices, which seem imminent, the industry should be one of the first to respond to improved affairs.

Speaking of experimentation carried on in all industries last year and the many novel and some radical expedients suggested, Mr. Dawes said the clear intent of those who have given thought to the formulation of policies for the oil business has been to preserve private initiative to the greatest extent possible and to invoke governmental help only when its peculiar conditions require it.

He touched on the technical problems incident to taking oil from the ground and said that regulation of the flow of commerce between the states is a recognized function of the federal government.

"It may reasonably be assumed that the legal and physical problems involved can be met, but the best interests of the public as well as those engaged in the business require that it should be carried on in a way which will not do violence to the traditions of American business," Mr. Dawes said.

Cites Government Burden.

He spoke of the increasing government burdens put on industry in general and oil in particular. As an indication of this he said that the Pure Oil company expends approximately $300,000 annually for the preparation of statements, questionnaires, and various other forms required by state and federal governments and trade associations. He estimated that 19,000 of these have to be prepared every year.

FEBRUARY STEEL OUTPUT HIGHEST SINCE NOVEMBER

New York, March 6.—Steel production rose last month to the highest level since last September, according to a tabulation issued today by the American Iron and Steel Institute. The output of all American companies was estimated at 2,224,698 tons, or more than twice the production reported in the corresponding month of last year.

Last month's output compared with 1,996,897 tons in January, 1,819,648 tons in December, and 1,540,882 tons in November. It was the third consecutive gain in monthly production. For the first two months of this year, production totaled 4,221,595 tons, against 2,116,942 tons in the corresponding period of last year. The gains have resulted from increased demands from automobile manufacturers, railroad companies, and from a wide variety of smaller consuming groups.

The gain since November now amounts to 44 per cent, and further expansion in operations is expected before summer. Last month's output averaged 42.78 per cent of capacity, compared with 34.13 per cent in January, 33.48 per cent in December, and 20.83 per cent in February, 1933. The average rate for 1933 was 33.95 per cent. At the peak of last summer's boom, in July, the rate was 58.95 per cent.

ROADS PUT COST OF 6 HOUR DAY AT 600 MILLIONS

Washington, D. C., March 6.—(AP)—An estimate that the Black bill for a six hour day for railroad workers would increase rail operating expenses by $600,000,000 a year was made today before the senate interstate commerce committee.

Opposing the measure, J. Carter Fort, solicitor of the Association of Railway Executives, contended such a working day without a reduction in wages would threaten many of the larger lines with bankruptcy.

"If the six hour day with 8 hours pay," he said, "had been in effect in 1932, the result would have been that the railroads as a whole would have failed by a large amount to earn their actual expenses without any regard for interest charges or other returns on investment. It would curtail railroad purchasing, and the railroads are ordinarily the largest purchasers from the heavy industries in which the unemployment situation is most acute."

NEW SECURITY DEALERS' GROUP NAMES OFFICERS

Temporary officers of the Chicago Security Dealers association were elected at a meeting held yesterday in the City National Bank building.

Clyde Andrews of Max McGraw & Co. was selected president; Birger Osland of Birger Osland & Co., Inc., vice president; Fred Darch of Webber, Darch & Vigo, treasurer, and A. Wayne Clemens of the law firm of Newby, Rathburn & Burditt, secretary.

Thirty-one firms were represented at yesterday's meeting, which was the second held so far by the new organization. The purpose of the association is "to promote uniform practices in connection with the sale and underwriting of securities and to maintain a high standard of business conduct toward the investing public as well as between it members."

John R. Thompson Board Takes No Dividend Action

Directors of the John R. Thompson company adjourned their meeting yesterday until March 19 without taking action on the company's dividend. The last regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share was declared by directors Jan. 5, 1934. At that time John R. Thompson Jr., president, stated the payment would be made from earned surplus. The company operated at a loss of $185,610 in 1933.

FORD FOR RECOVERY PLAN; SAYS JOBS WILL CREATE NEW MARKETS

[Copyright: 1934; By the Associated Press.]

Fort Myers, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Henry Ford today voiced agreement with President Roosevelt's recovery program and, commenting on the President's advice to industry, said "the only way to hire more men is to create more markets."

"The men with new jobs will furnish new markets," said Ford.

"The difficulty, as far as industry is concerned, is finding a place to employ the men before the market exists to make their employment profitable.

"More men will manufacture more goods and industry must find a market for their products or the jobs will eat up the industry.

"I notice that the President left out transportation and injected banking into his survey of the situation. That is putting the cart before the horse. The three principal arts are agriculture, industry, and transportation. Of recent years, men have tried to make money an art. Money has been overplayed as a factor in recovery. During the last few years thousands of persons thought they could live off of money—needed only money to make more money—and create wealth by the manipulation of finance. They can't do it. They must get back to actual and useful production.

"For this reason it is important that no one hinders the back to land movement."

Speaking of the automobile industry, Mr. Ford said: "It never looked better than it does today."

UNIT OF MIDDLE WEST SUSTAINS $35,289 DEFICIT

Arkansas-Missouri Power company, controled by Inland Power and Light corporation, a unit of the Middle West Utilities system, reported yesterday for 1933 a deficit of $52,645, compared with a net income of $19,027 in 1932. Operations of its one subsidiary, the East Missouri Power company, resulted in net income, after preferred dividends, of $17,356. Accordingly, on a consolidated income basis, deficit of the parent company was reduced to $35,289 compared with a consolidated net income of $19,209 for 1932.

Final hearing on the order appointing receivers for the company will be held some time in March before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, according to James Hill Jr., president.

The Public Works administration has granted the application of Kennett, Mo., for a loan of $150,000 for the construction of a municipal plant. Mr. Hill said. "The company," he added, "is taking aggressive steps to protect its investment in this city."

PRESIDENTIAL TARIFF CONTROL IS URGED HERE

Congress was urged to give the President power to negotiate trade agreements with other nations in a communication sent to Washington yesterday by the executive committees of the foreign credit division of the Chicago Association of Credit Men and the Export Managers Club of Chicago. It was stated the two groups represent approximately 300 leading Chicago and midwest manufacturing exporters.

The message, which was addressed to Speaker Rainey, Vice President Garner and Senators Lewis and Dieterich, read in part:

"It is the belief of the committees that many new trade agreements will have to be consummated with foreign countries and that some may have to follow in rapid succession; and that delay in accomplishing this end may be detrimental to the building up of our foreign trade which is so vital to our recovery movement."

PWA Markets Bonds of Cities at Premiums

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—The Public Works administration sold at a premium today four blocks of municipal bonds of a total par value of $737,000. This was the first successful operation of the policy by which municipal bonds bought to provide funds for local projects will be gradually fed into the general market. PWA has contracted to purchase upwards of $500,000,000 of such securities.

The bonds sold today to the highest bidders brought a total price of $757,050. Bids were rejected on one $100,000 block of bonds for which a premium price was not offered.

When PWA purchased bonds to aid local bodies in financing their projects it reserved the right to sell at any time the securities it bought. The national recovery act authorized the sale of these securities and provided that all funds received by PWA through the sale revert to the treasury. The money realized by today's sale will be so utilized.

Some Whole Issues Taken.

PWA bid par and accrued interest for bonds of public bodies with interest rates at 4 per cent. Ordinarily they are acquired in small lots with actual purchase consummated and funds transferred as needed to continue construction work on nonfederal projects. In a few instances, however, PWA has taken or will take over entire issues at one time.

"Today's sale establishes the broader conception of the public works theory of aiding employment to speed recovery," said Secretary Ickes. "PWA bought these municipal bonds when private finance failed to function for qualified public works. Today's bids show that in the instances involved private sources are now awake and willing to assume their proper function.

Government Made Profit.

"Therefore, the investment was returned to the regular market and by the procedure followed the government secured the national benefits of the employment involved and also sold the bonds it bought for more than it paid for them."

The list of bonds sold follows: $125,000 Cedar Rapids, Ia., 4 per cent sewer bonds, due Jan. 1, 1937-'41; sale price, $127,839; $250,000 Erie county, N. Y., 4 per cent road and bridge bonds, due Oct. 15, 1935-'36; sale price, $250,010; $200,000 Lynchburg, Va., 4 per cent water supply bonds, due Nov. 1, 1936-'50; sale price, $203,530; $162,000 Richmond county, Ga., 4½ per cent school bonds, due Jan. 1, 1935-'60; sale price, $175,671.19.

An issue of $100,000 Bel Air, Md., 4 per cent sewer bonds, due Oct. 15, 1934-'50; bids rejected. Of the 31 bids received, 29 were at premiums.

Chicago Board of Trade Suspends Livermore

Jesse L. Livermore, grain and stock speculator whose spectacular operations netted him millions of dollars during recent years, was yesterday suspended from membership on the Chicago Board of Trade under the provisions of rule 119, pertaining to the failure of a member to meet obligations. While nothing is known as to his financial obligations in Chicago he filed a petition in bankruptcy in New York Monday.

LOANS BY RFC RISE TO NEARLY FIVE BILLIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—Approximately a quarter of a billion dollars in federal cash was paid out by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation during February, the RFC announced today.

Since it was established the RFC has cost the government 4 billion 736 million dollars in easy money of which only 1 billion 198 million dollars has been repaid thus far, the report showed. Repayments during February were 87 millions.

The largest part of the quarter of a billion which the RFC paid out during February went to banks. Cash loans to banks during the month amounted to almost 39 million dollars, bringing the total to 1 billion 521 million dollars.

More Bank Stock Purchased.

The RFC now has authorized purchases of preferred stock, capital notes and debentures totaling $1,018,513,850 in 6,191 banks, or about 44 per cent of the unrestricted institutions of the country, and $684,875,000 in loans to 2,104 closed banks to speed the payment of dividends of depositors, Jesse H. Jones, chairman, announced. Of this great total of $1,702,000,000 allotted, $476,630,000 already actually has been advanced for purchase of the stock and other capital securities of 1,898 banks and $449,875,000 to the closed banks, leaving approximately $777,000,000 to be disbursed. Mr. Jones said it was hoped to accomplish this within the next sixty days.

Farm Stabilizers Borrow.

Another important cost to the RFC during the month was the Commodity Credit corporation, through which the government is seeking to stabilize farm prices, principally those of cotton and corn. The commodity subdivision of the RFC drew 28 millions from the RFC during the month, making its total cost thus far 160 million dollars.

One of the largest items in the RFC's account during February was one over which it has no control. The Federal Emergency Relief administration, which calls on the RFC for its funds, drew 46 million dollars during the month of February for relief expenses.

The RFC is seeking to give aid to industry in the form of direct loans through community mortgage companies organized by the industries, but only a relatively few have been made.

FINDS PRESIDENT RIGHT IN NAMING AGENCIES OF NRA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—The authority of the President to create corporate agencies to act for and with him in carrying out the purposes of the national recovery act, and the validity of their status and power to act pursuant to his order and direction to that end, are sustained by the attorney general in an opinion made public today.

Requested by Secretary Ickes early in his controversy with Controler General McCarl over the right of the Federal Emergency Housing corporation to proceed with its program without prior approval by the controler general of its proposals and contracts, the opinion handed down by Mr. Cummings upholds at almost every point the contentions of the public works administrator as against those advanced by Mr. McCarl.

In regard to the original issue, however, Mr. Ickes already has established an arrangement with Mr. McCarl under which activities have been resumed in housing and slum clearance projects, and during the satisfactory operation of which the issue as between himself and the controler general has been suspended, if not definitly adjusted.

The letter of Mr. Cummings sustains on all but one point the contentions advanced by Mr. Ickes, and on the major issue involved flatly denies the right asserted by Mr. McCarl to review and approve options acquired and sums to be expended for lands sought as sites for low cost housing and slum clearance projects.

New Tax Bill Gets Approval of President

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—The 258 million dollar tax bill now pending before congress meets the revenue requirements laid down by President Roosevelt, said Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. before the senate finance committee today. Approving the bill as it stands "with the exception of some minor matters," Secretary Morgenthau said taxpayers cannot explain against the bill because it will merely effect a more equitable distribution of the tax burden.

Treasury experts tonight were studying the revenue which might be raised through imposition of a general manufacturers' sales tax as the result of inquiries by Senator David Reed [Rep., Pa.] and Senator William G. McAdoo [Dem., Cal.]. The latter requested an estimate on sales tax revenues from Prof. Roswell Magill, treasury tax expert, who appeared with Morgenthau.

Roosevelt Dislikes Sales Tax.

Thus far, Prof. Magill explained in response to inquiries by the two senators, the treasury has given no attention to a sales tax. President Roosevelt has indicated a distaste for it and has not asked for any additional taxes at this session of congress.

"I believe the bill will yield the additional revenue which the President desires," Secretary Morgenthau said, "primarily by the elimination of the serious loopholes which our experience has shown to exist in the present income tax law. No taxpayer can legitimately complain of these changes, since they result in a more equitable distribution of the tax burden over those persons who are best able to sustain it.

"The income tax rate structure is considerably simplified, and the yield increased by heavier impositions upon dividend and partially tax exempt income, with some reduction in the taxes applicable to salaried incomes in the lower brackets."

Recalls Roosevelt Message.

He pointed out that the President in his budget message had asked that 150 million dollars be added to the annual revenues by tightening of the income tax. The present bill has been estimated to increase the yield 258 million dollars, but Secretary Morgenthau did not specifically concur in this estimate. Neither did he indicate the minor matters in which he said the treasury did not agree with the bill as drafted. He said merely that the treasury would discuss these questions later.

To aid taxpayers in making out their returns Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering today explained that worthless bank stock and bank deposits which closed banks have said they cannot pay out may be deducted as losses from gross income.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—Trading in United States government bonds in the over-the-counter market, where most of such dealing is done, is now on a larger scale than in the wartime markets, according to a statement made today by C. J. Devine, president of C. J. Devine & Co., Inc., a firm specializing in United States government securities. He said the expansion of trading was due directly to the enormous accumulation of cash reserves and to the large financial operations of the government.

"Estimates place the volume of trading in government issues in 1933 between 40 and 50 billion dollars," he said. "This was about twice the average amount of governmental bonds outstanding. Based on operations during the first six months of 1933, and the announced huge financial program of the government, the volume this year is expected to greatly exceed that amount."

The firm has opened an office in Chicago at 135 South La Salle street under the direction of James W. Day. The unit here is the fifth in a coast-to-coast chain.

ROOSEVELT AID ASSAILS STOCK CONTROL BILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 6.—[Special.]—The deterring hand of the administration fell heavily today in what may prove to be a death blow for pending drastic legislation to bring the nation's stock markets under federal control.

SEN. FLETCHER. [Photograms.]

Appearing before the house interstate commerce committee, Assistant Secretary of Commerce John Dickinson, foremost administration authority on exchange regulation, literally riddled the stringent Fletcher-Rayburn bill with a series of pointed objections not only to its specific provisions but to its underlying theory as well.

Headed Exchange Inquiry.

It was Dickinson who headed the special inter-departmental committee created by President Roosevelt to investigate the need for governmental regulation of the stock markets and to draft recommendations looking to the formation of control legislation. As head of that committee, he is regarded as the official administration spokesman on matters pertaining to exchange regulation and his vehement criticism of the proposed Fletcher-Rayburn bill appeared to reflect the disapproval of the White House as far as that measure is concerned.

Coupled with yesterday's statement by Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.] to the effect that stock exchange legislation may be set aside for this session of congress, Dickinson's testimony had the effect of casting a shadow of serious doubt over prospects for the enactment of such legislation in the immediate future. Indications were that unless the Fletcher-Rayburn measure is revised in a number of important particulars the administration will act to prevent its passage.

Fletcher Insists on Control.

At the same time, however, Senator Duncan U. Fletcher [Dem., Fla.], one of the ostensible authors of the pending measure, is insisting that exchange control legislation in some form will be passed at the present session, admitting his readiness to revise the bill now being considered by the senate banking and currency committee.

While the bill bears the name of Senator Fletcher jointly with that of Chairman Sam Rayburn [Dem., Tex.], of the house interstate commerce committee, it is understood to have been drafted by a group of "young liberals" associated with various agencies of the administration. The three most prominently mentioned as co-authors of the measure are Thomas Corcoran, an attorney for the RFC, Benjamin Cohen, another government lawyer, and Ferdinand Pecora, special counsel for the senate banking committee during its investigation of stock market practices. Dickinson told the committee today that he was not consulted during the bill's preparation.

Favors Supervision Only.

It was this measure which he dissected and condemned piecemeal before the house committee today. He found it far too drastic in theory, asserting that its provisions would subject the exchanges to arbitrary governmental control whereas the guiding principle behind any such legislation should be to establish mere federal supervision over a system of self-government by the stock marts.

The administration, he indicated, feels that conditions at the present time reflect the need for some gov-

Early Attempt to Bull Prices Fails.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—Speculative activity ebbed to the lowest level in weeks on the New York Stock exchange today as sales for the entire five hours dropped to only 810,000 shares. Prices drifted toward lower levels generally, but a few of the leaders mustered enough momentum to get as much as a point from their starting points.

Better business news and indications that Democratic leaders are split over the exchange regulatory bill which has been blamed for the present stalemate now in its third week, were offset by fresh concern over the labor situation in automotive centers.

Trading was almost wholly of professional origin as it has been since the so-called new year's advance was reversed in February. Low priced issues were turned over in considerable volume at times.

Bullish Attempts Abandoned.

The market made a show of firmness in the early dealings and constructive forces were encouraged to try for a rally by boosting Auburn Auto and a scattering of other so-called volatile issues, but they were unable to attract any kind of a following and the attempt was soon abandoned. Thereafter the list drifted idly in a narrow rut with the ticker loafing whole minutes between sales. Brokers expressed the opinion that not much activity could be expected until some of the besetting uncertainties are cleared up.

Published reports that the Van Sweringen railroad pyramid resting on the Alleghany corporation had passed into bankers' hands as a result of a default of bank loans brought liquidation into Alleghany causing a depreciation of about 25 per cent in the issue's price. Selling in the rest of the railroad group, however, was no more pronounced than elsewhere in the list.

Gold and Silver Stocks Ease.

Gold stocks were a little lower and the silvers receded with the price of the metal. Tobaccos were hurt by publication of American Tobacco earnings, which showed that the dividend had not been covered. American Tobacco common sold off two points.

Farm implement issues were easy with wheat and cotton. Case gave up more than 2 points. Montgomery Ward, so much in the spotlight the latter part of last week, slid down with the rest.

Most old line leaders were in a sulky mood. American Can did not make its debut on the tape until around 2 o'clock. The finish found it nearly a point lower. American Telephone held unchanged on the few sales recorded, and Steel and Westinghouse were only fractionally lower at the close.

In the automobile group General Motors dropped more than a point. Most of the selling in the big time group leaders were blamed on the strike situation. Chrysler was under pressure at times but was off only fractionally at the close.

TAYLOR MAY QUIT U. S. BANK JOB FOR PRIVATE POSITION

Slated for High Post with Wisconsin National.

William Taylor, chief national bank examiner in the Chicago district, will be named executive vice president of the First Wisconsin National Bank of Milwaukee in the next few days, according to reports here yesterday. Formal announcement of Mr. Taylor's election is expected to be made by Walter Kasten, president of the First Wisconsin.

Wisconsin Bankshares corporation, which controls a score of banks through the state, is the controling interest in First Wisconsin, the largest bank in the state. Its deposits at the close of last year were approximately $123,000,000.

Here for Past Year.

Mr. Taylor has been chief national bank examiner here for the last year prior to which he held the same job in the Cleveland reserve district. He was brought here in the transfer which sent Alfred P. Leyburn, former chief examiner here, to the Cleveland district. Leyburn's transfer was regarded at the time as a political gesture to placate middle western politicians who objected to the strict examinations which were being given by the Chicago examiner's office.

Before being named chief examiner in the Cleveland district, Taylor served as a field examiner in the Chicago district. He has rounded out 10 years as a bank examiner, part of which were spent with the state department in Iowa where he began his career.

May Sell Stock to RFC.

News of Taylor's selection was accompanied by reports that the Milwaukee bank will shortly announce the sale of a block of preferred stock or debentures to the Reconstruction Finance corporation thus following the example set by several large Chicago and New York banks. The bank's present capital is $10,000,000.

Choice of a successor to Taylor as chief examiner here is expected to be made in Washington soon by Controler J. F. T. O'Connor. Several of the Chicago field force are eligible for promotion, it is learned. Traditionally the posts have not been regarded as political jobs and it is expected that one of the Chicago field force or a chief examiner from another district will get the position unless precedent is upset. The Chicago post is one of the most important of the 12 districts in the country.

PUBLIC SERVICE REVISES COSTS IN RATE HEARING

The Public Service company of Northern Illinois yesterday submitted revised operating cost figures for 1933, reducing the aggregate sum by $1,000,000, in the electricity rate reduction hearing before the Illinois Commerce commission. The revised figures increase the 1933 net income earnings by the same amount.

The company is fighting a citation order by the commerce commission to reduce its present electricity rate. Originally it introduced financial figures in support of the existing charges in the 6,000 square miles of area served around Chicago. A number of the operating cost items submitted for 1933 and 1934 were attacked as excessive by Harry R. Booth, counsel for the commission.

In its revision the company reduced its allotments for 1933 taxes for state and local purposes by $600,000. The result of all operating cost cuts brought up the 1933 net income total of the utility to $9,000,000 in place of its previous figure of approximately $8,000,000. The next hearing before the commission takes place tomorrow.

SHARP EARNINGS GAINS SHOWN BY GOLD CONCERNS

Three gold mining companies yesterday revealed sharp gains in earnings, one for last year and the other two for February.

Homestake Mining company reported net profit for 1933, after taxes, depreciation, and depletion of $5,007,743, equal to $19.94 a share, compared with $2,495,789, or $9.94 a share, in 1932.

Gross earnings of Pioneer Gold Mines of British Columbia, Ltd., for February, were $230,200, and profit after expenses but before depreciation, depletion, and taxes, was $166,200. In the preceding month gross was $240,600 and profit $171,600.

Last month's profit of Alaska Juneau Gold Mining company, including a premium of $145,250, but before taxes, depreciation, and depletion, amounted to $193,950. At the old price of $20.67 per ounce for gold the profit was $48,700, compared with $72,700 for February, 1933.

U. S. GETS 506 MILLION IN GOLD SINCE FEB. 1; DOLLAR IS IRREGULAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—Further gold imports of $14,763,700, all of which represented gains in the monetary gold stocks of the country, were reported today by the New York Federal Reserve bank. This brought the total of officially reported gold imports since Feb. 1 to $506,982,500 and the total net gain in monetary gold stocks, exclusive of newly mined gold, in the period to $491,549,800.

Edging away slightly from its new parity figure the American dollar moved up to an indicated gold worth of 59.54 cents today as the French franc fell to 6.58 cents. Yesterday's price on the franc was 6.585 and the indicated gold worth of the dollar was 59.49 cents. Against the British pound, however, the dollar gave ground slightly with sterling moving up three-quarters of a cent to $5.07¾.

A slightly larger amount of gold was estimated to have been purchased in the London open market. Some $3,626,125 was bought at a price equivalent to $34.74 a fine ounce, up 4 pence for the day. A large portion of the gold purchased is going into hoarding, it was reported in London.

UTILITY LEADER SCORES FEDERAL LENDING POLICY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 6.—Thomas N. McCarter, president of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, in the annual report mailed today attacked the government's policy of advancing money "upon the easiest terms" to competitive municipal undertakings "now served adequately and under strict regulation." He said that the utility companies are large federal taxpayers and that if the policy of lending money to municipal competitors is continued the utilities will be compelled "to furnish the means, in part, at least, for their own destruction."

"The year that has passed," Mr. McCarter said, "has been full of difficulties for those who are engaged in the actual operation of public utilities. The depression and the improper management of certain holding companies have combined to create an unfair impression in the public mind as to all utilities.

Power Firms Targets.

"The resultant agitation has taken various different forms, but has mainly been directed at the light and power industry because in the past it has been reasonably prosperous. An impression has been created that all such utilities should share in the depression by a wholesale reduction of rates, no matter what the effect thereof would be upon their economic structure or upon their ability adequately to serve the public in the future.

"Such a doctrine negatives the law of the land, but at all times such companies under proper regulation are entitled to earn a reasonable return upon the value of the property devoted to the public use. It ignores the frequent reduction in rates that have been made in recent years, many of them entirely voluntary.

Ignore Increased Costs.

"It is unmindful of the increased cost of operation to which these companies have been subjected by the increase of wages, the lessening of the hours of work, and the greater cost of commodities. It should be, and so far as I know, it is the aim of every enlightened public utility operator to reduce rates as rapidly as is consistent with sound finance."

The report shows a decline of 0.5 per cent in sales of electricity, a drop of 6.23 per cent in gas sales, and a reduction of 10.31 per cent in the number of passengers carried by transit subsidiaries. Expenditures for additions were $3,752,429, and retirements of property were $4,191,703, leaving a shrinkage of $439,274 in capital account, the first on record for the company.

MAYER ASSAILS STOCKYARD CODE AS UNECONOMIC

Washington, D. C., March 6.—(AP)—Opponents of a proposed stockyards code wheeled their heaviest artillery into line today for a final assault on virtually all its provisions, advanced by its proponents as a means of bettering marketing conditions for live stock producers.

Oscar G. Mayer of Madison, Wis., a packer, asserted the proposed code would "throw a set of wasteful and uneconomic restrictions around direct selling of live stock" which the stockyards operators themselves openly decline to apply to their own operations.

"The public stockyards operators," he charged, "are presuming to use their code to bring probably 300 country packers, large and small, 5,000 country shippers, and 2,000,000 direct selling farmers under their domination. This raises the interesting question as to how far afield a group may go in an effort to bring others under its domination."

At the conclusion of a four day hearing officials of the Agricultural Adjustment administration had heard direct marketing condemned as a price depressant and praised as a boon to hog raisers. Direct buying, supervision of private yards, accessibility of packers' books, and uniform grading were the chief bones of contention.

New Weekly Peak Seen in Freight Car Loadings

New York, March 6.—(AP)—Wall street expects that freight car loadings for the week ended March 3, to be published on Friday, will establish a new weekly peak so far this year. Preliminary indications are that the total for all roads was about 599,000 cars, against 573,371 in the preceding week, which stands as high since the start of the year.

Board of Trade Chiefs Postpone Weekly Meeting

Inability to secure a quorum of 14 members prevented Chicago Board of Trade officials from holding their weekly meeting yesterday afternoon. A large number of directors are out of town. This is the first time in recent years it has been necessary to postpone a regular meeting.

Stockholders Re-elect Wahl Officials, Directors

Officers and directors of the Wahl company were reëlected at the annual meeting yesterday. Directors took no action on the company's dividend. The last payment on preferred stock was made Jan. 2, 1930, and there has been no payment on the common since 1924.

France Raises Short Term Bond Rate to 3 Per Cent

PARIS, March 6.—(AP)—The French treasury, having difficulty raising money, was forced to increase its interest rate today by ½ per cent on short term bonds. The new rate is 3 per cent for three months.

ROOSEVELT AID FIGHTS RULE OF STOCK EXCHANGE

Calls U.S. Control Bill Far Too Drastic.

ernmental check on exchange operations in order to protect the public and to prevent speculative fluctuations in securities values. But according to Dickinson the federal government should act in a supervisory rather than a regulatory capacity.

With particular aggressiveness he attacked the bill's arbitrary 60 per cent margin requirement, asserting that its operation would precipitate disaster to security values.

"Means Dumping of Securities."

On Oct. 1, under the terms of the bill, Dickinson explained, the rigid 60 per cent requirement would automatically become effective. He quoted statistics showing that nearly a billion dollars' worth of securities would be dumped on the market in order to comply with this provision.

"Liquidation in such volume would be bound to depress the market and create the necessity for the progressive liquidation of more securities," he declared. "It is at least a question of sound economic policy."

At the present time, Dickinson told the committee, there are about two billion dollars' worth of securities in brokerage accounts, of which some 350 millions, or 17 per cent, are unlisted. In order to be eligible as margin collateral under the proposed legislation, he said, these would have to be listed and approved by the trade commission. In addition, according to Dickinson, about 550 millions out of 650 millions of listed securities would have to be sold on Oct. 1 in order to put up the cash necessary to meet the high margin requirement proposed to be fixed by law. In all, he pointed out, upwards of 900 million dollars in securities would be dumped on the market in order to comply with the 60 per cent margin.

Dickinson asserted that margin requirements should be flexible in order to meet varying conditions on the exchanges.

Points Out Dangers.

"It's hardly desirable to freeze margins in a statute," he said, adding that "margin trading is an integral feature of the financial system and is tied in with the whole credit structure. An abrupt attempt to restrict it would likely have consequences none of us is able to foresee."

The Fletcher-Raybnrn bill, said the assistant commerce secretary, would give the federal trade commission arbitrary and discretionary authority over state and municipal government finances, over banks and insurance companies, and other credit institutions. Under the measure as now drawn, he pointed out, unlisted securities will have little value as collateral, and in order to be listed the issuing corporation must submit to federal trade commission examination of its accounts. State regulatory agencies, such as utility commissions and railroad boards, he declared, would be superseded by the federal trade commission.

Moreover, Dickinson declared, the measure now proposed would indirectly vest the trade commission with control over the flow of credit in this country— a control now exercised largely by the federal reserve board —by enabling the commission to fix the loan value of securities. A recent legislative trend, he told the committee, has been toward the concentration of credit control in the reserve board, and he seriously questioned the advisability of giving it at this time.

Offers Substitute Plan.

Dickinson also emphasized the almost impossible task the provisions of the measure would saddle upon the trade commission. Some 44,000 corporations would be subject to regulation by the federal agency, he declared, and each of them would be required to furnish the commission with quarterly audits of its accounts. These audits, the commission would have to check, he said, pointing out that such an operation would force a tremendous expansion of the commission.

As an alternative, Dickinson suggested the creation of a distinct federal stock exchange control authority with the sole duty of supervising the stock markets. Under his plan, he explained, the government would act only as a policeman with the exchanges regulating themselves.

Closed Gary Bank to Make 9 Pct. Payment to Depositors

David H. Jennings, receiver of the National Bank of America, Gary, Ind., announced yesterday a third disbursement, amounting to 9 per cent, is being made to depositors. The payment brings the total to 45 2-3 per cent, or $300,000, distributed since January, 1932. As receiver of the First National of Gary, Ind., Mr. Jennings has disbursed to depositors 41⅓ per cent, or about $700,000.

GRAINS DECLINE MILDLY; TRADING AT STANDSTILL

New Events Are Awaited by Speculators.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Chicago commission houses leaned strongly to the belief yesterday that grain and commodity markets have reached dead center and that new influences are needed to cause a resumption of speculative interest. While special influences have caused grain, cotton, silver and other commodities to enjoy spurts of activity, all markets lapsed into dullness yesterday and prices held within relatively narrow limits.

For nearly an hour May wheat held within ⅛ cent of 87½ cents and pit operations were practically at a standstill. Traders expressed the belief that the situation, especially at Washington, was too uncertain to result in either the professional element or the public taking a decided stand on either side of the market. All grains were under moderate pressure yesterday, and while showing a little strength at the start the finish was about at the low point.

Most Losses Fractional.

Net losses of ⅛ to ⅝ cent occurred in wheat; corn lost ⅜ to ½ cent; oats, ⅝ to 1 cent; rye, ½ to ⅝ cent, and barley, ⅛ cent for the day.

Foreign wheat markets were either steady or fractionally lower, Winnipeg being off ⅛ to ¼ cent and Liverpool ¼ to ½ cent lower.

May wheat in Chicago after selling at 88 cents at the start dropped to 87¼ cents and closed at that figure to 87⅜ cents. Corn had a range of ⅝ to ⅝ cent and finished with May at 51¼ cents. Scattered liquidation developed in May oats and that option went to ¼ cent under July, the first time it has been at a discount this season. There was also buying of May corn against sales of May oats. The latter closed at 34½ cents. May rye was 59⅞ cents and May barley, 47¼ cents at the last.

Theories Upset Grain Trade.

Grain traders found time hanging heavy on their hands and spent the greater part of the session discussing the general situation. A majority of operators professed to have no opinion as to the trend of the markets, as dullness appears a worldwide affair owing to the inability of traders to reconcile supply and demand with the theories being advanced in practically all countries to bring about an advance in prices.

Washington reports indicating the provisions of the cotton production control bill might be extended to other basic agricultural commodities attracted little attention from the trade.

Comments on the new winter wheat crop from the southwest were a little more optimistic as the result of recent rains. Further precipitation over a wide area was indicated by the official forecast for the next 24 hours.

LARD WELL TAKEN ON SMALL DECLINES

Selling pressure on lard due to weakness in grains and cotton met support yesterday, packing interests especially picking up cash lard. The volume of business was fair. Lard futures closed 7½ to 12½ cents net lower, the latter on old May.

Cash lard was in fair demand and 7½ cents lower for regular at $6.55. Loose was $6.30 and leaf $6.50 or the same as yesterday.

Bellies closed 5 to 17½c lower, July being the weakest. Cash lots were unchanged at $8.25. Fresh pork loins were taken fairly at 12 to 13½ cents, and distributors of cured meats and hams reported a seasonable trade.

Exports of lard from New York on Monday were 992,740 pounds and of bacon 320,000 pounds. Prices:

HOGS RALLY LATE IN DAY AS CATTLE STAGE RECOVERY

Influenced by the recovery in cattle, the hog market late yesterday displayed a stronger undertone and regained part of the early losses. Medium and heavy hogs finished strong to 10 cents higher than the average of Monday, but top grades failed to equal the high marks of the preceding session.

The general average for the day remained unchanged at $4.40, while the top at $4.65 still showed a 20 cent decline from Monday's high mark. Local packers bought more "house" hogs as buying for the government was cut down again. Some buyers who have been out of the market since the middle of last week because of the heavy tax, were paying as much for hogs to go into regular market channels yesterday as they were for "relief hogs" on which there is no tax.

Price Spread Narrows.

There was a material narrowing of the price range, the top and average being only 25 cents apart, against a spread of 45 cents Monday. Six packers bought only 2,500 hogs for the account of the relief corporation yesterday, against 3,200 Monday and 4,700 last Thursday. Most of the relief hogs were costing $4.50 to $4.60, selected 230 to 241 pound butchers topping the market to eastern buyers. Medium and weighty hogs were scarce and are working closer to the top of the price list.

The reaction in the trend of cattle prices brought steers up 10 to 15 cents yesterday and other classes were steady to strong. Canner cows held firm without federal aid. The government has not bought cattle since last Friday. Choice 1,006 to 1,120 pound steers brought the $7.50 top, within 10 cents of the highest price paid in 1932.

Most of Run Above $7.

A bigger share of the run was eligible to $7 and above, while very little had to go under $4.25. Prime 1,369 pound steers reached $7, about the highest figure of the winter for cattle that heavy.

Beef cows were firm and heifers in spots sold to slightly better advantage. Calves, however, weakened off in sympathy with the sharp break in the lamb trade and closed 25 cents or more lower than Monday.

Lambs were hit again yesterday, declining 15 to 25 cents despite the meager receipts offered. Top sales of wooled lambs to packers were down to $9.25, against a top of $9.50 Monday and $10.15 at the high point of last week. Current quotations still are well above a year ago when top grades of lambs were selling at $6.40. Aged sheep and yearlings were quoted mostly steady.

NATURAL LAWS RESPONSIBLE FOR PEAK LAMB PRICE

With February receipts of lambs in Chicago reported as the lowest for any February in 41 years there is a surprisingly strong demand for both meat and wool from the flocks of the countryside in recent weeks.

Current prices of lambs compared with pork and beef tell the story of a reduced production coupled with a normal increase in consumption of lamb and wool in a market that has had no artificial stimulus or handicaps. Top lambs yesterday brought 9¼ cents a pound, compared with over 10 cents a pound a week ago and 6½ cents a year ago.

The top prices for beef cattle yesterday were 7 to 7½ cents a pound, and for hogs 4.65 cents. The rise in wool prices is seen in the current quotations of 28 to 43 cents a pound, depending upon grade, compared with 13 to 19 cents a year ago. Average fleece from a lamb is about 7 pounds.

Underlying factors cited by the live stock trade for higher lamb prices fall into three general classes: slaughter supplies are the lightest in many years, with receipts at Chicago during February the lightest since 1893; prices in 1932 and 1933 for feeder lambs were so low as to put many producers out of business or to discourage other farmers to undertake lamb feeding; low prices the last two years for retail cuts of lamb and mutton have broadened consumption and encouraged many who formerly did not eat much lamb to buy it more frequently.

West Increases Demand.

In former years principal consumers of lamb have been the eastern families and those in the west who wanted a special dinner for Sundays or holidays, especially at Easter time. During the last two years or so consumers in the middle west have revised their taste and purchases of meats include more lamb.

Total population of the three types of meat animals in the United States as of Jan. 1, 1934, compared with those a year ago, also show some of the cause for rising meat prices now. In 1932 there were 32,496,000 beef cattle; now there are 36,541,000. There were 58,988,000 hogs on farms in January, 1932 and now there are 55,976,000. There were 53,155,000 sheep and lambs in January, 1932, but this total has dropped in two years to 51,374,000 head.

EGG FUTURES REACH NEW HIGHS; BUTTER ADVANCES

Butter futures closed ¼c higher on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Eggs were firm, up ¼c, October reaching the year's high and March storage packed making a new high at 18c.

Butter news was mixed. Withdrawals from storage were 1,200,000 pounds more than last year, but receipts showed an increase. March opened higher, but reacted on profit taking, only to rally near the close.

Indications of a fairly good demand for eggs resulted in futures moving higher. While receipts have been running very heavy, the net increase in storage holdings has been relatively small.
